Dease Line Debt: $1M A Month

VANCOUVER (CP) — The financially troubled British Columbia Railway revealed on Wednesday that interest charges on funds borrowed for the recently-aborted Dease Lake rail extension continue to cost the Crown corporation about $1 million a month.

The railway revealed the interest expenses in releasing figures showing that net losses during the first six months of the year were $25.7 million — a $2 million decrease from the corresponding period in 1976. Officials attributed the major portion of the losses to interest charges on long-term financing.

In a capsule review of B.C. Rail affairs that covered everything from hopper cars to piggyback trailers, the railway attempted to paint a slightly rosier portrait of its financial situation in the first half of 1977 than was the case in 1976. The review pointed to a considerable improvement in operating losses: $3.7 million for the first half of 1977, compared with $11.3 million in the corresponding period last year.

This improvement was overshadowed by the financial fallout from huge costs on the 420-mile extension of tracks from Fort St. James in central B.C. to Dease Lake in northwestern B.C. Work on the line began in December, 1969, and was halted by Premier Bill Bennett with 237 miles completed in April of this year.

The government is awaiting the report of a royal commission investigating the railway before a final decision is made on the fate of the northern extension. Meanwhile, the financial arrangements made for the work completed to date continue to cost the railway — and ultimately B.C. taxpayers — $1 million a month.

"Included in the 1977 net loss are interest costs which were previously charged to the railway's Dease Lake extension, and now are charged to expense since the construction halt, said the review.

IDI INSULT BRINGS DEATH

NAIROBI (AP) — A Ugandan playwright, the national theatre director and a culture ministry official were executed by firing squad in Uganda after being found guilty of insulting President Idi Amin, a refugee army officer said Wednesday.

The three were executed after opening night of a play which implied Uganda is a country without a popular leader.

Tentative Pact For IWA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tentative agreement was reached Wednesday on a unified pension plan for International Woodworkers of America members in the three British Columbia regions, industry spokesmen said.

A unified pension plan for the coast, southern interior and northern interior regions has been a major stumbling block in current contract negotiations.

Keith Bennett, president of Forest Industrial Relations which represents employers, said that the pension agreement is subject to a satisfactory conclusion to negotiations on a master contract.

Jack Munro, union western region vice-president, said the agreement is an important breakthrough, but added he is not yet prepared to recommend acceptance by the membership of a two-year master agreement.

Details of the pension-plan settlement and a date for resumption of full-scale negotiations have not yet been announced.

Stand to Rest?

LONDON (Reuter) — A U.S. resident has taken out a British patent on a method to bury people standing up in order to save space, New Scientist magazine says in its current edition.

Patent drawings show interior supports so that the body can be lowered into the grave feet first without slumping to the bottom of the casket.

End of Rent Freeze 'Frightening': Barber

Victoria MLA Charles Barber today demanded a five-month delay before the provincial government decides whether to end rent controls in this area.

Barber was commenting on the Residential Tenancy Act, introduced in the legislature Wednesday, and a statement by Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair that the government would begin phasing out rent controls by year's end.

"This statement by the minister is going to frighten many people, especially the poor and the elderly," Barber said.

"And they may be frightened unnecessarily. The latest trend indicates vacancy rates are coming down and it may be that rent controls should be continued through 1978."

Barber said it is foolish for the minister to announce a policy in August based upon estimates of what the vacancy rate may be in December.

"It would be more prudent to wait until December and see what the vacancy rate really is at that time. Once a policy is announced a government tends to stick with it to avoid losing face even if the realities have changed.

"I am asking this government to base its rent control policies on realities and not upon speculation."

Mair said no firm timetable has been established but rent controls would be phased out in certain areas by the end of the year.

Phasing out of controls would begin in areas where the vacancy rate is expected to be high, he said, and he named Victoria as a likely first area to move to a free market.

The phase-out plan drew praise from Les Litwin, president of the Greater Victoria Apartment Owners Association.

Litwin said rents will have to rise if contractors are to receive enough income to finance the cost of constructing new apartments. Federal government subsidies have been needed to encourage most of the recent construction, he said.

He said he could not comment further until after he studies the legislation in detail.

The act will affect about 40 per cent of the population of Greater Victoria who rent. About 60 per cent of the population of Victoria City are renters.

The Residential Tenancy Act will replace the Landlord and Tenant Act, passed during the New Democratic Party administration.

Two sections in the new act will provide protection for tenants.

The rentalsman may still launch a review if a landlord raises rents for the express purpose of evicting tenants. He could also review a case if the rent increase is excessive or unreasonable.

In addition to paving the way for decontrols, Mair's bill gives wider powers to landlords having trouble collecting their rent from tenants.

The act sets out that where rent is not paid when due, a landlord can give 12 days notice to a tenant to vacate. Payment of the rent within that 12-day period, however, voids the notice.

"A tenant who has not paid rent on time must realize that the landlord is operating a business and also has financial obligations," said Mair.

SALES PLUMMETED with the temperature this morning for three young entrepreneurs in South Fairfield. Earlier, hot weather was a boon for business for Katharine Salmon, 6, her brother Simon, 9, and neighbor Taryn O'Gorman, 9.

Heat Wave 'Lull'

Victorians who stepped out into significantly cooler morning temperatures today shouldn't kid themselves that the heatwave may be on its way out.

That's the word from weather office spokesman Bob Morris, who said it's just a temporary lull and we could be sweltering again by the weekend.

Although today's 8 a.m. temperature was a refreshing 15 degrees — four degrees lower than Wednesday's — Morris said it's just part of a cyclical pattern caused by an inrush of cool air up the Juan de Fuca Strait.

For a while this cools things down a bit but the cool air comes up against the persistent high pressure ridge, "sits there and then gets warmed up again," he explained.

But Morris added: "The basic pattern hasn't really changed. We may get up to above normal again by the weekend."

Meanwhile, Victoria still has a long way to go to match the record dry spell of 63 days in 1926, from June 15 to Aug. 16.

(A report earlier this week indicating the area was only seven days way from the drought record was incorrect, because it quoted Victoria airport figures which go back only 36 years. Gonzales station has city weather records going back to 1898).

Whether it's for showering, topping up pools, sprinkling lawns or just drinking, residents are consuming a lot of water — about 45 million gallons a day, according to water commissioner Ron Upward.

NEW PENNY ON THE WAY

OTTAWA (CP) — A new, smaller one-cent coin will be issued next January, the Royal Canadian Mint announced Wednesday.

The decision to reduce the size of the coin, which will be three centimetres smaller than the present one, was made because production costs, including the minting and the price of the metal, exceeded the nominal value.

CLC Fouled Early End To AIB, Says Trudeau

Times News Services

Prime Minister Trudeau said today refusal of the Canadian Labor Congress to participate in a voluntary restraint program means there will be no early end of wage and price controls.

He was speaking in a CBC radio interview from Whitehorse, Yukon, broadcast.

"We're not going to de-control into nothing, believe me," Trudeau said. "There has to be something that happens after we lift controls to make sure that inflation doesn't go back into the two-digit figures."

Canadian premiers, meeting at St. Andrews, N.B., expected the labor movement's rejection of federal government conditions for an early end to wage and price controls, but there appeared to be little agreement today on the next step in the controls program as the premiers began economic discussions.

The Atlantic premiers want controls to stay until the end of 1978, while some western premiers, particularly Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan and Ed Schreyer of Manitoba, want the phase-out to begin almost immediately.

Canadian Labor Congress leaders said Wednesday the labor movement cannot accept any of Ottawa's proposals for voluntary wage restraint, a consultative forum to advise the government on the economy and a monitoring agency after the controls program formally ends.

Federal Labor Minister John Munro said the controls may now stay in effect until the end of 1978, the planned expiry date.

Premier Frank Moores said Newfoundland signed up for the full period until 1978 and hopes that controls will not be removed before then.

If controls are removed now, he said, the post-controls period might have a serious effect on Newfoundland's already beleaguered economy.

Schreyer said he wants the controls to end now.

. . . COULDN'T BE BOUGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's cross-country vacation with his three sons was a holiday that money couldn't buy for other Canadian families.

Government and railway officials insist that the eight-day, 2,600-mile railway trip, which ended Wednesday in Prince Rupert, cost the taxpayers next to nothing.

They say that the costs involved in catering to the Trudeaus in a pair of luxurious, government-owned railway cars, including a two-man serving staff, are absorbed in the standing government budget for transporting top Ottawa people around the country.

A government official said Wednesday Trudeau will pay only for food and other personal expenses incurred by him and his children.

The publicly-owned and deficit-ridden Canadian National Railways will not charge Trudeau or the government for moving the private railway cars from Ottawa to Winnipeg, through Saskatchewan and Alberta to Jasper in the Rocky Mountains and on to Prince Rupert on the Pacific Coast.

Trudeau did not even have to buy a ticket. All MPs have passes giving them and their immediate families unlimited free rail transportation.

However, government and railway officials said there was little extra cost involved in hitching the two private cars to the CN Super Continental in Ottawa for the cross-country trip.

The transport department owns a fleet of four private cars for the use of cabinet ministers and their families and various high officials.

Although they have total annual rail passenger service deficits totalling about $300 million, neither CN nor the shareholder-owned Canadian Pacific Railway charges the government for hauling the private cars on regularly scheduled train runs.

GUARD TALKS BREAK

WINNIPEG (CP) — Contract talks between the Manitoba government and negotiators for guards and counsellors on strike at the province's correctional institutions broke off five hours after they resumed Wednesday, increasing fears of a general strike by the 14,000-member Manitoba Government Employees Association (MGEA).

No further talks have been scheduled and the MGEA has issued a call for elected officers from all 92 locals to attend an emergency meeting here Saturday.

Besides the dispute involving the 500 guards and counsellors employed in the province's correctional instjtutions, the MGEA is disappointed with the government's refusal to sign a master contract and five component agreements, Jackson said.

Flash Floods Douse Fires

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP) — Record rains quelled extreme fire danger in drought-stricken southern California with ironic vengeance Wednesday, as flash floods ruined crops and caused rural residents to flee.

But officials said the flooding, worsened by rain Tuesday night and early Wednesday, would have little over-all effect on the state's two-year drought. Much of the more than 7½ centimetres of rain fell too rapidly to be absorbed into the ground.

And because the storms drenched only the southern part of the state, they did not help the men battling the worst of California's current plague of forest fires—a two-week blaze near Big Sur on the central coast—or other fires farther north.

Flooded streets caused dozens of accidents during morning rush-hour traffic in Los Angeles.

State officials recommended that highway travel throughout tens of thousands of square miles of California desert be limited to emergencies.

The heavy rains also led to the postponement of the second flight of the space shuttle Enterprise, which had been tentatively set for Aug. 30.

A National Weather Service spokesman said Tropical Storm Doreen, which brought about the rain as it ravaged northwestern Mexico, was "all wiped out." But forecasts still called for scattered rain.

Oysters Bask in Heat

Cross your fingers, oyster lovers, and pray for another 10 days of warm, balmy weather.

If the heat wave persists and there isn't too much wind, there'll be a bumper crop of bivalves.

Dave Smith, a biologist with the B.C. Marine Resource Branch, said today oyster spawning has been massive at Cortez Island, Pendrell Sound and Hotham Sound, as well as around Nanaimo.

The oyster crop could be as large as the one in 1958 when oysters were two feet deep on nearly all beaches on the east coast of Vancouver Island, he said.

"It will depend on a continuation of the warm weather. "The oysters are in the larvae stage at present and the warmer the weather and the less wind, the quicker they will set and attach themselves to beaches," Smith said.

While oysters around Vancouver and the Gulf Islands have been heavily picked, Smith said the few remaining oysters could restore the crop to what it was in 1958.

"Oysters, depending on their size, can produce between 30 to 100 million eggs.

"If the survival rate is high, you can imagine what kind of a crop we will have."

The Pacific oyster was introduced to this area from Japan and has depended upon reseeding from seed purchased in Japan.

For several years, reproduction was low but in 1958 there was a population explosion that saw shorelines and coves covered with oysters.

At Goldstream Provincial Park oysters were more than two feet thick.

A spokesman for the Nanaimo Biological Station said the ideal water temperatures for oyster larvae to set is about 25 degrees Celsius.

"If the temperature of the surface of the water is around 25 degrees, it will take the larvae about 10 days to set," he said. "If the temperature is lower by three or five degrees it may take between two or three weeks.

He said the longer the larvae take to set, the greater the loss of eggs.

Delay May Cancel Yukon Pipe: PM

WHITEHORSE (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday a seven- to 10-year delay in the Alaska Highway natural gas pipeline project could mean there would be no pipeline in the Yukon at all.

Trudeau made the comment at a news conference after discussing the pipeline in a meeting with representatives of Yukon native Indians.

The Council for Yukon Indians has called for a seven-year moratorium on pipeline construction in order for native land claims to be properly settled.

Trudeau said, however, that the United States would not accept a seven-year delay and instead would choose the all-Alaska El Paso route for its natural gas.

"If there is no pipeline built in the southern Yukon in the reasonably near future, obviously the American gas will go the other route, the El Paso route, and if ever Canadian gas is brought on stream it won't be through (the Yukon)," he said.

At the same time, Trudeau said, Canada won't accept the pipeline at any cost.

"We don't want it at any price," he said. "If there are no significant benefits to Canada, we won't have a pipeline."

In a separate news conference Wednesday, Yukon native Indians re-affirmed their opposition to the pipeline without a settlement of land claims.

Daniel Johnson, chairman of the Council for Yukon Indians, said if a seven-year delay would rule out a pipeline, then no pipeline should be built.

"There is a lot at stake for native people to settle land claims properly and to implement (the settlement) properly," he said. "And if it means that there is to be no pipeline built through the Yukon, then I'm afraid we feel that's the conclusion that has to be arrived at."

Johnson said that if pipeline construction does go ahead, Yukon Indians would do everything they could to stop or delay the line until land claims have been fairly settled.

RESOURCES TO PROVINCES —BENNETT

ST. ANDRES, N.B. (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett said Thursday the federal government should give the provinces more control over their natural resources.

In a paper tabled at the premier's conference here, Bennett said that an inequitable tax structure imposed by the federal government is hampering provincial development.

He said the federal government's failure to respect certain tax rights has "effectively denied provincial ownership and control of natural resources.

"The ensuing structure of federal taxation has left the provinces with the choice of giving up their non-renewable resources at depreciated values, or bearing the consequences of reduced development in non-renewable resource developments," the paper said.

Tribal Courts Suggested

VANCOUVER (CP) — A system of tribal courts with native Indian justices of the peace, judges or lay panels had been proposed by the Native Courtworkers and Counselling Association of British Columbia.

The proposal is part of a policy statement of the government on the relationships between Indians and the provincial justice system, recommending increased participation of natives in decisions about Indians within the attorney-general's department.

The report says the present court system is foreign to many natives, who are afraid to talk to those in authority even when it would be to their benefit.

The courtworker organization proposed that some minor offences be tried in tribal courts, and that Indians be given an option to be tried by a tribal court for certain other offences. The system might resemble the present provincial court system, says the report, or it could be presided over by a lay panel similar to a jury.

Support for Chicken Board Revealed in Bennett Letter

RICHMOND (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett wrote a letter to the British Columbia broiler marketing board in late June, advising it that the government was prepared to support B.C.s entry into a national chicken marketing board, the provincial legislature's food inquiry committee was told Wednesday.

The June 28 letter, revealed for the first time, also discussed a pending court case between the board and Super-Valu Stores over the importation of 60,000 United States chickens in January.

Last week Bennett, overruling a recommendation by Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt that B.C. enter the national plan, said a decision would be deferred until the food committee had looked at marketing boards and other food-related problems.

Representatives of five B.C. agricultural organizations Wednesday urged committee MLAs to make an interim recommendation to join the national scheme.

Chicken producers in all provinces but Alberta have voted to join the plan, seen primarily as a means of halting record imports of surplus U.S. chicken which have taken over about 25 per cent of the Ontario and Quebec markets usually supplied by Canadian producers.

The producers also charged Wednesday that major food firms — particularly Super-Valu and Loblaws, both part of the Weston organization — are trying to establish a record of import that will guarantee them a large import quota when and if the national plan is instituted.

Trudeau Blames CLC

a year too long in getting out."

Blakeney said controls have changed the inflation psychology in Canada and are becoming counter-productive.

Ontario Premier William Davis said labor's action does not change his government's view that a monitoring agency should be established. The agency would include political representatives, labor and business.

Premier Peter Lougheed of Alberta said the sluggishness in the economies of the rest of the provinces is beginning to hold his province back and hoped that labor would reconsider its position on controls and be more responsible.

Munro said he was "disappointed" but not "undule surprised" by the CLC's action, adding that — at a mimimum — controls will remain in effect "for a good deal longer."

Trudeau told a meeting of business and labor leaders here last month that the program could be lifted as early as next Oct. 14 — two years after it was imposed — if the two groups could agree to Ottawa's conditions.

In a statement adopted yesterday by leaders of 90 unions affiliated with the CLC, the Congress said controls must come off "immediately and without pre-conditions."

Passengers Break Lines

LONDON (Reuter) — Sixty irate passengers burst through airport security cordons here Thursday and boarded a plane after their charter flight to Lagos was delayed 24 hours due to strikes at Heathrow Airport.

A Boeing 747 jet was forced to make an emergency stop to avoid running down three women passengers walking down the tarmac.

Airport police detained the women.

The trouble flared after 100 passengers flying to Lagos on a Nigeria Airways charter had to spend the night in the airport lounge. Their flight was delayed by a strike of food caterers and work-to-rule action by traffic control assistants.

Because of the continuing hot dry summer, Victoria residents will not be allowed to start incinerator burning Sept. 1, as in previous years.

The city's fire prevention committee today authorized Fire Chief Eric Simmons to place newspaper advertisements warning householders that there will be no burning until further notice.

Kidnapper Gives Up At Hostages' Urging

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) A lone gunman held 63 persons as hostage at a remote religious retreat Wednesday, then calmly surrendered to police after his captives helped persuade him to give up.

Thomas Wilson, 26, of Bakersfield, Calif., was being held today in the psychiatric ward of Santa Cruz County Hospital where he will undergo testing, said Chief Deputy Mark Ganghoff of the Santa Cruz sheriff's department.

Wilson was booked for investigation of kidnap and auto theft in the hijacking of a public bus and abduction of its four passengers and dirver, Ganghoff said.

Polce said Wilson released th passengers, then forced the driver to take him to the Baba'i Faith religious retreat in mountains 20 miles northwest of this coastal city.

He demanded to see two men — Jack Kembro of Mariposa and Delos Brandon, a friend being held at a state prison in San Luis. But he surrendered without the demand being met and without firing the shots he had threatened. Authorities said Wilson had accused Kembro of a crime, but Kembro is not under investigation.

Ken Allen, 42, one of the last hostages to be freed, said that after lengthy debate with Wilson, he "began to be reasonable to us and take our suggestions."

Allen said Wilson finally told his captives, "Oh, you're right. We don't want anyone hurt. Let's get the hell out of here."

The incident began near at dusk Wednesday when a man armed with a .22-calibre semi-automatic rifle and about 200 rounds of ammunition hijacked a city bus and forced it to be driven to the religious centre.

He released the bus driver, then burst into the centre's dining room. The man forced the mixed-aged group of men, women and children against a wall, but immediately released 21 of the hostages, most of them children.

Three other persons were later released, leaving 37 adults, a two-year-old and an infant as hostage.

TROPICAL WINTERS COMING?

TORONTO (CP) — A California space engineer says Canadians could spend their winters basking in warm sunshine in 20 years time.

John Latin, a test engineer on the U.S. Apollo command and service module program, which launched the world's first space shuttle vehicle in California last week, said Wednesday that a craft is being developed to beam down heat from the sun's rays.

A smaller craft, he said, could focus rays of sunlight on cities or districts suffering power failures.

"New York would never have the lootings and crime problems it went through in the blackout," Latin said.

He said people must stop thinking of space programs as wasteful, flamboyant and lacking in social value.

The cost of developing a craft like the one to beam down the sun's rays should be matched against the cost of one hard winter.

"The price of a terrible winter like the one you had last year throughout the whole eastern part of the country is enormous," said Latin.

He said the space shuttles would cost U.S. taxpayers $6.8 billion by 1980, but savings in energy costs alone would pay for them.

Soviet Soldiers Protected by Pill

WASHINGTON (UPI) The Soviet Union has secretly produced and distributed a pill that may protect its soldiers against radiological, biological and chemical warfare, two Los Angeles Times reporters claim.

Jack Cloherty and Bob Owens, columnists for the Los Angeles Times Syndicate, reprted Wednesday that the pill was first discovered in Soviet-supplied field gear captured in the 1973 Mideast War.

They said that Gen. Sam V. Wilson, until last May head of the defence intelligence agency, had confirmed the existence of the pill but information is "a little shakey in terms of what its capability is."

Other intelligence and civil defence experts were quoted as saying the pill may be little more than a placebo designed to keep up troop morale in the face of a radiological, chemical or biological attack.

"But," one source was quoted, "no one is really sure. American scientists just can't conceive of any known substance that would be effective against all three."

A spokesman said the Pentagon would have no immediate comment on the story.

A disturbance moving along the continental divide triggered a few thunderstorms along the Rockies overnight. Coastal fog and cloud with occasional drizzle again returned to outer Vancouver Island while over the north coast skies were mainly clear as drier air from the interior pushed aside fog banks. Further to the south a disturbance which posed a threat to the current spell of nice summer weather appears to be weakening and therefore allowing for more record breaking temperatures during the next few days. However, along the coast fog and low cloud will still persist and possibly work its way to the inner coasts.

SEPARATISM LOSING BACKERS

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition to Quebec separatism has grown both within Quebec and across Canada, a Gallup poll conducted in July indicates. The poll was conducted for The Star by the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion.

It found that within Quebec 70 per cent of those queried oppose separation of the province from the rest of the country, compared with 62 per cent in a similar poll in April.

Nationally, 75 per cent of those asked oppose separation, compared with 71 per cent in April.

In Quebec, 19 per cent said they favor separatism compared with 20 per cent in April. Nationally, 16 per cent favored separation compared with 15 per cent in April.

Player Fined $3,000

QUEBEC (CP) — Rick Jodzio, the Calgary Cowboy's hockey player who injured an opponent during a World Hockey Association game here in 1976, has been fined $3,000 in sessions court.

In a surprise court appearance Wednesday, Jodzio was fined after pleading guilty to a reduced charge of causing bodily harm which carried a maximum sentence of five years in prison.

He was originally charged with assault with intent to injure which carries a 14-year maximum term.

Jodzio was charged following an incident during a WHA game April 11, 1976, that resulted in Quebec Nordiques star Marc Tardif being sent to hospital suffering from a concussion.

Addressing Judge Cyrille Potvin Wednesday, defence lawyer Harvey Yarosky said Jodzio was "not a violent man or a savage. He never wanted to injure Tardif."

Yarosky said the incident took place in the heat of action.

Centralism Attacked

HALIFAX (CP) — Eric Kierans, former postmaster-general, said Wednesday that Canada's confederation crisis was created by the growth of large corporations and by centralization of power in Ottawa.

"We have created an institution that is out of control," Kierans told a Halifax service club. "We have created something bigger than you or I and we will have to stay with it until we outgrow it. The evolution of small business into large corporate structures and an immense concentration of power in Ottawa has resulted since 1945."

Kierans said there are about 300,000 business corporations in Canada but one-tenth of one per cent of them own more than half of the assets in the corporate sector.

He said Maurice Duplessis, former premier of Quebec, was the only person who fought against federal control over fiscal powers and he was given no support from the other provinces.

"This was the first of the anti-centralist issues leading to Quebec going its own way."

Education in Quebec lags "at least a half a generation behind" the rest of the country because Duplessis refused to accept grants from the federal government, he said.

OIL LOADING HALTED

VALDEZ (AP) — Loading at the Trans-Alaska pipeline port of Valdez halted early Wednesday, about 40 hours after an oil leak forced shutdown of the troubled pipeline.

The U.S. Coast uard said the tanker Arco Juneau was loading Wednesday. The next vessel, the Overseas Alaska, was told to stay outside the harbor until loading can resume.

Harry Boyle Quits CRTC

OTTAWA (CP) — Harry Boyle says he is calling it quits as chairman of the Canadian Radio-television and Tele-communications Commission (CRTC) — not because of his much touted differences with Communications Minister Jeanne Sauve, but because it seems like as good a time as any to go.

In a telephone interview Wednesday, Boyle said that he is looking forward to a less hectic workload than faced him during his 18 months at the CRTC's helm. Prior to that, he was acting chairman for about eight months.

"When you get to be my age, you're not looking for a full-time job," Boyle, 61, said about the next turn in his almost 35-year career in communications.

And besides, he never had intended to see out his full, seven-year term as chairman, he said. He has served in various capacities at the commission since it was founded in 1968.

Last week, the communications department released news of Boyle's resignation prematurely, and some regarded this as Mrs. Sauve's final dig at Boyle — the two have disagreed on many fundamental communications issues. But others, such as Boyle, saw the slip an inadvertent mistake.

Boyle is leaving the CRTC just before the next annual slate of hearings begins and he said this will give his successor a chance to get in on the CRTC' secision-making process from the word go.

Boyle said the timing of his resignation, effective Sept. 16, made sense because he hopes to tie up the loose ends of the unresolved issues confronting the commission.

Still outstanding are CRTC decisions on the introduction of pay TV and the future of Telesat Canada, the almost half-federally-owned satellite communications company which wants to join a consortium of Canadian telephone companies.

Mail Problem Probe By Royal Commission

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says the federal cabinet is to appoint a three-member royal commission to investigate problems in labor relations in the post office in an attempt to head off another postal strike.

In an Ottawa story, the newspaper says Chief Judge Alan B. Gold of the provincial court of Quebec has been asked to chair the commission.

It says details of what form the investigation will take—some top government officials still favor a more limited inquiry instead of a full royal commission—have to be worked out before an announcement will be made.

It says William Maloney, former Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America, has agreed to be the labor representative on the inquiry commission.

The commission's main job is to find out what lies behind the continuing warfare between successive postmasters-general and the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, representing 22,000 inside mail sorters.

The Star says the government hopes that the commission can complete the job by Christmas.

Since 1965, the union has conducted five major strikes and numerous rotating walkouts and protests that have repeatedly disrupted mail service.

Postal Workers Deny Accusation

OTTAWA (CP) — Jean-Claude Parrot, national president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), said the government's charge that the union is guilty of bad-faith bargaining "is ridiculous."

The Public Service Staff Relations Board opened hearings Wednesday into the government's complaint that the union is refusing to negotiate in good faith.

The last collective agreement expired June 30, but the only negotiations for a new contract lasted only one hour. The union said it broke off negotiations shortly after they started May 18 because the post office was prohibiting distribution of union literature to CUPW employees.

Parrot said in an interview the government "waited only five days after negotiations broke off before laying the bad faith bargaining charge against the union."

The Public Service Staff Relations Board is scheduled to resume hearings next month on the union's complaint that the post office is interfering with internal union business.

CUPW executives have said they will attempt to get a contract settlement at the bargaining table, but members have given the union leaders authority to call a national strike, if necessary, to back their contract demands.

A key demand is that union members have the right to veto proposed technological changes the union feels would have adverse effects on its members.

Rent Controls

The new Residential Tenancies Act introduced Wednesday in the legislature gives the cabinet so much discretion in the area of rent controls that it is difficult to say immediately what its effects will be. But if the cabinet follows the plan outlined in general terms by Consumer and Corporate Services Minister Rafe Mair, it would appear to be a workable and reasonable enough new system.

One of the main aims of the bill (which is a complete new version of the present Landlord and Tenant Act) is to allow the gradual phasing-out of rent controls. The Social Credit government has never really approved of controls as a means of disciplining the market and is keen to get rid of them; yet for political reasons if for no other, it wants to avoid any of the abuses that some tenants were subjected to in the years before the controls were enacted.

This is a difficult and delicate balance to strike, and the government has solved the problem by giving the cabinet virtually unfettered discretion in deciding when and where controls should be lifted and where they should be maintained. Mair's explanation is that these provisions will allow cabinet to keep a continuous watch on the rental housing vacancy situation and make decisions as the situation changes in different parts of the province.

He promises that controls will be removed only as the market shows they are no longer needed which means that they will be phased out area by area and rent level by rent level. High rent accommodation will be the first to lose protection and, according to the minister, some controls may always remain on low rental housing. Also, the rent review board will always have the power to roll back "excessive and unreasonable increases."

It certainly makes excellent sense the way Mair explains it; yet we cannot help but be a wee bit nervous at the amount of power given to the cabinet.

It will work fine as long as the current cabinet, following Mair's plans, remains in office. But it sets up a mechanism whereby some future cabinet could either remove all rent controls regardless of the needs of tenants or could impose extremely strict controls regardless of the effect on the market. There isn't really any check or balance set up.

Perhaps it would have been better to allow the rent review commission itself to decide the whens and wherefores of decontrols with the cabinet acting as a body to review or hear appeals from the commission's decision. At least that way there would have been two bodies available to look at borderline or controversial cases, instead of only one.

Mantovani of Rock and Roll

His best years were behind him, but even a middleaged Elvis Presley could attract the interest and curiosity of millions. His death at 42 provoked a spontaneous upwelling of sentiment for the uncrowned king of popular music.

Twenty years ago parents and authority figures thought him a bad influence on youth with his sexy hip movements, inviting pout and dark, sleepy eyes. Now it comes out that he was actually terribly shy and afraid of the enormous crowds that adored him!

How sweet and wholesome his music and performing style appear today. At the time of his death, Elvis was the Mantovani of rock and roll. The kids who screamed and fainted over him in 1957 have kids themselves today who are crazy over "punk rock" groups who vomit in public, stick pins through their flesh and sing foul and nasty lyrics.

Requiescat in pace, the Mississippi country boy who sang "true love is cruel" and you knew he wasn't talking about rats and vipers and chains.

FRANK RUTTER

In the Name of Freedom

LONDON — The violent battle of suburban Lewisham which has shocked and upset Britain was menacingly predictable, and predicted.

But it was, ironically, the British sense of fair play that let it happen. Not everyone, as Lewisham proved once again, plays fairly.

Further events before this British summer drizzles to an end may offer more evidence of this: A carnival planned by the West Indian community and a byelection in Birmingham.

It is not completely clear whether the savage Saturday in Lewisham was more racial or political in motivation.

As long as two weeks ago, it was widely known that the National Front, a splinter political party of the far right, planned a march through the largely black community.

The National Front made no bones about its objectives: provocation and publicity.

Lewisham was chosen because the front had picked up a lot of votes there in a byelection last year and in a recent council election although it had not won a seat, and because it was the home of a group of blacks recently arrested for thefts and muggings. The Front claims that 80 per cent of London's muggers are black and 85 per cent of the victims are white.

The end result was a series of pitched battles in which more than 100 people were hurt and more than 200 were arrested. But it was not only the National Front that was predicting trouble.

Splinter Party

Besides practically everyone living in Lewisham, including the mayor, the council, and the church, the far left of the political spectrum, represented by the Socialist Workers Party also predicted disaster.

The SWP, which has been prominent on the picket lines at Grunwick, proved itself just as well organized as the National Front in mounting a counter-march.

Inevitably the two met violently; and when the National Front members were able to disperse, the counter-marchers turned on the police.

It was the police who insisted on letting the National Front go ahead with its march. Even an appeal to the courts by the local council failed to stop it; the police gave assurance that everything would be under control.

The police were determined to allow the National Front to march in the name, not of discrimination, but of freedom.

Permits are not needed in London for marches and demonstrations. It is left to the organizers to make a deal, if they wish, with the police on location and timing.

The police role is basically negative. They can apply under the Public Order Act to have a march banned but the decision must be made at cabinet level, by the home secretary.

Although it was obvious that passions were heating up, the police chose not to intervene, indeed opposed intervention by the local authorities.

This fine defence of freedom got the police a lot of injuries as well as assuring that riots took place as planned by the extremes on both sides.

"I am not concerned with the politics of demonstrations," metropolitan police commissioner David McNee said boldly. "If extreme opponents of one faction threaten violence to seek a ban, the other side will use the same technique and in the event the democratic process will become eroded."

In the event it did anyway, and, unfortunately for Commissioner McNee, who is unlikely to hear the end of this, a great many responsible people from the bishop of Southwark to the mayor of Lewisham also sought a ban on the National Front march.

It was one of the worst outbreaks of street violence in Britain in 30 years. But there had been warning signals. One was three years ago, when a National Front march erupted in spontaneous violence in Holborn; another was at the Notting Hill street carnival last summer when black frustrations boiled over in the record heat; a third was just in May, when black demonstrators got an audience with Prince Charles.

This year's carnival is scheduled to be held in two weeks, despite serious misgivings and a dispute between rival factions claiming sponsorship.

The other event to watch is the byelection at Ladywood to be held on Thursday.

Among a lineup of 16 candidates are Anthony Reed-Herbert of the National Front and Kim Gordon, a young black activist formerly of Lewisham, of the Socialist Workers Party.

Enoch's Warning

It was Gordon who collared Prince Charles and complained about conditions in the black community and about the attitude of the police.

Ladywood is a poor part of Birmingham with about 45 per cent blacks and Asians. There has been minor violence already. Reed-Herbert thinks he will get a lot of votes. Publicity from Lewisham may help.

The reaction of many Britons to what happened in Lewisham is dismay and bewilderment.

"Enoch warned us," is one common response, recalling the racialist speeches of member of parliament Enoch Powell. "Who would have thought it could happen here?" is another response.

In fact it has happened — not just in Lewisham, Notting Hill or Holborn. It happened in the 1930s when the black-shirted fascists of Oswald Mosley went hunting for Jewish skulls in the east end of London. And the odds are that in a Britain where race and politics are both mixed up in confusing and difficult times, it will happen again.

Language Fund

The Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations has been in the forefront in issues associated with language legislation in Quebec. We have made representations, presented briefs and informed parents regarding the language legislation as it pertains to the field of education, as well as encouraging the teaching of the second language. The federation has also supported the legal action taken by the Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards in their challenge of Bill 22 which is presently pending.

The financial drain on the resources available has been great and the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations has authorized the organization of a fund to support legal and democratic action to protect civil rights and liberties, rights which are being denied by Bill 101. The fund, to be known as $1.01 Fund, solicits your support and financial contributions.

In our opinion, Bill 101 is the first step of the government of Quebec to separate us from Canada. The fight against this action will be won in the province of Quebec. However, those who wish to retain this province within confederation require the support of all Canadians, both inside and outside of this province. We are the front line and our supply lines consist of financial and other forms of support from throughout Canada.

It is the hope of Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations that Canadians will assist us in our efforts to maintain a united Canada. A Canada in which parents have the right to have their children educated in either of the two official languages, no matter the province of residence, and in an atmosphere free from linguistic bigotry.

The greatest natural resource we have today is our children — theirs is the future. It must be the aim of all Canadians to leave our children a better Canada, a land where understanding and respect for others is the rule not the exception. This is the aim of Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations. Help our efforts towards this goal.

All contributions should be made payable to: Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations $1.01 Fund, 4795 St. Catherine Street West, Montreal, Quebec H3Z 1S8.

We urge support and contributions from your readers; we hope they will not let us down. — Andrew M. Miller, Co-Chairman $1.01 Fund, Montreal.

Symphony's Future

Since we both not only love music, but are also deeply interested in the development of the musical scene in Victoria and the future of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, we would like to express our concurrence with the points outlined the Audrey Johnson's articles of July 16 and 23.

The symphony faces two major challenges. It is essential to find the right conductor with the qualifications so well defined in the first of these articles. It is also vitally important to attract musicians of a high calibre who are paid a living wage and, therefore, will remain with the orchestra. The symphony can only develop when both these conditions are met. Indeed they are mutually dependent, one cannot expect a fine conductor to remain if the standard of musicianship is low and vice versa.

That is why it makes sense to hire a core of good musicians with a salary commensurate with what members of other top Canadian orchestras receive today. This professional core can be augmented as more funds become available which should logically follow as the standard of performance improves. The balance of the orchestra would consist of musicians whose livelihood does not depend on playing in the symphony, the number of players and their frequency of performance will depend upon the type of program being planned.

Hopefully those responsible for the orchestra's immediate future will give serious consideration to moving in this direction. Several other Canadian orchestras have thrived as a result of following this policy. — Herbert and Eva Schaefer, Victoria.

Courageous Plan

The province of British Columbia has just announced a compulsory treatment program for its 10,000 heroin addicts. It is the first of its kind in the western world and is patterned on a successful Japanese plan initiated in 1963.

The announcement has been greeted with cries of alarm by civil libertarians and by federal cabinet ministers, Marc Lalonde, the federal minister of health, most especially. The media appear to be siding with the program's critics.

The program needs defending; it is at once compassionate and based on sound treatment principles. Some 14 years ago Japan was faced with a vicious drug abuse situation. While they had managed through rigorous law enforcement and social work techniques to eradicate the epidemic use of amphetamines, a grave problem inherited from the long and disruptive American presence on the island, the more than 40,000 heroin addicts resisted all conventional efforts at treatment and rehabilitation.

The Japanese then enacted laws making it possible for the police to detain known and suspected users and traffickers for a period of seven days. If, after seven days, the suspects were still refusing to co-operate with police investigations, the detention was extended another seven days.

As anyone who has worked with heroin addicts knows, enforced or even voluntary abstinence from the drug, is a decidedly unpleasant experience.

Along with having to deal with the tough law, the Japanese addict had to appear in front of a medical board offering him a choice of treatment methods. But all these methods had one terribly important thing in common — cold turkey. That is, withdrawal without the assistance of other drugs. Following treatment there was a compulsory five year follow-up by a vastly expanded social work service.

Within a few years the Japanese addict population dwindled. After 10 years, the number of known heroin addicts was less than 100. Now it is reported to be zero. This is an astounding achievement.

The British Columbia proposal is much milder than its Japanese parent. The compulsory follow-up period would be three rather than five years. There is no question of detaining anyone until they co-operate with police inquiries. The initial treatment period is only six months and offers methadone and other palliatives; all but hard core addicts would be treated, without incarceration, in community clinics.

Critics of the compulsory treatment approach praise the British system whereby the addict is given prescribed heroin or methadone once he has registered at a special clinic. For a while things seemed to work well with this "enlightened" program, but recent figures indicate the number of new heroin users is increasing and the number of addicts injecting methadone, an even more addictive drug than heroin, has gone up very substantially. It should also be noted that British addicts are on higher dosages than North American ones. Their physical dependency is therefore greater and their social adjustment, at best, is marginal. Furthermore, there is still a flourishing black market for heroin in Britain.

Addiction to heroin is one of the most physically debilitating and socially disruptive forms of addiction, and it is growing, especially in B.C. Heroin addicts in Vancouver are responsible for some 70 per cent of the city's serious crimes. Last year, about 300 major drug trials were being heard at the cost of $1,000 each per day.

It is reported that the federal minister of health has expressed surprise about the B.C. plan and is concerned about its compulsory aspects. It must be remarkably easy to surprise Marc Lalonde. He had known about the plan for more than six months. Also, he had been told explicitly that even if the federal government didn't come through with help, B.C. would go it alone. As for the good minister's concern for civil rights, those who really know about the horrors of drug addiction will be unmoved. It is a compassion misplaced, but all too common, even quite predictable, for those who have never seen a drug addict in their lives but ritualistically intone psychoanalytic mumbo jumbo in defence of a facile humanism.

Compulsory treatment works, and it works well. There is a growing body of evidence attesting to this. It is grounded in sound principles and psychological theories. The addict has lost any sense of order and discipline and needs firm guidance. He is a child, lost, confused and on a path to self destruction. To allow him to pursue this path in the name of civil liberties is a crime. The posturing of the federal minister of health and his perpetually ill-informed advisors is scandalous.

What B.C. is proposing is compassionate, courageous and rational. The federal government should stop pontificating and cooperate. —Andre McNicoll, recovered drug abuser, Ottawa.

Street Gangs

Your article Samaritan's Life Hell, (July 9) is very disturbing and has influenced me not to bring my family to Victoria this summer for vacation. This is regrettable as we have enjoyed Victoria in the past. But any city which allows street gangs to run at will because officials refuse to admit to the situation and newspapers which print the name and address of victims of such gangs rather than the names of the attackers is no tourist town for me or my acquaintances. I'm following this situation and the stand taken by the authorities to see if anything will be done by next year to amend Victoria's acts of street violence. Until the situation has improved, you can be assured that a lot of people will hear of this and many people like myself will be going elsewhere to vacation. — Michael L. Phillips, Portland, Oregon.

Inept Service

(1) Payroll cheques sent Wednesday via special delivery from Burnaby, failed to arrive at the usual time, Friday morning. After inquiring, we were contacted late Friday afternoon, that the envelope was found, and could we pick it up.

(2) At the line up to obtain the envelope, a gentleman with numerous parcels to mail was asked by the clerk why he didn't bring them to mail in the morning as the afternoon was far too busy. With effort, the clerk served the gentleman who showed great restraint and patience.

(3) A card was delivered to my home advising that a parcel was at the 15th Avenue post office here to be picked up. Imagine my reaction when the clerk handed me six rolls of daily papers (the Victoria Times), as one bundle. When I inquired as to why home deliveries had not been made in the usual manner, I was informed the "parcel" was over the weight for delivery. Get this, the post office had saved daily issues from July 20 to July 30, bundled them together and made me pick up the "overweight parcel."

This federal government department of inept workers should be disbanded and let private enterprise take its place. Thanks to Mr. Trudeau for policies that make a mockery out of a once proud civil service. — R. McLeod, Prince George.

Moderation Can Save Country

By GEORGE P. GRANT

(Grant is professor of philosophy at McMaster University in Hamilton. This is an excerpt from a recent speech)

Canadian politics has had two main questions: How to maintain some independence while sharing this continent with the world's most powerful modern empire; and how to maintain workable relations between the French- and English-speaking communities.

Those two very complex questions can only be thought about clearly if they are thought about together.

This country was made up of two founding groups who weren't very friendly to each other. But they made a contract because they thought such a contract would help each of them achieve their own particular ends — but they were different purposes.

The present constitutional crisis has arisen because some of the Quebec elite has received the backing of many voters, particularly young voters, under the affirmation that that contract does not serve their purposes and therefore must be terminated or perhaps clarified.

What is the proper response of English-speaking people to such an event? It shouldn't be what has been all too common since that election. Namely — let's see how we can get those people back into line. Namely — we've got a clever fellow up there in Ottawa who promised us in 1968 that he could keep them in line and who was willing to use troops in 1970, and used those troops while most of English-speaking Canada cheered.

Rather than that approach, our constitutional crisis should lead us to three steps:

- To try to understand clearly why these people are saying that the contract does not work.
- To think clearly what we want — above all, do we really want a country on the northern half of this continent?
- If we answer that question honestly in the affirmative, how can we reach a revised contract, that will suit them and us?

If we really aren't interested in having a country, there is little point in trying to reach a renewed contract.

But why isn't the contract working in the minds of many French people?

Look at just one issue — language. Up until recently the French did not go in for concentrated technological education but continued Catholic education. (I do not say that as a sneer for as a fellow Christian I have a great sympathy for Catholic education.)

Now that they are with technological education, they find the following: They are behind; the universal language of the most powerful technology is English; the only choice they have for control over the technological life of their country is to hold onto French as the language of that country.

Why? Their language is the only advantage they have in trying to redress the balance of what has been English-speaking control of their technology. That advantage might give them 10 years to catch up in technological education. I know the people around (Quebec culture minister) Camille Laurin and know that that is what they are thinking. Nobody in English-speaking Canada ever seems to say this or even understand this.

The question is, do we have the sympathy to allow them to use that one advantage to redress the balance of technological education or do we say we are simply the instruments of institutional business and we are going to prevent them taking advantage of that advantage?

What I fear from my own community is that we will see the present crisis in the following way: We will assert that we all believe in the future of our country and that all we have to do is to struggle for the hearts and minds of Quebec. I don't think you come to sensible contracts from out of such self-delusion.

The first priority for English-speaking Canadians is to think what we want, and first in that is to think whether we want to be a country in the northern half of this continent and what we need to do if we want to continue as such a country.

If English-speaking Canadians do have enough sense of wanting to be a country — then we have to get down to reaching a contract with Quebec in which what both parties need can be put together.

In that process what will be required above all will be moderation. I do not mean by moderation — weakness. Moderation is clear firmness. It is the opposite of intemperance and confrontation.

I am more hopeful about moderation since reading the recent paper on language from the federal government. Although my hope is modified by the fact that this government has been one of confrontation in the last 10 years and has not succeeded by these means.

I am also hopeful about moderation because both the people of Quebec and indeed even Premier Rene Levesque are not ideological separatists. Levesque wants to achieve certain purposes and if some of these purposes are achievable within a new contract, he would probably go for such a contract.

In short, if we want this country, there's no alternative to the procedures of clear moderation.

I am not always optimistic that we will follow such a course for to put it plainly the 20th century has not been exactly a moderate century and there are many people around, including important ones, who may find that they have much to gain personally and immediately by being immoderate.

'Slap in Face' PM's Response

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

It was the misfortune of the Indians and Inuit of this land that Canada, as a state, was settled and founded in its political, social and economic institutions by Western Europeans in an age of supreme and absolute Western European self-confidence. The Western Europeans, in the nineteenth century, before their assurance had been dented by two world wars, believed fervently that their mission was to civilize the world to bear the white man's burden, to impose their own political, moral and legal values on the rest of mankind, for its own good.

That is where the sorry record of the dealings between Canada and the native peoples began and where it went wrong. Like any record of human affairs it holds its share of cruelty, larceny, fraud and oppression of the weaker by the stronger. But it was the purportedly good intentions with which it was paved that determined where the road would lead.

We know the results. Schools, intended to be bridges from one culture to another, turned out to be barriers. Instruction conceived in ignorance of native cultures and values succeeded merely in demolishing the self-respect, confidence and capacity to learn of children whose human heritage those cultures and values were. Legal processes and codes based on private property and the adversary system were demoralizing to people whose moral sense had been shaped by communal ownership and the laws of consensus.

So it is small wonder that the fight of the native peoples in recent yers has been, not for any material standard of living, but for a greater voice in the shaping of the institutions that shape their lives; for native-run schools that meet the native child on his own ground and, instead of subjecting him to a culture-transplant, help him to develop the inner resources he already has; for local political institutions in which native people can be participants, rather than merely spectators and victims.

Clearly there have to be limits to this drive toward autonomy. And the proposal of the Dene and Inuit peoples of Northwest Territories for a federation of sovereign states based on races is—at least in the legal and political logic of the western mind—incompatible with a democratic and pluralist society. Apartheid is hardly a desirable model.

But what is disappointing in the federal government response is the form it took, one of those hard and, on their own terms, unassailable, chops of logic that are Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's favorite exercises in the martial arts.

The response was delivered in the manner of the adversary system to the proposals of peoples whose tradition is to pursue solutions by consensus, and to whom such a response comes as a slap in the face. That will hardly help in the search, with the Dene and the Inuit peoples, for the common ground on which their real-life objectives can be met within the terms of a pluralist society that rejects race as a political barrier.

This is not a seminar in logic or political science. It is a struggle by human beings to recover a fully human dignity and autonomy in a society in which they have too often found race to be, in practice if not in principle, a very solid and stubborn barrier that has kept them locked out.

Professional Classes Use Political Clout

KENNETH MACKENZIE
The Times of London

The contest in Ghana between the professional classes and the military regime seems to have ended in a draw, but it has been an extraordinary episode that must have wide reperciussions in Ghana and elsewhere.

Doctors, lawyers, engineers and other professional men felt able to stand eyeball to eyeball with the soldiers, demanding that they give way to civilian rule. "You have the guns, but you cannot govern without us," they said, and they stopped work to prove it.

In the end they backed down, agreed that Gen. Ignatius Acheampong should not resign immediately and accepted instead his promise that there would be a gradual return to some sort of civilian rule over the next two years.

The outcome is certainly a compliment to Ghana's traditions of peaceful and mature political debate; a "revolt of the intellectuals" would not have got far in Uganda, for instance. And to the extent that he has maintained these traditions, Gen. Acheampong emerges with credit.

However, the abiding lesson which makes it worth looking at these events in detail is that the professional classes have demonstrated they have muscles to flex. Next time a group of officers thinks of seizing power they will have to consider a new factor: Will the professional classes wear it?

Lawyers and doctors led the professional side, with students providing much of the power on the scrum, as it were. The lawyers have for years been urging a return to party politics — it is their game, after all — and last year the Bar Association passed a strong resolution demanding that a date in 1978 be set, and rejecting any ideas of "union government."

But it was at the beginning of this year, shortly after celebrations of the fifth anniversary of the coup, that things really began to go sour for the Acheampong regime, which had up to then a good deal to recommend it.

A severe food shortage — people actually starving in places in the north — was the main cause. Much of it could be blamed on two years of drought, but there is no doubt there was also mismanagement.

The students protested and the government reacted vigorously: in March Gen. Acheampong closed all the three universities and ordered the students to go into the country and help to grow some food.

This led to the first of three doctors' strikes. Senior men at the Legion medical school were worried about their students' examinations, for which distinguished external examiners had already come out to the country.

Their memos were unanswered and they were unable to see any of the military rulers. So they stopped work.

Almost immediately the universities were reopened. The government claimed it was giving way not to the doctors but to pleas from religious leaders and from the Asantehene (or king) of the Ashanti.

There was more trouble at the universities and the second doctors' strike arose because two professors at the medical school, who had been involved in the first imbroglio, were suddenly "retired." Again there was apparent success. The men were reinstated — "in the wisdom and magnanimity of the government," according to a later statement.

Other senior professional men were also mysteriously "retired," including the Chief Justice and the governor of the Bank of Ghana, and this led to protest stoppages by lawyers and bank clerks. It was at this time — toward the end of May — that an attempted coup ended in a bungled effort to take over Broadcasting House in Accra.

Nothing official was said and rumors about this and the retirements luxuriated. A draconian decree provided penalties of five years in prison for rumor-mongering.

The organization that now brought things to a crunch was the Professional Bodies' Association. This was originally set up simply to administer some property in Accra and bring into being a club for professionals; represented on it were doctors, lawyers, architects, engineers, planners, surveyors, chemists, accountants and veterinary surgeons.

Toward the end of June, it turned political — almost revolutionary — and passed an extraordinarily strongly worded resolution, condemning the government for incompetence and corruption, demanding that it resign before July 1, and threatening to strike if it did not.

The government did not give in to this ultimatum — there was surely never a chance that it would.

However, in a dawn broadcast on July 1, Gen. Acheampong did make a conciliatory gesture in promising to hold within nine months a referendum on the sort of civilian government Ghana wished to have.

This did not satisfy the professionals and things now became very tense, with widespread stoppages by lawyers, doctors, druggists and others. Twice electric power failed throughout the country, perhaps as a warning by engineers. Petrol stations ceased to work for some reason. There was a strike at an oil refinery because medical attention was not available.

On July 7 the government deprived the organizations of their legality by repealing the Professional Bodies Registration Decree and also froze their assets. The allegation was that some unnamed foreign power had "funnelled huge sums of money" to them.

Two days later the government issued a "stern and final warning" to all professional groups to return to work within 24 hours. It cancelled all army leave and promised it would not shirk its responsibility to maintain law and order.

In the end ultimatum gave way to negotiation, and Ghanain good sense produced a compromise. Gen. Acheampong, who has always said that the military realized they would not govern forever, made a concession in spelling out an exact timetable for a handover to the civilians within two years, and the professionals have gone back to work. But things will never be the same.

A Fresh, Clean Cortex

russell baker

In the 1950s the Central Intelligence Agency became intensely interested in brainwashing. It had heard that the Communists had a new washday product which could get brains twice as clean, and since the cold war was going full blast it naturally feared a dangerous brainwashing gap.

Allen W. Dulles, then Director of Central Intelligence, ordered a crash program. It was a normal reflex. People were always ordering crash programs in those days. It didn't matter that they often ended in crashes.

I remember the day Dulles ordered it. He was in his office looking for a banana republic to overthrow that weekend when his brain came back from the laundry. When he took it out of the package he was furious because it had ring around the medulla.

Moreover, in their efforts to get it sparkling clean, his brainwashers had used too much bleach, which had eroded the fabric and left both the id and the ego badly frayed. He summoned his brilliant assistant, Richard Bissell, and asked if he could borrow Bissell's brain to wear to a dinner that evening for Winston Churchill.

"Out of the question," said Bissell. "Those idiots washed in hot water with a red shirt, which ran all over the frontal lobes. You'd look like a rainbow."

"They don't call you brilliant for nothing, Bissell," said Dulles. This was where I came in. I didn't actually enter that vault of secrets, but sat in an ice cream parlor over a sundae when a cunning man with banana-republic dust on his armpit holster sat down beside me.

"How would you like some really hot action, Generalissimo?" he asked. Who wouldn't? He took me to a $15 million hotel suite which was supplied with LSD, rye whisky, loaded dice, copies of the Civil Service Gazette and stunning women who had been graded "prime" by the United States Department of Agriculture and certified loyal by the FBI.

The whole set-up would have cost a defence contractor maybe $350 tops. Since the host was paying $15 million for it, it took no deductive power at all to see that it was being run by the CIA. In jig time one of the women was running her fingers through the most primitive folds of my brain.

"My, what a nice fresh brain you have," she murmured.

"It's never been used," I boasted, yielding to the stupor of ecstasy. "What's more, it has the new button-down brain stem and the buttons haven't even been cracked."

When I awoke, my brain was being worn by Allen Dulles and Winston Churchill was sitting across the dinner table. "Is it true," asked Churchill, "that you cannot rent a hotel-suite full of dope, broads and booze for less than 15 million bucks?"

Dulles laughed. "Ho, ho ho." He was a great laugher, and also a great pipe smoker, whereas I am somewhat sour and like to chew gum. "I knew you weren't wearing your own brain tonight, Winnie," said Dulles. Ho ho ho. "Having a bit of trouble in the famous British Secret Service's brainwashing department, eh? Ho ho ho."

"Ho ho ho, yourself, you bloody idiot," said Churchill. "Sitting there chewing gum after every course and cracking that sour ho ho ho — it's a dead giveaway, mate. The great arsenal of intelligence is so far behind the Commies in the old skull scrub that you don't have a brain left that's fit to show its cortex at the May Day parade."

President Eisenhower, who had been drinking straight gin throughout the meal and was carrying on shamelessly with Queen Elizabeth, interrupted his horseplay to glare at us. "Button your lips, the two of you, or I'll throw your butts out of here," he snarled.

"You tell 'em, daddy baby," said the Queen, "and especially that ho ho ho creep. What kind of creep would chew gum after every course and not even offer a stick to the Queen?"

In short, the evening ended nastily. On arrival home, Mr. Dulles had a loosened tooth, the result of a surprisingly good right jab from President Eisenhower, and a cut on the cheek where Queen Elizabeth had struck him with a silver candlestick. In short, it wasn't nice. Government folks often aren't. National security and all that. Ho ho ho.

New Report on Dying

CALGARY (CP) — The Anglican Church of Canada decided Wednesday to rewrite a controversial report on death and dying to provide a "clear emphasis on the Christian concern for the sanctity of human life."

But sources said an interim report released earlier this year will not necessarily be discarded. Rather, the new report will clarify several points.

The report included a four-paragraph section suggesting infants with severe neurological defects be allowed to die.

H. R. S. Ryan, a Kingston, Ont., lawyer attending the church's 28th general synod as a lay delegate, said the report was negatively received because the media substituted the word retarded for defective.

"The children referred to in the report are those who, by reason of severe neurological defects, have no capacity to gain even a little bit of spiritual or intellectual life," he said.

"Such creatures are often described as vegetables. If there is even a remote possibility that the child may have even a little of the capacity, the task force recommends that its life be sustained."

The synod suggested in a resolution that the committee writing the report be encouraged to receive submissions from all interested bodies and individuals.

The committee, chaired by Winnipeg physician Dr. Lawrence Whytehead, was formed in 1975 to prepare a report on death and dying—"including the extension of life by mechanical and other means."

Whytehead told the synod the main thrust of the report is a plea for better care of the dying and suggestions on how to achieve that objective.

Among recommendations in the report was a call for the church to support and encourage hospitals to set up palliative care units similar to those now in operation at Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal and St. Boniface Hospital in Winnipeg.

It also suggested the church make continuing representations to provincial governments for the provision on a growing scale of small, independent units for the care of terminally ill patients.

The church was also urged to ask professional associations to initiate programs of continuing education for doctors and nurses "to develop more skilful and compassionate care of the dying and bereaved."

Final Push Starts On Language Bill

QUEBEC (CP) — Action came on three fronts Wednesday in the intensifying political battle over the government's proposed language legislation, Bill 101.

Gearing for what promises to be an exhausting final push to have the bill adopted by the end of next week, Parti Quebecois whip Jerome Proulx has even drawn up a plan, entitled "Changing of the Guard," providing for a rotation of the troops on the different theatres.

The plans sets down the duty tours of government members in the assembly and on the committee studying the language bill clause by clause.

Developments Wednesday included:

—A motion announced by Government House leader Robert Burns calling for the extension of assembly sitting hours and restricting of debating time until Bill 101 is passed;

—Tabling by Cultural Development Minister Camille Laurin of two sets of regulations pertaining to the language bill;

—Sluggish progress of the bill in committee where it got bogged down in debate over a clause that would force municipal administrations and school boards, catering to a mainly English clientele to use French when communicating in writing with each other.

Debate on the Burns motion begins today and could continue into early next week.

Burns said he was taking these steps "regretfully" and only after having failed in two attempts at striking a bargain with opposition leaders to get the bill passed by Aug. 26.

Federal Intrusion Protested

QUEBEC (CP) — The 13th annual provincial municipal affairs minister's conference concluded Wednesday with a protest against federal intervention in provincial jurisdiction.

At a news conference following their meeting, the ministers expressed concern about burgeoning federal programs at municipal levels.

"These intrusions into areas of provincial jurisdiction are achieved through federal fiscal power," they said in a statement.

Any imbalance would be better resolved by unconditional payments to the provinces to be used according to provincial priorities."

The ministers also criticized the federal government for failing to follow up on earlier commitments for financial assistance, particularly in the area of transportation.

SST CLEARED . . . FOR NOW

WASHINGTON (WP) — Proponents of the Concorde jet won a minor and probably temporary victory Wednesday when a district court judge in New York ruled that the supersonic plane could begin test landings in New York's Kennedy Airport in 10 days.

Judge Milton J. Pollack's 40-page decision overturned a 17-month-old ban against Concorde landings at Kennedy, calling the ban "discriminatory and unfair." The decision charged that the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, which issued the ban in March 1976 and extended it indefinitely earlier this year, has been "replowing old ground" in extending the ban for further testing of the jet's impact on the environment.

Keg Restaurants

Net operating income of Keg Restaurants Ltd. increased by 70 per cent in the first six months of 1977 to $267,845 or 12 cents a share, from $156,682 or seven cents a share a year earlier. The company said that other income, representing mainly a gain on the sale of one-half interest in an Ontario company to CARA Operations Ltd., raised total earnings in the latest period to $415,380 or 18 cents a share. Total sales of the Keg system were $12,201,840 in the 1.77 six months, compared with $9,584,623 last year. Four new restaurants have been opened to date bringing the total to 25. Four more are being built and are expected to open before the end of the year.

Granisle Copper

Granisle Copper Ltd. reports net earnings of $104,000 or three cents a share for the nine months ended June 30, compared with a loss of $279,000 or eight cents a share, in the corresponding period last year. Revenue totaled $15,873,000, compared with $13,689,000. The decline was blamed on low copper prices. "In the current quarter there has been a downward trend (in copper prices) declining from an average of approximately 65 cents United States for April 1977 to 62 cents in May, and 60 cents in June, thus depressing revenue in the third quarter," said R. P. Taylor, president.

Bethlehem Copper

Bethlehem Copper Corp. reports net earnings of $639,000 or 10.2 cents a share for the six months ended June 30, 1977, down from $1.4 million or 21.7 cents a share during the same period last year. The company reported the drop in earnings despite an increase in net revenue to $21.8 million in the first half of 1977 from $16.3 million in the first half of 1976. Members of the Canadian Association of Industrial Mechanical and Allied Workers now are on strike against the company.

Bank of B.C.

The Bank of British Columbia reports bank's assets of $1.2 billion as of July 31, up 33.9 per cent from assets of $802 million reported July 31, 1976. In reporting the bank's performance for the nine months ended July 31, chief executive officer T. W. Pilley said deposits with the bank have also passed the $1 billion mark, reaching $1,001,879,000 as of July 31. That represents a 33.9 per cent increase since deposits were reported as $748 million on July 31, 1976. He reported that the balance of revenue was $3.31 a share, up from $2.64 a share during the same nine-month period last year.

Granduc Mines

Granduc Mines Ltd. reports a loss of $985,128 or 31 cents a share for the six months ended June 30, 1977 compared with a loss of $521,114 during the same period last year. Company president J. Norman Hyland said the results are particularly discouraging given the satisfactory production performance during the second quarter at the Granduc mine. Operations achieved a daily milling average of 4,286 tons, up from 3,967 tons in the first quarter, he said. Hyland said the world commodity price for copper has been depressed for two years and there is no improvement in sight.

Agra Industries

The vegetable refining and packaging facilities of Agra Industries Ltd. in Western Canada have been purchased by CSP Foods Ltd. The purchase includes all assets of Westminster Foods Ltd., Agra's Vancouver subsidiary engaged in packaging and distributing margarine, shortening and salad oils, as well as Agra's 50 per cent interest in Nipawin Edible Oils Ltd., the vegetable oil refining partnership of the two companies. Agra said it decided to divest itself of its remaining vegetable oil processing activities to concentrate in other areas of development. CSP, on its part, said it was pleased to take on the marketing challenges involved. The value of the sale was not announced.

Laurentide

Laurentide Financial Corp. Ltd. has reported consolidated earnings of $[illegible]5,0000, or 67.9 cents a share, for the six months ended June 30. Up from $2,095,000, or 50.7 cents a share, in the corresponding period last year.

Finance receivables at June 30 totalled $430 million, up 5.3 per cent from $408 million in the first six months of 1976.

The company said commerical paper borrowings amounted to $171 million June 30, and were covered by unused bank lines of credit and short-term investments in excess of 130 per cent of the commercial paper outstanding.

Revenue Properties

Revenue Properties Co. Ltd. reports revenues of $13,856,000 for the first six months of this year compared with $14,508,000 for the same period last year. Profit before provision for loss on an extraordinary item was $99,000 or seven cents a share, compared with a restated income of $100,000 or seven cents a share for the same period in 1976. Net loss after inclusion of the extraordinary item was $1,651,000 or 11.7 cents a share. The company said it has decided to abandon long-standing efforts to develop a large part of its property in Uxbridge Township, known originally as Century City, and has written it down as an extraordinary item in the current period by about $3.5 million before taxes.

Nabors Drilling

Nabors Drilling Ltd. of Calgary has announced unaudited net earnings of $4,653,133 or $4.43 per share for the nine-month period ended June 30, 1977, an increase of 83 per cent from the earnings of $2,539,779 or $2.44 per share of the same period a year ago. Company chairman Clair Nabors attributed the record profit performance to the unusually busy third-quarter activity experienced by the Canadian drilling division and the Alaska hauling division.

Syncrude Plans Major Boost

EDMOMTON (CP)— Syncrude Canada Ltd., well on its way to achieving production next year, is thinking in terms of a major expansion — perhaps as early as 1984.

The participants in the Athabasca Oil Sands Consortium have included funding in the 1978 budget to continue studies into the possibility of a plant expansion in 1984, a company official said, Tuesday.

One proposal for expansion could increase the rated capacity of the 125,000-barrel-a-day plant by as much as 50 per cent if oil sands reserves in the vicinity of the plant and technological compatibility with the base plant are adequate.

The expansion would require an investment, possibly approaching $1 billion, in addition to the $2.1 billion required to bring the base plant into operation next year.

The studies into the plant expansion are low key at this point and are not a major cost item, said Brent Scott, president of Syncrude.

"We want to do the work, such as drilling to test the extent of oil sands reserves, so that we could achieve an expansion in 1984 if we wanted it," Scott said.

The participants will not grant internal approval of any future start up date for an expanded plant until it has been determined that the start up of the base plant will not be affected.

Syncrude will also want operating experience with the base plant before any decision on expansion can be made, Scott said.

The main plant would have to be operating successfully before any application would be made for the provincial government for necessary permits to begin planning an actual expansion.

The current studies, which have been considering future expansion for some time, are a means of keeping Syncrude's future options open.

Certain work has to be done in terms of the size of the oil sands reserve and size of equipment in view of the long lead time required in undertaking a major expansion, if that was desired by the consortium participants.

Anti-Dumping Law Invoked on Bikes

TORONTO (CP) — A federal anti-dumping duty has been imposed on bicycles and bicycle parts imported from Taiwan and South Korea, the Canadian Bicycle Manufacturers' Association reported today.

The action follows a complaint last year by the association that the industry was being hurt by dumping, a practice under which a manufacturer sells a product in another country at a price lower than it would have sold in the country where it was made.

William Rosenfeld, spokesman for the association, said one example was a 10-speed bicycle purchased from a manufacturer in Taiwan for $36.16.

An investigation by the department of national revenue found that bicycles, frames, forks, steel hardlebars and wheels, not including tires and tubes, were being dumped in Canada.

Statistics Canada figures show that 852,000 bicycles were imported in 1976, 296,000 of them from Taiwan and 51,000 from South Korea.

OTTAWA (CP) — Michelin Tires Canada Ltd. has doubled the size of its expansion program at Granton, N.S., and Bridgewater.

An announcement made by the regional economic expansion department said the company will receive $4.6 million under the Regional Development Incentives Act.

It had been originally offered incentives of $2.4 million under the act for expansion of its Nova Scotia tire manufacturing facilities.

Amendments to the government offer have recently been signed because the value of the company's expansion program has increased to about $25 million from $12.1 million.

MacEachen said the revised expansion program is expected to create 395 new jobs.

All the increased production is intended for Canadian markets.

Stereo Price-Fixing Trial Date Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — A trial date of Oct. 3 was set Wednesday for the parent companies of Kelly's and House of Stein stereo stores on charges of attempted price fixing.

Steintron Interelectronics Ltd., Kelly-Deyong Sound, Pro-Sound Distributors, Karl Stein and Ben Tessler, all of Vancouver, will appear in Vancouver provincial court on charges under the Combines Investigation Act of attempting to set minimum prices and discounts on sound equipment.

The crown alleges attempts were made to induce retailers to maintain certain price and discount minimums, and that retailers who didn't comply were refused stereo stock.

FIRM MAY LOSE LICENCE

OTTAWA (CP) — A cable television firm in White Rock may lose its broadcasting licence unless its local programming is improved.

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission said Wednesday in announcing approval of an increase in the monthly subscriber fee that although the company was allowed to carry local advertising on an experimental basis, new cable television regulations provide that the community channel should remain free of commercial advertising.

Following a public hearing in May, the CRTC said the firm "had offered no community programming whatsoever to its subscribers."

PCB Hearing Slated

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP) — The pollution control branch will hold a public hearing Wednesday at McLeese Lake to hear complaints about a board permit allowing B.C. Hydro to bury contaminated soil at the nearby Sheridan Creek capacitor station.

The soil is contaminated with the toxic chemical polychlorinated biphemyls (PCB) which leaked into it from electrical capacitors that had been buried several years ago outside the Sheridan Creek station. The capacitors have since been shipped to a United States disposal site, but area residents fear that the PCB-contaminated soil will affect their water supply.

Lockout Notice

BURNABY (CP) — Simon Fraser University delivered lockout notice Wednesday to more than 650 library, clerical and technical workers at the university.

Notice was given after Local 2 of the Association of University and College Employees gave 72-hour strike notice to the university in a contract dispute.

A strike could take place after noon Saturday.

An SFU spokesman said the university does not want a strike or rotating job action but added the university must be prepared for anything planned by the union.

A union spokesman said the union has been without a contract since Nov. 22, 1976.

Union and university representatives are scheduled to meet Aug. 25 with mediator Jack Waterston who would have to be asked to step down before either strike or lockout action can be taken.

Loan for Livestock

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Development Corporation said Wednesday it is providing a $1,100,000 loan guarantee to Conagra Resource Management Corporation, a wholly-owned subsidiary of the B.C. Livestock Producers' Association.

LOTO HOAX BARED

SURREY (CP) — RCMP here have words of caution for anyone hoarding old Loto Canada ticket stubs and hoping for a miracle — stay away from Vancouver International Airport.

A police spokesman said Wednesday that somebody in the Vancouver area is operating a unique scheme. The man calls up a telephone number at random and tells the person answering that he or she has just won a consolation $500 savings bond because Loto failed to sell the winning ticket on a $1 million prize.

The delighted recipient is advised that a cab will arrive shortly to take him to Vancouver International Airport for a formal presentation ceremony.

No one knows for sure what happens after that because nobody has followed along. But in several cases cabs actually have arrived at homes, the spokesman said.

He said the whole thing may simply be a plan to get people out of their homes so burglars can go to work or it may just be a practical joke.

Big Switch Done by April Says Fraser

The transfer of all public works employees who are to go to the newly-created B.C. Buildings Corp. will be completed by April 1, 1978, Public Works Minister Alex Fraser told the legislature Wednesday.

The minister said that 735 persons will lose their jobs rather than the 800 predicted when the corporation was formed earlier this year.

In reply to questions from Conservative leader Scott Wallace, Fraser noted that under an agreement negotiated with the B.C. Government Employees Union, "transfer of union employees to BCBC will be based on qualifications, seniority and location."

"Competition for positions is confined to management jobs excluded from the collective agreement," the minister said.

The government has promised that no jobs will be lost as a result of the new Crown corporation, and Fraser said Wednesday the 735 who will not go to the corporation will be offered early retirement, if they are over 55 years of age with more than 10 years service, severance pay or another job with the government. Public works critic Emery Barnes (NDP—Vancouver Centre) expressed concern about "lesks or any difficulties that may arise as a consequence" of hiring a contractor for janitorial work in the Legislative Buildings and the legislative precinct.

"There'll be no contracting out of the maintenance work in this precinct or in this building," Fraser replied.

Dennis Cocke (NDP — New Westminster) prediced the transfer of public works employees to the corporation will prove costly, because "the minister is going to be spending a lot more money for contract services than what he would spend if he was directly employing the people to provide those services."

Arsenal Claim Shot Down

It was the million bullet misunderstanding.

Dennis Cocke (NDP-New Westminster) asked in the legislature Wednesday why the provincial secretary's department had just purchased and stockpiled a million rounds of small arms ammunition.

In Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy's temporary absence, Attorney-General Garde Gardom said he'd look into the matter.

McCarthy, however, called a news conference in the afternoon to explain that the mysterious ammunition dump was nothing more than a routine purchase by the provincial emergency program.

McCarthy said the .22-calibre bullets were to be used exclusively for target practice by auxiliary police forces.

"It's not unusual," she said.

House Pages Hot, Getting Hotter

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

Legislative pages will have to sweat it out in their uncomfortable uniforms this summer because the government thinks it would be unseemly for the youngsters to appear in the house in shirt sleeves.

The dozen pages, led by Sgt. George Cessford, 15, failed Wednesday in their second attempt to have the dress code relaxed so they could shuck their heavy wool jackets.

Last Thursday Cessford formally asked Ed Smith to let the pages shed their jackets.

"He turned us down," said Cessford. "He said if he has to wear a uniform, why shouldn't we."

On Tuesday Cessford began a lobby in the legislative corridors where reporters mill about waiting for ministers to enter the house.

"Why don't you do a story?" he asked. "These uniforms are hot . . . it's archaic, it's cruel."

And when the media turned a deaf ear, Cessford intensified his effort.

On Wednesday he told a circle of 10 or more reporters the story of the week was sitting right under their noses.

"These uniforms were hot in January, imagine what they're like now."

He finally got a reaction. NDP house leader Bill King overheard the complaints, and minutes later raised the matter in the legislature.

King asked the Speaker to let them remove their tunics and pointed out that numerous MLAs were without jackets.

Smith refused.

"It is the custom of this legislature that we wear appropriate dress," he said.

King tried again, this time making his request a motion and asking unanimous leave of the house.

The "ayes" were thunderous, but mixed in there somewhere was a faint "Nay" from the government benches and that's all it took. The pages had to keep their thick, navy-blue jackets on, and they had to do them up to the last button.

"Pick on the kids," shouted NDP leader Dave Barrett.

"What is this, the end of the government? Let the kids take their coats off!"

But the government, which is proud of the fact that none of its members are in shirt sleeves in the legislature was unmoved.

Outside the house, Cessford said:

"It's us doing the sweating. It's us doing the running up and down the stairs with their notes and they're sitting in the chairs."

LEA

More Hassling For Youth—Lea

The Social Credit government's Liquor Control Act amendments will encourage more harassment of young people by the police, the opposition charged Wednesday.

Speaking during detailed debate on Bill 81, the Liquor Control and Licensing Amendment Act, Graham Lea (NDP — Prince Rupert) attacked the government for a clause that gives police greater search and seizure powers.

Under the new legislation police can search individuals who they suspect are in possession of alcohol. In the past searches have been restricted to cars, boats and property.

"If you put this through young people will lose respect for the law," Lea said. "This is just an absolutely insane thing for a legislature to do. The harassment of young people by the police happens every day out there in the community . . . people are stopped only because they have long hair."

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair said the house has to make up its mind whether or not to squarely face "the rampant juvenile drinking problem in this province."

Mair said that when he was younger he was searched by the police, "and I was searched before it was legal."

"We must give police these reasonable powers."

"Do you think you're going to solve the juvenile drinking problem through harassment?" asked Gary Lauk (NDP — Vancouver Centre).

Lauk said Mair's bill would only compound the problem by turning young people against police.

Bill 81 was later passed without change to the contentious clause.

Hanna in Charge

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — Maj.-Gen. James Hanna assumed command Wednesday of the Air Defence Group and the 22nd region of the North American Air Defence Command, succeeding Maj.-Gen. R. F. Herbert. Hanna was a military attache in Paris from July, 1975, until his appointment. Herbert, retired after a 37-year career, was born in Pakistan and served with the Royal Air Force before joining the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Pesticide Law 'Stacked Deck'

The legislature gave the Pesticide Control Act second reading on a vote of 23 to 13 after heated opposition Wednesday.

The bill tightens regulations covering the use of pesticides and would make individuals, companies and Crown corporations accountable to an administrator who may issue or revoke a permit for application of pesticides or herbicides.

It also sets up an appeal procedure similar to that of the Pollution Control Board by creating a pesticide control appeal board.

New Westminster NDP MLA Dennis Cocke said it is a stacked deck bill because the costs of the appeal are to be borne by the appellant.

He suggested that if Forestry Minister Tom Waterland wanted to pursue his Spruce Budworm spraying program, and it were opposed, he could fly in experts from China, Europe and the U.S., and those appealing the program would have to pay the costs.

Cocke said the PCB, set up by the previous Social Credit administration, provided a licence to pollute, and now there will be a "licence to poison."

Environment critic Bob Skelly (NDP — Alberni) accused the minister of having little concern for the environment.

"This bill restricts citizen involvement in the whole pesticide application field," he said. "It should be withdrawn, re-written and presented during another session.

Six Names Added In FANDU Case

VANCOUVER (CP) — Education Minister Pat McGeer is not alone in facing charges levelled by the Faculty Association of Notre Dame University (FANDU).

The association's recent complaint to the B.C. Labor Relations Board has been expanded to include: Walter Hardwick, deputy education minister; Jim Bennett, McGeer's executive assistant; Bill Armstrong, Universities Council of B.C. chairman; Brian Wilson, Simon Fraser University academic vice-president; Dr. Dan Birch, SFU associate vice-president, all of whom have been included in FANDU's complaint to the board.

FANDU says all have violated section 5 of the provincial Labor Code which prohibits "intimidation of any kind that could resonably have the effect of compelling or inducing any person to . . . refrain from becoming, or to continue or to cease to be, a member of a trade union.

FANDU is a directly-chartered local of the Canadian Labor Congress. Its complaint it based on statements by all of the individuals to the effect that continued post-secondary education at NDU in Nelson would, at the least, be seriously jeopardized by the existence of a unionized faculty association.

The complaint refers to Bill 68, introduced by McGeer in June. The bill would abolish all certification and collective bargaining rights held by the association, while re-naming the Nelson institution the David Thompson University Centre.

The association charges that members of the NDU faculty have been warned that to keep their jobs they must get rid of FANDU. And to back up its contention, its submission to the labor board documents a long series of statements on the situation at NDU. These statements include those made by McGeer and the others, which FANDU said "threatened the faculty members' jobs and have tried to blame the faculty members and their union in the eyes of the community for the closure of the university at Nelson."

Parole Adviser

OTTAWA (CP) — Jack Hollies 62, has been appointed senior legal advisor for the national parole board, it was announced Wednesday. Hollies will be involved in negotiations for exchange of prisoners between Canada and other countries and legal matters arising from the new parole act.

It Was a Bright Night for the Lions

British Columbia Lions moved into a tie for first place in the Western Football Conference Wednesday night, defeating Winnipeg Blue Bombers 25-17 at Winnipeg.

Leon Bright led the B.C. offence with a pair of touchdowns, one on a 65-yard pass-and-run play from quarterback Jerry Tagge. The other came on a spectacular 100-yard kickoff return.

Mike Strickland got the other Lions' touchdown on a three-yard plunge in the second quarter. Placekicker Lui Passaglia booted a field goal, three converts and a single.

Gord Paterson got Winnipeg's only touchdown, a 13-yard pass in the third quarter from Harry Knight. Bernie Ruoff contributed three field goals, a convert and a single to the Bombers' cause.

The win gave the Lions eight points, the same as Edmonton Eskimos.

The Bombers had good scoring opportunities in the first quarter, raising the hopes of the capacity crowd of 25,210. But they had to fall back each time on the placekicking skills of Ruoff. He booted a 32-yard field goal at 4:54, and followed with a booming kickoff that Rocky Long conceded for a single.

Ruoff's next placement came after Merv Walker intercepted a Tagge pass on the B.C. 30-yard line and ran it for seven yards. After an incomplete pass on a second down play, Ruoff connected on a 25-yard field goal at 9:34.

The Lions got on the scoreboard at 14:15 of the first quarter with a 40-yard field goal by Passaglia.

Late in the quarter, Tagge connected with Al Sharuk on a 42-yard passing play that brough the Lions to the Winnipeg two-yard line.

Strickland carried over left tackle for the touchdown at 13:47.

As the third quarter opened, Tagge threw a long pass to Bright. Defensive halfback Walker lost track of Bright and tried to knock down the pass but missed. Bright was home free for a 65-yard touchdown at 2:57.

The Bombers came back with a 39-yard passing play to Jay Washington and a 31-yard pass that Tom Scott caught with a spectacular dive. Knight then hit Paterson on a 13-yard touchdown pass at 11:51.

It was on the following kickoff that Bright, moving through heavy traffic and then breaking loose down the sidelines to outrun the last two Winnipeg defenders, chalked up his 100-yard touchdown dash.

Statistically, the Bombers dominated the game, collecting 21 first downs against 10 by B.C., and gaining a total 356 yards in net offence. That compared to 199 yards total offence by the Lions.

Knight threw 34 passes and completed 21 for a total 297 yards, while Tagge connected on just nine of 21 tries for 172 yards.

In Toronto, it was a memorable night for veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster. He had four interceptions but also threw a 29-yard deciding touchdown pass that gave Saskatchewan Roughriders a 27-26 victory over Toronto Argonauts.

Lancaster hit Steve Mazurak with a minute and four seconds left to play to clinch the win. The roughriders relied almost exclusively on their aerial attack, gaining just 20 yards on the ground.

"It was me who put us on the hook in the first place," said Lancaster. "You have to get lucky sometime and the touchdown pass wasn't pretty, but it's two points."

The Argos had a 12-point edge in the third quarter but Steve Molnar narrowed the gap with a three-yard touchdown run. A single by Zenon Andrusyshyn gave Toronto a 26-20 edge but Lancaster found Mazurak in the open for the game-winning touchdown.

Moody Jackson caught an 18-yard Lancaster pass for a touchdown in the first quarter. The Roughriders had moved to the Toronto eight on a 98-yard punt return by Paul Williams. A touchdown pass to Steve Molnar on the next play was wiped out by a holding penalty, but Lancaster came back with the scoring strike to Jackson.

Bob Macoritti converted the three Saskatchewan touchdowns and added a pair of field goals.

The Toronto touchdowns came on a seven-yard scramble by quarterback Chuck Ealey and a three-yard run by Neil Lumsden. Andrusyshyn had three field goals, three singles and a pair of converts.

Andrusyshyn's second field goal, which came after Jim Marshall intercepted a Lancaster pass at mid-field, made him the all-time Argo scoring leader with 543 points, one more than the career record of Dick Shatto, former offensive back and now the team's general manager.

Speaking of the Cup, Time for Another Look

Speaking of the Mann Cup, a couple of names cropped up.

The Mann Cup? That's for the national lacrosse championship and a series Victoria Shamrocks hope to become engaged in come the first week in September.

It's been here before. Twice in fact, although for most observers it's pretty hard to remember when. It's been that long ago. Would you believe 20 years?

Ed Kowalyk, a member of the Shamrock board and a former coach and player, was on the team that won the championship here in 1957.

That marked the second occasion. The first time was two years earlier.

In between, it was still an Island show. Nanaimo Timbermen kept the cup on the Island with a victory in 1956; and that was the heyday of the sport here it will be said by those who were around then. And who's to argue?

One fellow who will agree is Jackie Northup. Yes, big Jack had a great series here against the Long Branch Pontiacs and was named winner of the Mike Kelly medal as most valuable to his team. And he's in the hall-of-fame now.

Whitey Severson, that alderman chap, was the coach. He could play a little, too, and also made it into the Hall.

Peewee Bradshaw was the team captain and a popular performer — all five feet six of him (or as it "five"?). Peewee, it will be recalled, was later killed in an automobile accident on the Malahat; and the esteem in which he was held is still marked by the Shamrocks in that one of their club trophies is named after him.

Big Bert Bertoia was also on that club. He had come down from the interior to make his name here. Later, he coached the team. And there was Lew Landess, Bill Bamford, the two Greens, both Art, Don Sherry, Allan Gill . . . and who can forget goalkteper Geordie Johnston? He was one of many fine Irish 'keepers over the years. And Freddie Wooster.

Tom Druce? I think he was hurt at the time of the final.

Actually, for the Rocks it was tougher getting there than it was winning the cup.

First, they had to get by Nanaimo and that was easier said than done. It took seven games, and if you think the Burrards-Shamrocks games are bitter now, the Timbermen-Rocks battles of 20 years ago had their moments.

Victoria had the final-game edge and the Arena was filled to capacity. Victoria won 8-6 and out of deference to their foes and because their talent was respected, three Nanaimo players joined the Irish for the cup final.

They were Arnie Dugan (named this week to the Hall of Fame), Skip McKay and Gogie Stewart.

The series wasn't much. Long Branch really wasn't prepared and shouldn't have been here. Peterborough won the East but balked at the playoff dates. The Canadian Lacrosse Association wouldn't stand for any nonsense, suspended the Petes and sent the Pontiacs in their place.

Staffer Ernie Fedoruk was telling it like it was, with cliches. "It might be said," he penned, "that the Pontiacs ran out of gas." They never did get their tanks topped. They went quietly in four games. Or maybe the Rocks were that good. Who knows? They were definitely a power.

So Victoria was a national name in lacrosse then, as it was again last year when McDonalds won the Minto Cup to put the town back on the map.

Speaking of juniors, while the Rocks were winning at home in '57 the junior Rocks were seeking the Minto Cup in the East. But they couldn't get by Brampton and lost in six games. Archie Browning was in charge of their fortunes; and he's another ex-Rock and in the Hall with the others.

Otherwise, the town was just about the same. And things were hot. While the Rocks were celebrating their Mann Cup victory the Plumper Bay Sawmill was going up in flames. Smoked picnics were going for 47 cents a pound, chuck roasts at 33, a new hat was worth $4.99 and the car buff could get a shiny Plymouth for around $3,000.

It was the era of the swim craze and a plaque was about to be dedicated in Beacon Hill Park commemorating Marilyn Bell's feat of swimming the Strait of Juan de Fuca. Marilyn? She was making plans to get married in the East.

So that was a month from the past.

Now it's back to reality and the Rocks and Burrards getting serious about who will represent the West in this year's cup final.

After 20 years, it's about time.

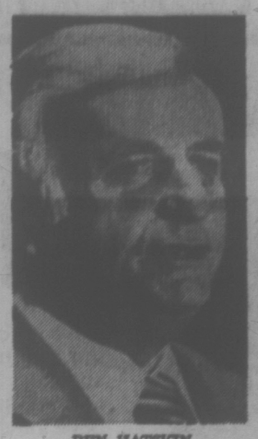
Oilers' Owner Quits WHA, Seeks Colarado Franchise



BEN HATSKIN
. . . to protect rights

MONTREAL (CP)—Maybe within the next couple of days Peter Pocklington, co-owner of Edmonton Oilers, will change his mind about the Alberta club's participation in the World Hockey Association.

But, at the momen, the Oilers are a team without a league to play in for 1977-78 and will not be one of at least seven teams in the WHA next season.

Pocklington stormed out of the WHA's annual meeting after the league would not meet what they felt were "extreme player demands."

"We have now been eliminated from the WHA picture," Pocklington said. "Edmonton is fighting for its life to get an NHL franchise. We gave the league an ultimatum that we didn't want to be a part of a league of second-class citizens."

Basically, the Oilers' ultimatum was that Edmonton should be given first right of refusal in a dispersal draft if and when some WHA clubs decided not to operate. The WHA owners would not agree to this and now it seems the Oilers will spend the next few days trying to acquire the troubled Colorado Rockies' NHL concession.

The Rockies lost $2.5 million last season after the franchise was shifted to Denver from Kansas City.

Nelson Skalbania, the other Oilers' co-owner, said Tuesday that the Rockies had sold just 2,300 tickets and added that he had talked with Colorado owner Jack Vickers who seemed "very interested" in selling the club.

But any attempts by the Oilers to acquire the Rockies and move them to Edmonton will be fought by the WHA, Ben Hatskin, the WHA's chairman of the board said.

"We plan to protect our territorial rights," said Hatskin. "The Edmonton market has a 15,500-seat arena. They have what is known to be one of the best markets in hockey, football or horse racing."

But what the WHA's territorial rights are in Edmonton are questionable and whether they can keep the market for themselves is another story.

"We will have our legal people study it," said Hatskin.

It is unlikely the NHL, which has had to fight the WHA in the courts several times since the birth of the league, would want to get involved in any further legal hassles.

Therefore the NHL would want to make sure there would be no lawsuits before approving any sale of the Rockies to the Edmonton group, which lost at least $11 million in the WHA last year.

Ray Miron said that, as general manager of the Rockies, he could not believe "that we'll move from Denver."

Miron said that Vickers, who now is on holidays, "has made arrangements for this season and we've been pushing hard for our season tickets."

If the Oilers and Rockies reach an agreement, it is still subject to the approval by the NHL board which holds its semi-annual meetings in Toronto beginning next Wednesday.

The WHA announced that Hatskin will remain chairman of the board with Howard Baldwin, managing general partner of the Whalers, assuming the league presidency.

Bill McFarland, past WHA president, will serve as the league's general counsel. Larry Gordon will be the WHA's executive director.

Hatskin announced that Birmingham will not be able to use Ken Linseman, an 18-year-old forward signed from Kingston Canadians of the Ontario Major Junior Hockey League.

There had been a threat from Alan Eagleson of Hockey Canada that the WHA's North American games against the Europeans would not be played if the Bulls used Linseman.

Grundison Captures Two Swimming Medals

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Ontario athletes flexed their muscles in and on the water Wednesday to win six of eight swimming gold medals and six of nine canoeing golds at the Canada Summer Games.

Barb Olmstead of North Bay spearheaded the canoeing triumph for Ontario winning three events to celebrate her 18th birthday.

In the pool, Sheila Dezeeuw of Stoney Creek set a Games and an 11-12 age-class national record in the 100-metre breaststroke. She sliced a second and a half off the Games record she established earlier in the day, finishing in one minute, 16.35 seconds.

Peter Szmidt of Pointe Claire, Que. spoiled Ontario's bid for a sweep of the swimming golds by setting a Games record of 54.09 in the men's 100-metre freestyle and then anchoring the Quebec men's 800-metre freestyle relay team to a gold medal win. He took the lead in the final 25 metres.

Victoria's Rob Grundison captured a pair of medals for B.C. in the swimming competition, winning a bronze in the 400-metre individual medley and helping the provincial team to a silver in the 800-metre freestyle relay.

Carole Vanier of Montreal won the gold in the women's cycling time trial, battling strong winds to finish in 35:17.05.

Quebec and Ontario divers shared gold medals, Gilles Bilodeau, 16, of Chicoutimi winning the men's 10-metre event on the final dive while Janice Dalrymple, 15, of London won the women's one-metre event.

Muscles landed Ontario's soccer team in a controversy as the Yukon forfeited its final scheduled match blaming injuries suffered to a couple of players in a 19-0 loss to Ontario and an 8-0 loss to Saskatchewan as the reason for not being able to continue.

The powerful Newfoundland soccer team was the Yukon's final opponent and the forfeited gave gave it a 5-0 won-lost record. Newfoundland, Quebec—also undefeated—Ontario, British Columbia advanced to the medal playoffs today.

In canoeing, Olmstead won the women's kayak singles in 2:40.5, shared in Ontario's kayak-fours win in 2:18.5 and paired with Liz Arnold of Ottawa to take the kayak pairs in 2:29.1.

Mike Hurley of Mississauga, Ont., won the men's canoe singles in 2:44.8. Ian Crowley of Mississauga and Andrew Sheppard of Carleton Place took the kayak pairs in 2:07.5.

Gord Brown and Mike Matthews, both of Gananoque, teamed with Crowley and Sheppard in the men's kayak fours to win the gold in 2:07.5.

Nova Scotia took two of the three other canoeing golds. Randy McDonald and David McNaughton, both of Waverley, won the men's canoe pairs in 2:25.8 and Donald Brien of Dartmouth won the kayak singles in 2:39.2.

Quebec's foursome of Steve Botting and Eric Vibert, both of Montreal, and Marc Granger of Lachine and George Jones of Chateauguay won the canoe fours in 2:32.9.

Dezeeuw, who got a standing ovation from the more than 4,-000 spectators when her age-class mark was announced, set a torrid pace from the start.

Benn One-Man Bombing Crew

Randy Benn provided Victoria Athletics with a one-man offensive force Wednesday in the second game of a best-of-five Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League playoff semi-final series at Central Park.

Athletics took a 2-0 lead in the series by downing Colony Inn 3-1.

Benn hit a triple in the top of the first inning, scored on a fielders' choice and then connected for a double in the fifth inning to drive in the other two runs.

Ken Fox struck out eight batters while yielding three bases on balls and six hits to earn the victory.

The series continues Friday at Central Park while Seaboard Construction, a 2-0 leader in the other series, takes on league-champion Sooke Merchants tonight at Sooke Athletic Park at 6:30.

At Heywood Avenue Park, Marv Carver helped Capital Builders to a 3-2 victory over Remco Office Systems and a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five Heywood MCen's League semi-finals.

Carver drove in Greg Smith, who had doubled, with a home run in the third inning to give Builders a 2-1 lead and hurled a seven-hitter for the pitching win.

Al McDonald led off the fourth inning with a single and then scored what proved to be the winning run on a sacrifice by Smith.

The third game in the other series, between Castle Properties and Century Inn, is scheduled for 6:30 tonight.

Cables Rally To Win Opener

BURNABY (CP) — Burnaby Cablevision defeated New Westminster Junior Salmonbellies 16-11 Wednesday in the first game of their best-of-seven Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League final series.

New Westminster scored four times before Burnaby found the mark, and led 5-2 at the end of the first period. But Burnaby came back in the second to take a 9-8 lead into the final frame.

Burnaby's Rod Banister stopped 37 shots and added two assists while Jim Poelzer made 44 saves and contributed four assists to New Westminster's losing effort.

The series resumes Friday in New Westminster.

Gorge Captures Title

It went the limit, thanks mainly to pitcher Roy Moretti of Greaves Movers, but Gorge Hotel finally captured the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League playoff championship Wednesday at Lambrick Park.

Gorge tripped Greaves 12-3 in the deciding game of a best-of-five series and added the playoff title to league laurels for the second straight year.

Derek Drinkwater earned the pitching victory by firing a three-hitter and Gorge came up with 11 hits while blitzing Greaves.

Moretti, who pitched four of the five games for Greaves with a 2-2 record, showed some of the strain and gave up seven hits, including a two-run homer by Mike Squire, and five runs before being relieved by Rick Mark in the fifth inning.

Mark, making only his second appearance of the season, got the last out in the fifth but was blasted for seven runs in the sixth inning on two singles, a double, a triple and thre bases on balls.

Times Tennis Tourney Winds Up at Weekend

By MAX LOW
Times staff

A film, an exhibition match and what promises to be some exciting play in five finals highlight a weekend of tennis when the fourth annual Victoria Times Public Parks tournament windup starts in two days.

Some 250 players have competed in the summer-long tourney, which concludes with semi-finals Saturday and finals Sunday at Oak Bay's Henderson Park. Play starts at 1 p.m. each day.

Following Saturday's semis, players and tennis fans are invited by the Times and Molsons' Breweries to the showing of "James Mason at Wimbledon", an excellent film on the 1976 Wimbledon championships. It will be shown in the lounge of the Oak Bay Recreational Centre on Bee Street at 7 p.m.

And following Sunday's finals at Henderson Park, after Times publisher Stuart Underhill has presented prizes to the tourney winners and runners-up, there will be an exhibition match featuring top Vancouver Island players.

Australian pro Ian Brady, the Island's No. 1 singles player, and Russ Hartley, son of veteran tennis instructor Gordon Hartley, will play Greg Miller and Roger Skillings in a game that should provide excitement for fans and a few helpful tips on doubles tactics for young enthusiasts.

But, in between the start of Saturday's semi-finals and that exhibition match late Sunday afternoon, there should be two days of fine tennis as the best in Greater Victoria's public parks players do battle.

It's taken a lot of time and a lot of tennis playing to whittle the huge starting field of 110 entrants down to the last four for the men's singles semi-finals — and we still haven't done it yet!

But we have got three of them lined up as two more have joined Chris Forster. They are:

GREG BOOTH — A well-known soccer and tennis player, he has been a member of both the Oak Bay Tennis Club and Island Indoor Tennis Club but this year is not connected with either and so qualifies for the Times tourney. Now 20 (his birthday was two days ago), Greg is working in the construction industry. As a junior, he was twice champion in the Times under-18 singles.

KERRY CHAN — At only 16, he is the biggest surprise of the tourney, reaching the last four in such a big field after bowing out earlier in the junior boys' singles. A Grade 12 student this September at Mt. Douglas High School, Kerry has been playing tennis only three and a half years. This is his first tournament bid and he's "quite excited" about it.

Booth ousted Jose Mandap, 9-3, while Chan got past Frank Roberts, 9-7, in the quarter-finals.

In Saturday's semi-finals, it will be Greg versus Kerry on one half of the draw, and the 19-year-old Forster (featured in Wednesday's Times sports pages) against the winner of a quarter-final match between Dale Olesky and Henry Hohlschof.

That game has been delayed until Friday night because Olesky, a 35-year-old teacher in the University of Victoria maths department, has been in Toronto on a business trip.

Basically, we plan to play the boys' and girls' singles at 1 p.m. Saturday, the women's singles at 2 p.m., the men's singles at 3 p.m. and the mixed doubles semis at 4 p.m., though all players should be ready to play a little earlier than those times.

The semi-final draws:

MEN'S SINGLES
Greg Booth vs. Kerry Chan; Chris Forster vs. winner of match between Dale Olesky and Henry Hohlschof.

WOMEN'S SINGLES

BOYS' SINGLES
Richard Fox vs. Robert Spong; Joe Thompson vs. Perry Evans.

GIRLS' SINGLES

MIXED DOUBLES
Joe Hammond and Lezlie Slay vs. Alastair and Penny Glass; Alex Shane and Elvira Kenny vs. Robert Shane and Erica Nelson.

Quebec Golfers Take Command in Amateur

BOISBRIAND, Que. (CP) — Joann Johnston of Dorval and Denise Lavigne of Montreal led a charge by Quebec province golfers into the front ranks of competitors in the 72-hole Canadian women's amateur championship Wednesday.

Johnston, a four-handicap golfer, and Lavigne, with a five handicap, each shot a two-over-par 75 on the 6,015-yard Hillsdale Golf and Country Club course 20 miles northwest of Montreal to share the first round lead.

Monique Langlais of Boischatel also carried the host province's colors among a group of three tied for third place with scores of 76. Cheryl French of Camrose, Alta., and Kathy Powers of Lunenberg, N.S. were the others in the trio.

Lavigne was among the earliest finishers but her score stood up throughout the grey, drizzly day that hampered the 93 starters. Only Johnston was able to match Lavigne's performance.

Johnston turned in one birdie at the par-three 110-yard eighth hole when she sank a four-foot putt.

Lavigne carded six bogeys and four birdies getting a two on the eighth as did Johnston and also playing the seventh, 14th and 17th at a stroke under par.

Two strokes behind the pacesetters were Francoise Rousseau of Metis Beach, Que., Michele Guilbault of Dorion, Que., Marilyn Palmer of Vancouver and Cathy Sherk of Font Hill, Ont., all at 77.

Quebec leads the 36-hole inter-provincial team match with a 236 total, one stroke better than B.C. and two ahead of Ontario.

Sounders Reach Final

Times News Services

Seattle Sounders moved into the Pacific Conference final of the North American Soccer League Wednesday night with a 1-0 victory over Minnesota Kicks at the Seattle Kingdome.

Tommy Ord, purchased by Seattle from Vancouver Whitecaps in mid-July, fired the winning goal on a penalty kick in the 59th minute.

Seattle advanced to the conference final against Los Angeles Aztecs, beginning Saturday night in Los Angeles.

Aztecs won the south division title Wednesday with a 5-1 victory over Dallas Tornado before 18,500 fans in Dallas.

Goals by Pele and Giorgio Chinaglia, plus a 2-0 shootout advantage, gave the New York Cosmos a 3-2 victory over the Fort Lauderdale Strikers and a spot in the third round of the playoffs.

The Eastern Division champions, Strikers, who were trounced 8-3 by the Cosmos in their first playoff game, took a 1-0 lead on a goal by David Irvin. Pele tied the score. The Strikers again took the lead before Chinaglia tied it up.

Evonne's Comeback Marred by Defeat

TORONTO (CP) — An eight-month layoff from tennis hasn't affected Evonne Goolagong's love for the game but might have hindered the style which has placed her near the top of the sport.

Goolagong, the Australian veteran generally regarded as the No. 2 woman player in the world next to Chris Evert, made a return to tournament play Wednesday at the Canadian Open and lost 6-4, 5-7, 6-4 to Katja Ebbinghaus of West Germany.

Goolagong, who recently gave birth to her first child, started out the match confidently but didn't have the stamina to overcome the West Germany player.

"I have to start somewhere," she said following the match. "I felt I had been hitting well in practice, but I didn't know how it would go in an actual match."

"I just didn't have the confidence when I got on the court," Goolagong said. "And I lost some of my concentration. That's what match play is all about, practicing to concentrate and play the right points at the right time."

Later, in a second-round match in the evening, Ebbinghaus eliminated Kathy Kuykendall of the U.S. 0-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Defending champion Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia, the No. 2 seed, fell to Australia's Cynthia Doerner, 6-4, 1-6, 6-2. Jausovec had beaten Val Ziegenfuss of the U.S., earlier in the day in a first-round match.

Italian Open winner Janet Newberry of the United States, seeded fifth, lost a three-set encounter, 5-7, 6-2, 6-0 to young South African Marise Krueger, the 1976 junior Wimbledon winner.

The No. 3 seed, Kathy May of the United States, was overcome 6-2, 7-6, by Uruguay's Florella Bonicelli.

Top-seeded Rosie Casals of the U.S. advanced to second round play with no difficulty, passing Australian Helen Cawley, 6-2 6-3.

In men's play highlights, Manual Orantes of Spain beat Chile's Hans Gildemeister 6-2, 6-1, John McEnroe of New York defeated Werner Zirngibl of West Germany 6-4, 2-6, 6-3, Jans Kodes of Czechoslovakia downed Brian Fairlie of New Zealand 7-6, 6-3 and John Lloyd of Britain defeated Billy Martin of the U.S. 1-6, 6-2, 7-5.

Yankees Pick on Arroyo; Brewers Snap Sox Streak

By The Associated Press

Milt May said Fernando Arroyo was throwing real well, which is a normal thing for a catcher to say about his pitcher—except that not too many of Arroyo's pitches got as far as May.

New York's Mickey Rivers hit Arroyo's first pitch for a home run. Roy White tripled on the next delivery and Thurman Munson picked on pitch No .3 for a double.

At that point, May had no idea what kind of stuff Arroyo had. He hadn't caught any yet.

And nine pitches later—a Reggie Jackson strikeout and a Chris Chambliss triple—Arroyo was gone, the losing pitcher as the Yankees downed Detroit Tigers 7-5 in an American League baseball game.

Elsewhere in the American League, Milwaukee Brewers cooled off Boston Red Sox 5-3, Texas Rangers inched into first place in the West Division by nipping Toronto Blue Jays 6-5 in 10 innings, Seattle Mariners edged Minnesota Twins 3-2 and Kansas City Royals defeated Cleveland Indians 5-3.

After the Yankees kayoed Arroyo, Toronto native John Hiller yielded a single to Willie Randolph for the final run of the first inning.

Singles by Graig Nettles, Carlos May, Randolph and Rivers accounted for two runs in the third inning and a triple by Chambliss and double by Nettles in the fourth provided the final run for the Yankees.

Two-run homers by Don Money in the first inning and Jamie Quirk in the fourth off Rick Wise enabled Milwaukee to snap Boston's latest winning streak at five games. Quirk's third homer of the season provided the decisive margin as the Red Sox lost for only the second time in their last 18 games.

Dan Meyer's two-run single through a drawn-in infield in the seventh inning snapped a 1-1 tie and gave Paul Mitchell his first victory of the season. The Twins made it 3-3 in the eighth on singles by Dan Ford and Mike Cubbage and Roy Smalley's run-scoring grounder.

John Mayberry slugged a three-run homer in the first inning but Kansas City needed run-scoring singles by Hal McRae and Pete LaCock in the eighth to break a 3-3 tie. The fourth-place Royals are only 1½ games off the pace in the torrid West Division race.

To Chuck Tanner, Rick Reuschel is an incomparable pitcher.

To Chicago Cubs, the return to form of the hefty right-hander signals hope for a National League baseball season that had fallen on dark times.

"It's the best I've ever seen him pitch," said Pittsburgh manager Tanner, whose Pirates struck out 11 times and managed eight hits in a 4-2 loss to the Cubs on Wednesday.

"He's our stopper," said Bobby Murcer, who backed up Reuschel's team-leading seventh complete game of the season with a pair of homers to increase his total to 23, matching his output all last year with San Francisco.

In other National League games, Montreal Expos lashed Philadelphia 13-0 to break the Phillies' 13-game winning streak, St Louis Cardinals blanked New York Mets 2-0, Atlanta Braves whipped Houston Astros 9-6, San Diego Padres defeated Cincinnati Reds 7-4 and the game between San Francisco and Los Angeles was rained out.

Reuschel, 16-5, pitched the Cubs to their second victory in two days over Pittsburgh. The triumphs came after the Cubs lost four in a row to Philadelphia.

THUNDER THREAT SHORTENS TRIAL

NEWPORT, R. I. (AP) — The threat of thunder squalls brought an early halt to America's Cup defence finals Wednesday with Courageous beating Independence by 50 seconds in a shortened race.

Ted Hood of Marblehead, Mass., skipper and designer of Independence, got the jump by four seconds at the start. Courageous, which goes best to windward, had gained 1:19 lead rounding the first mark.

Atlanta Braves baseball owner Ted Turner, skipper of Courageous, had lost a few seconds from his lead by the second mark, but made the second reach 58 seconds ahead. The race was shortened at the end of the third leg with Turner 50 seconds in the lead.

The Coast Guard cutter Point Turner, in charge of policing the spectator fleet, was on the radio throughout the race getting weather updates and making arrangements to escort pleasure craft back to

The weather reports said a squall carrying 50-knot winds and lightning was bearing in on Rhode Island sound toward the northeast. The heavy rains hit Newport shortly after 2 p.m. and electricity was knocked out for about 20 minutes.

About 30 minutes after the race ended, a torrential downpour left autos sloshing through hubcap-deep water on some streets.

Turner's win, which is expected to be official, moves his record in the defence finals to 3-0. On Tuesday, he sailed Courageous to a pair of victories against Enterprise.

In the June and July trials, Courageous had the best overall record, finishing the series at 14-7. Enterprise had a 11-12 mark, and Independence was 7-13.

None of the foreign yachts raced Wednesday. The semi-final series between Australia and France ended Tuesday in a four-race sweep for the Australian entry.

Rutledge Rolls To Tour Victory

The 15-year-old member of Cedar Hill and Uplands scorched Gorge Vale in a four-under-par 68 to earn his third win on the four-event tour.

Rutledge finished with 34 points while runner-up Lanny Sawchuk of Uplands finished with 25. Following, in order, were Brian DeGirolamo of Gorge (23), Dave Howe of Gorge (23), Peter Venning of Victoria (14) and Chris Dowds of Cedar Hill (13).

Steve Selina of Colwood captured the "B" tour title with 37 points, easily beating runner-up John Kirby, who had 19.

Finishing behind Kirby in the competition for 10-and-up handicappers were Neil O'Leary (17), Blair Philip (15), Will Lloyd (15) and Dave Elder (14).

Button Victory

James Bay Posts Win

TORONTO — James Bay Athletic Association of the Vancouver Island Rugby Union boosted its record to 2-1 on a cross-Canada tour by whipping Toronto Nomads 43-0 here Wednesday.

Calgary Irish tripped the B.C. champions 17-6 in their opening match but the Victoria club bounced back to down the Irish, 24-3.

Montreal will be the site of the next match and the tour continues with matches in Ottawa, Brantford, Sarnia and Windsor.

Day in Court Set

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — Olympic equestrian James Day has been ordered to appear for trial Aug. 29 on a charge of unlawfully causing unnecessary injury to a horse. The Ontario Humane Society laid the charge following a complaint at Sam-Son Farms Ltd. of Hornby, Ont., where Day is general manager.

GREENWOOD TO HANDLE ENGLISH XI

LONDON (Reuter) — Ron Greenwood, one of the most respected figures in British soccer, has been appointed manager of England's national team for the next three matches, the English Football Association announced Wednesday.

Greenwood, 54-year-old general manager of the First Division club West Ham, takes over from Don Revie, who resigned last month to take charge of soccer in the United Arab Emirates.

He will manage the England team for an exhibition at home to Switzerland next month and two crucial World Cup qualifying matches against Luxembourg and Italy.

Thousands weeped as they waited in line to pay tribute to Elvis Wednesday

Car Hits Elvis Mourners

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — A car plowed into a crowd of mourners standing vigil outside Graceland mansion where Elvis Presley's body lay in state early today, scattering people like ten-pins, killing two girls and injuring at least four others, police said.

Police chased the car down Elvis Presley Boulevard and caught it in the next block. A man and three young women were taken into custody.

A police radio report said two persons had been killed and at least four others injured. Dr. Ralph Hamilton of City of Memphis Hospital said two teen-age girls were dead on arrival there.

A crowd of several thousand had stood outside the 13-acre estate of Presley, 42, who died of a heart ailment Tuesday, through the night, awaiting a chance possibly to view the body today before burial in nearby Forest Hills Cemetery.

Hundreds fainted Wednesday as they waited in stifling heat outside Graceland Mansion for a last glimpse of the king of rock 'n' roll. After treatment by paramedics inside the mansion gates, many doggedly continued their pilgrimage to Presley's seamless copper coffin.

Police said 25,000 to 30,000 people passed the open coffin just inside the doorway of Presley's white-pillared home for a two-second glimpse of the singer.

At 5:55 p.m. Wednesday a policeman announced over a megaphone that "gates will be closed at 6:30. No one will be admitted after that." No one moved.

At 6:30 sharp, another announcement: "The family has requested the gates be closed. They are sorry you couldn't make it." Still no one moved.

The huge crowd responded with a chant: "One more hour, one more hour." But the gates, adorned with dancing musical notes and writhing Elvis figures, opened only to admit a last-minute surge of children and fainting women.

Icebreaker Reaches N. Pole

MOSCOW (UPI) — American explorers were the first to reach the North Pole over and under the ice, but a Soviet atomic icebreaker has become the first ship to smash its way to the top of the world through the ice.

The 25,000-ton Arctica, the world's most powerful icebreaker, arrived at the geographical point of the North Pole Wednesday at 1 a.m. Greenwich Mean Time, the official Tass news agency said.

"The dream of generations of seamen and polar researchers came true," Tass said.

"For the first time in the history of sea navigation, the ship crossed the massive ice cover of the central polar basin and floated freely up toward the very top of the globe," it said.

The captain of the 460-foot-long nuclear-powered ship, U.S. Kuchiev, and Soviet Marine Minister T. G. Guzhenko, sent a message from the ship to Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev reporting the feat.

"The sailors, scientists and pilots — participants in the cruise — dedicate their victory to the 60th anniversary of the great Socialist revolution," Tass said.

American explorers were the first to reach the North Pole, which has no land under it and is only a floating mass of ice. The South Pole has land under it.

Robert E. Peary in 1909 reached the pole over the ice in a dog-pulled sled and in 1926, Rear Adm. Richard E. Byrd and Floyd Bennett flew over it.

The American nuclear-powered submarine Nautilus reached the pole, sailing under the ice, in 1958. Its voyage was followed by another U.S. submarine, which found a break in the ice and surfaced at the pole in 1960.

CIA Murderer: Soviets

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet newspaper Wednesday accused the CIA of killing a Russian defector who spied for the United States because it found out he wanted to go back home and make amends for his "treason."

The weekly Literaturnaya Gazeta, in an article by correspondent Henrich Borovik, said the U.S. agency decided to do away with Nicholas Shadrin in 1975 rather than suffer the embarrassment of seeing the prize double agent slip from its grasp.

The United States claims Shadrin was kidnapped by Soviet KGB secret police and has dtmanded that Moscow disclose his whereabouts.

The Russian defected to the West in 1959, and was considered a major catch for U.S. intelligence experts because he was a captain in the Soviet navy.

For the next 16 years, according to U.S. officials, he worked for both the CIA and FBI making contacts with Soviet agents and passing along phoney secrets. But the Russians claim he pleaded with his Soviet contacts in Washington for help in returning to the Soviet Union. The newspaper article said the CIA apparently learned of his plans after he was assigned to Vienna and got in touch with the KGB.

"Maybe it happened that after the meeting the CIA learned about his impending return to the U.S.S.R. and having understood that the game was lost, decided it would be a scandal and decided to do away with him," said the article in quoting KGB agent Igor A. Orlov, who saw Shadrin in Vienna.

"I do not want to think about the worst, but being acquainted with CIA methods it is very difficult for me to think that he is being kept in prison. It is too dangerous for them," Orlov said.

The author said he believed Shadrin as executed by U.S. agents.

"It was an action necessary from the CIA point of view and it was just the only measure which could save that organization from one more scandal," he said.

He added that the CIA and FBI would have been "extremely embarrassed" if a top defector and turncoat agent returned to Russia.

"He performed a great sin — treason — on his motherland, but in spite of that fact, according to everything we have seen, he tried to find a way out of his situation."

It demanded that the United States disclose Shadrin's "fate."

Farrah's Appeal: Hair or Teeth?

By NED SCHARFF
New York Times

WASHINGTON — The national obsession with television goddess Farrah Fawcett-Majors knows no rational explanation.

It's the hair, says a sizable sampling of men with teen-aged daughters who have emulated Farrah's mane.

No, it's those magnificent choppers, says a lawyer, who watches "Charlie's Angels" each Wednesday with his teen-age sons. "The teeth are a subliminal appeal to every man's sado-masochistic impulses."

Still another grown man watches with the sound turned off. "The scripts are insipid," he concedes, "but Farrah's so cute, so much like the girl next door, that somehow my wife doesn't mind my watching her . . . The fact that she doesn't wear a bra doesn't hurt, either."

No matter how one defines her appeal, Farrah Fawcett-Majors is surely the biggest commercial sex bomb since Marilyn Monroe. Further, although some might think it sacrilege to say so, she is the most recent link in a chain that stretches from Venus de Milo to the Gibson Girl, to Mary Pickford and Monroe — the socially acclaimed beauty.

Whether one ascribes the impact of Farrah and her predecessors to art, fantasy, errant pop culture or Hollywood promotional skill, they were and are embodiments of whatever qualities were held beautiful in their lifetimes, milestones in the endless human pursuit of the ideal.

And the social pursuit of ideal beauty, whatever its causes, seems incessant. "We do not wish to imitate; we wish to perfect," says Sir Kenneth Clark in his study of "The Nude."

"We become, in the physical sphere, like Diogenes with his his lantern looking for an honest man; and, like him, we may never be rewarded."

But more than anything else, those fortunate enough to be experts in the field proclaim, the images of women acclaimed as great beauties throughout the ages reflect the evolving taste of their times, an everchanging perception of beauty held not by individual connoisseurs, but by society in general.

Like the other acclaimed beauties in history, Farrah's most important attribute is that, somehow, a large consensus can agree on her desirability - a larger consensus, in fact, than has ever agreed on any great beauty before her, thanks to the magic of television.

There have been beautiful women since the creation of Eve, but there were no socially acclaimed beauties until the technology existed to spread their pictures around. There were statues and paintings of beautiful women long before the inventions of the printing press, but they generally went unseen by the masses of people.

It was not until the discovery of the Venus de Milo in 1820 that the world got its first great popular image of beauty, says Clark in "The Nude." And such was the fanfare over her discovery and the popular fervor over her arrival in Britain with the rest of the Elgin Marbles, that the Venus de Milo became enshrined forever as a subject for songs, a trademark for beauty salons, hair pommade and countless other gimcracks.

Through most of the 19th Century the popular beauty, someone like Jane Avril - whose Toulouse-Lautrec poster was omnipresent in France — was considerably heftier than the 20th century ideal.

From the 1850's to the 1880's, the emphasis changed from the bell-shaped woman with an artificially small waist with an exaggerated, full hoop skirt, to the bustle skirt which exaggerated only the posterior, the S-shape in which a corset was used to thrust out the chest almost as far in front as the bustle went in back.

The slender woman with looser clothing did not become popular until well after the turn of the century, when the real pin-up girls first emerged in the form of drawings by Charles Dana Gibson — the Gibson Girls, whose pictures, ripped from dozens of magazines, were almost prescribed decoration for bachelor apartments before World War I.

Around that time women's suffrage was becoming more than a political cause. The ideal woman generally was becoming being less dependent on men, which may explain why clothing suddenly became less restrictive.

What also counted heavily, says Carl Sheeley, also of the Smithsonian, was the increasing technological ability of the press and other media to bombard the public with a standard image of the ideal.

The notion of commercialized beauty was also promoted by people like Florence Ziegfeld, who put it on stage in the Ziegfeld Follies, but it took the movies to really disseminate it.

The first great movie queens, Mary Pickford, the Gish sisters and others, were boyish looking — dainty and fragile at times, but distinctively boyish.

But in the 1930s, when movies became more openly risque, the great beauties were women like Jean Harlow, narrow-waisted but with fuller bodies and clinging clothing.

From Harlow to Betty Grable and finally Marilyn Monroe in the 1950s, some say there was an almost unbroken chain of blonde bombshells with unnaturally proportioned bodies—very small waists and very large hips and busts, the sort of exaggerated figure that neither fashion designers nor the movies any longer consider ideal.

. . . biggest sex bomb

But during that time were other famous beauties who seemed to personify quite different attitudes in society. Joan Crawford, for example, with her broad shouldered dresses and her independent manner, was in high popularity in the early 1940s.

After Marilyn Monroe's heyday in the mid- to late-1950s, there suddenly were no universally recognized sex bombs.

But by 1965 the lady-like look was out and, with the importation of the Beatles, the cult of youth arrived with a vengeance. Long straight hair and mini-skirts were the rage, and the most photographed women were those like Twiggy and Mia Farrow, who looked teen-aged.

What happened over the next 10 years was a sharp reaction to commercialized notions of beauty. First came the years when the only clothing that sold well was blue jeans, followed by the women's movement, which also brought with it an intense anti-fashion feeling.

Most fashion experts generally feel there has been a return to more traditional attitudes in the past few years. Both men and women, they say, are dressing more as they did in the 1950s, with women dressing more alluringly in increasingly fitted clothes.

$1.1M Theft From Church

SEMINARA, Italy (AP) — Thieves robbed a small parish church of $1.1 million in jewels, the treasure of the famed Madonna of the Poor, in this town at the southernmost tip of Italy, police report.

The robbers apparently broke into the Roman Catholic church through a window Saturday night and scooped up all the jewels kept in a glass container, police said. The theft was not discovered until Sunday.

The statue's treasure, offered by worshippers over the centuries, included several gem-studded crowns, rings, earrings and other valuables.

Just five years ago, the world's attention was turned to Reykjavik, Iceland, where Bobby Fischer of the United States and Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union were matching their wits over a marble and mahogany chess table.

Fischer, then 29, won the world championship, breaking 2 26-year Russian monopoly of the title. It was the first time since 1946 that a non-Russian had even reached the world championship finals. Fischer earned a record purse of $250,000 and became a cult figure.

After spending most of his life working for the crown, Fischer didn't wear it well. He hasn't played chess in public since the Spasky games. In 1975, Fischer lost his title by default, refusing to defend it after a dispute over match rules. Rumors of new games, new opponents and new locals have surfaced periodically since then but were never realized. He emerged briefly into public view recently when he lost a $5-million lawsuit against Brad Darrach, who had written a book about his behavior before and during the match with Spassky.

The latest report of a prospective opponent comes from Holland, where former Soviet grandmaster Victor Korchnoi has told the press that he hopes to play a match with Fischer next February. Korchnoi has just won his way to the finals of the world championship challegers' competition, and is a likely prospect to play champion Anatoly Karpov for the title next year. A match with Fischer could be an interesting warmup for this contest.

According to a Dutch newspaper, West German financier Wilfried Hilgert has agreed to pay Fischer $3 million for the match.

"I've been in contact with Fischer and in early September I'll go to America to meet him and fix futher details," Korchnoi told reporters.

Very few people have contact with Fischer today. He lives a secluded life in South Pasadena, Calf., where he moved shortly after the Spassky match. He chose the Pasadena area not only because of the weather but because of its proximity to Ambassador College and the headquarters of the World-wide Church of God. Fischer, according to some reports, has given large donations to the church.

"I've had no communications with Fischer lately," said Edmund M. Edmundson, an official of the U.S. Chess Federation. "As far as I know he lives in a small house in South Pasadena and he must live frugally because he does nothing for a living. He must depend on royalties and some leftover money from the Spassky match."

When he began to play in chess tournaments, the Brooklyn-born Fischer was still a small boy and would sometimes cry after losing a game. But as he fought his way to the U.S. championship and into the top ranks of international chess, he became known as stubborn, temperamental and myopic.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — A district court has decided to extradite to Bulgaria a 22-year-old hijacker whose plan to defect to the West backfired when the plane ran out of gas.

HOLLYWOOD — Mae West turned 85 Wednesday and threw a birthday party for herself, inviting about 30 friends to a celebration at Chasen's restaurant.

MADRID, Spain — King Juan Carlos, Queen Sophia and Premier Adolfo Suarez have escaped a bombing assasination attempt in the Mediterranean island resort of Palma de Majorca, Spanish news reports said.

The Cifra news agency said police found a bomb under a bridge Wednesday only moments before the royal couple and Suarez were to drive over it. At the time the three had just returned from a sailing trip and were ready to leave the Majorca Yacht Club.

MINNEAPOLIS — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democratic "Happy Warrior" and former vice president who had a cancer operation last fall, must undergo major surgery again — this time to remove an obstruction in his bowel.

WASHINGTON — Chip Carter is going home to Plains — with his wife and six-month-old son.

LONDON — Pacing herstif carefully, the Queen now has completed about 800 jubilee functions in the last 100 days — and she has many more ahead.

This heavy schedule to mark her 25th year on the throne has brought reports that the Queen may be tiring but Buckingham Palace says this is not so.

Nevertheless, recent news photographs have captured occasional signs of strain as she plods through a gruelling program.

VANCOUVER — Chief Petty Officer David Cooke, 19, of Vancouver, insisted he was surprised he has been chosen the best of Canada's 12,000 sea cadets this year, but his corps leaders were less reticent.

In letters of recommendation, his officers called him a "highly motivated cadet with excellent leadership qualities." Cooke was repeatedly praised for his enthusiasm and attention to detail.

The award was issued recently by the civilian Navy League of Canada, which co-sponsors Canada's sea cadet program with the national defence department.

NEW YORK — Prosecutors in the "Son of Sam" case, using the testimony of eight survivors and a fully loaded .44-calibre revolver found in a car, expect five more murder indictments by early next week against suspect David Berkowitz.

$30 Billion More Needed for 'Maginot Line'

By HAROLD J. LOGAN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The cost of equipping U.S. forces in Europe to repel a surprise Warsaw Pact attack without giving up any of West Germany would be about $30 billion in increased defence spending over the next few years, the Pentagon estimates.

The Pentagon estimate is a response to a report prepared in March by Rep. Les Aspin (D — Wis.). Aspin concluded the cost of beefing up U.S. forces to meet a surprise attack without initially surrendering large chunks of West Germany would be $46.4 billion.

The defence department's response did not say Aspin had overcalculated the level of effort needed but said about 35 per cent of the expenditures he included in his analysis are already programmed for future defence budgets.

Calling the idea of refusing to concede any West German territory the product of a "Maginot Line mentality," Aspin said, "to spend $30 billion or more to defend every blade of grass against a remote threat is a nonsense strategy and a gross misapplication of the taxpayers' dollars."

Aspin's salvo is the latest indication that within the corridors of the Pentagon there is renewed hot debate, characterized by the adroit use of leaks to the press, over the best response to what is perceived as a growing threat to NATO from the Warsaw Pact.

In November, two members of the Senate armed services committee, Senators Sam Nunn (D — Ga.) and Dewey Bartlett (R — Okla.) returned from a two-week trip to Europe with warnings that NATO needed a major shift in strategy, including the positioning of more troops and ammunition closer to the Soviet border.

More recently, the New York Times, quoting a "senior White House official," reported that U.S. attacks on Soviet positions outside Europe would force the Soviets to retreat from any territory they gained in Germany during an invasion.

Still later, columnists Rowland Evans and Robert Novak reported then-secret details of a presidential strategy paper which they alleged concede up to one-third of West Germany's territory during the initial phases of an attack.

Aspin said Wednesday that the problem with the approaches advanced by Nunn and Bartlett and by Evans and Novak is that they "jump to a conclusion that we must beef up our forces without looking either at the costs or the alternatives."

Legislative Fistfights Break Out

HARRISBURG, Pa. (WP) — Fistfights eruped on the floor of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives Wednesday night as legislators failed once more to give final approval to a full-year state budget.

The budget impasse, now in its 48th day, has cut off cheques for hundreds of thousands of welfare recipients and state employees.

The anger and tension seen on the floor of the House Wednesday night has been mirrored somewhat by welfare and state workers' representatives who have come to the capitol to protest the cheque cutoffs.

The source of irritation on the House floor is House Bill 1349. In brief, it is a Democratic budget proposal to spend $5.1 billion during the current fiscal year for general state operations.

The proposal provides no funds for dependent, state-related colleges, private colleges and medical schools. Democrats and Republicans agree the measures means the legislature, at some point will have to come up with $300 million in taxes to take care of the unfunded institutions.

Panama Treaties Blasted

WASHINGTON (WP) — House critics in the U.S. opened a fusillade Wednesday against the Carter administration's Panama Canal treaties, charging that they bow to "foreign blackmail," endanger U.S. security and defy "the overwhelming opinion" of Americans.

Chief negotiators Ellsworth Bunker and Sol M. Linowitz countered that the pacts will enhance American security, not weaken it, even beyond the year 2000 when Panama takes control of the 51-mile-long waterway.

It was a meeting on lopsidedly-hostile ground for the administration, before the House merchant marine and fisheries committee headed by Rep. John M. Murphy (D — N.Y.).

Murphy charged that "our negotiators appear to have caved in" to demands of "the dictatorial regime of Gen. Omar Torrijos" in "a milquetoast fashion."

V.I. Logger's Song Wins, Record Pressed in Good Ol' Nashville

'The Picker' Top Pick

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

After 31 years in the bush, singer Neil Arthurs is ready to emerge, hopefully, as the next country superstar.

His first record is being pressed in Nashville.

Arthurs was born in Victoria but spent all his life in logging camps.

"It was lonely there so I started singing to entertain myself. Now I think I am about ready to make it a career."

Arthurs, 31, married and the father of three children, has just returned from the Colorado Country Music Festival in Denver where he took first place in the folk-country section with a song he wrote and sang called The Picker.

A Nashville music company, Cederwood Publishing, liked the song and will release it as a single with another Arthurs composition, The Gear Jammer, on the reverse side.

There's a lot of luck involved in show business but Arthurs has always believed that hard work will pay off.

"I don't mind working. I've done that all my life in the bush. I've been a truck driving man and most recently I've been a heavy-duty mechanic.

"I've worked in just about every town on Vancouver Island."

It was as a heavy-duty mechanic in Cedar, near Nanaimo, that he got the idea for The Picker.

"I was working one day and the boss said: Look at that old man there.

"I looked and saw a man in old clothes, shoes curled up at the front. He had a bag under his arm. I think it was a bottle.

"Well, the boss said: That man used to be a (guitar) picker.

"He was warning me about alcohol. I know it gets many guitar pickers. It's a terrible thing. That's where I got the idea for the song that won the award."

Arthurs was upset about the death this week of Elvis Presley.

"He was the best. Whenever I sang I always did whatever the audience asked for — except Presley songs. I always refused to do those. They were great songs but no one could do them like Elvis. Anyone else would just ruin them."

Another Arthurs idol is Johnny Cash.

"He's a real man. When Cash looks at you it's like he's saying: Come along if you think you're man enough to try. I like tough men. I guess that's because I've spent my whole life in the bush with tough men. I also like older people. I love to sing to senior citizens because they appreciate what you're doing. My favorite audiences would be people in their late forties or older."

Arthurs has always been around older people.

His father worked the logging camps as a cat operator and there were lots of men but few children.

And when he made friends he soon had to leave them behind.

"I went to about four schools a year. We just kept moving from camp to camp. Some times I just had my guitar and my singing for company."

He married a Port Hardy girl 11 years ago and they now have three children ages 10, 9 and 2.

"I could have started a (singing) career six years ago but I wasn't ready. I wanted to have the right song with the right company at the right time. You can start with some small company and take years to get anywhere. I'm starting with a company in Nashville and I feel right about the song."

Gently urging him toward a singing career is his wife, who is content to stay home and mind the children.

Saanich Officials Jolted By East-West Artery Plan

SEVERSON
. . . "no dialogue"

The provincial highway department's proposal to construct a new east-west arterial road from Quadra to Munns could throw a wrench into Saanich's development plans.

Saanich has been asked by the ministry to acquire the right-of-way along a route along Vanalman, connecting with Roy Road and extending to Munns Road at the municipality's western boundary.

Construction is estimated to be five to 10 years away, municipal engineer Cliff Warren said Wednesday.

Because of the impact it would have on the municipality the proposal, aired at closed meeting of the public works committee on Tuesday, will be considered at next Tuesday's meeting of the lands, planning and housing committee.

Public works committee chairman Ald. Sandy Noel says the new arterial road "would have an immense bearing on the official community plan, the North Quadra area, as well as the Royal Oak industrial development plan."

If approval is given Tuesday, he recommends postponement of the public hearing on the North Quadra area.

Municipal planner Gil Laurenson said the news "was like a bolt out of the blue . . . a real shocker."

He said he knew of three or four housing developments that would be affected if the new road is built. He doubted that North Quadra would be a desirable residential area after its construction.

Mayor Ed Lum sees the proposal as an indication the government intends opening up the Highlands area.

"Munns Road is the gateway to the western sector," he said.

Before any action is taken, Lum said several questions, such as the cost to Saanich, must be answered.

"I want aldermen to give the matter thorough consideration because of all its ramifications," he said.

Warren says the highways department made the proposal after discussions on the need to improve the traffic flow on Vanalman because of planned industrial development in Royal Oak. He said Vanalman would be a prime truck artery, taking pressure off internal streets.

Warren said the arterial road would also ease the pressure on McKenzie Avenue. McKenzie now has a traffic flow of about 19,000 vehicles a day and is expected to reach a capacity of 22,000 per day within five years.

He is recommending the right-of-way be a minimum of 66 feet and a maximum of 100 feet.

Miracle's Corpuscles Controlled

The long-awaited fall is happening.

Miracle's white corpuscle count fell by 1,000 to about 8,400 Wednesday — a level approaching normal and an indicator that antibiotics are starting to control the infection rampant in the injured killer whale calf.

Another blood sample was taken today to see if the downward trend in white blood cells is continuing.

Behavioral changes in the past few days also indicate she is on the mend, said animal care supervisor Cathy Denny today.

She's been swimming on her side waving a flipper at poolside sttendants and swimming upside down.

On Wednesday she stuck her tongue out at medical staff and led one on a merry chase around the pool when he tried to take a blood sample.

MLA Claims Unpaid Fines Jail 'Poor'

Poor people are in jails simply because they have no money to pay their fines, Gary Lauk (NDP — Vancouver Centre) told the legislature Wednesday.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom promptly denied the statement during clause-by-clause debate on amendments to the Summary Convictions Act, which increases the maximum summary conviction fines to $2,000 from $500.

Lauk, a Vancouver criminal lawyer, urged the government to "find a better way . . . to avoid the difference between rich people and poor people before the courts."

"Poor people who cannot afford fines go to jail while the rich have little difficulty in paying their fines," Lauk said.

"We have people sitting in jail for no reason other than they are unable to pay their fines."

He suggested a percentage form of fine based on the convicted person's income.

Conservative leader Scott Wallace said he supports the point "if justice is to be evenly dispersed," while George Mussallem (SC — Dewdney) urged that fines be eliminated in favor of community work.

"Fines are totally wrong," Mussallem said. "We should get work from people. They don't care about money. They should be put to work, then they would know the value" of their crime.

The attorney-general noted that the previous NDP government had passed a law in 1974 which prevents sending offenders to jail if they cannot pay their fines.

"There is no one in prison now as a result of not paying a fine," he said.

He noted that where a fine is imposed and not paid, it becomes a civil judgment and could result in wages being attached or goods seized and sold to pay it off.

Gardom said community work already has been imposed in certain cases as well as restitution projects.

"For far too long we have not paid attention to the victims and too much on the accused," he said.

Picnic Shelter Tabled

Victoria's parks committee today tabled for the second time a proposal for the construction of a wooden picnic shelter in Beacon Hill Park.

The International Order of Hoo-Hoo, a fraternal organization in the lumber industry, wants to provide the shelter as a public shelter which will also promote the use of wood.

The Beacon Hill Park Association, which has complained in the past that too much development has occurred in the park on an ad-hos basis, said in a letter to the city that it considers the shelter "neither necessary nor suitable" and also claimed that the building would be "an intrusion upon a valuable asset."

Parks administrator Cliff Bate, however, told the parks committee he believes there is a need for the shelter because present picnic facilities in Beacon Hill Park are "very primitive," with no covered accommodation or facilities for washing or cooking.

He suggested the shelter be located adjacent to the sports hut, near the playground equipment and picnic tables.

By the time the matter was discussed there were only two aldermen present and they wished to wait for a quorum.

Severson Set To Fight Gov't

Ald. Fred Severson, chairman of Saanich council's lands, planning and housing committee, said today he'll strongly oppose the provincial highway department's plan for an arterial highway from Quadra to Nunns.

The municipality has spent months developing its community plan, Severson said, and the government's last-minute proposal shows a complete indifference to the municipality's concerns.

"There's been do dialogue This is the first time I've heard of it (the road propsal) and it's the first time our planning department has heard of it," he said.

"Why has there been no open dialogue?"

He says the road will jeopardize Saanich's community plan and Saanich residents will end up paying for the benefit of residents in other areas.

"Who are we serving? (with the proposed road) . . . I can't see anyone but those in the Highlands area."

Severson said it's unfair to suggest the municipality acquire 66 feet to 100 feet right-of-ways at this time because he can see no need for the road.

Severson said future councils might approve such a proposal when there is a need for such an arterial road.

"Our community plan is flexible," he said. "It could be amended, say in 10 years' time."

Severson pinpointed the Northridge area as one that would be badly affected if the road project proceeds.

Drive-In Digs In Over Sign

City aldermen were told today the owners of the Dairy Queen Drive-In on Douglas Street refuse to conform with the city's sign bylaw by modifying a sign which projects more than three feet over the property line.

The legal committee endorsed a recommendation from solicitor Jakob de Villiers that the city enact a special bylaw demanding the removal of the offending sign.

Solicitors for the firm, Island Drive-Ins Ltd., will be given an opportunity to be heard before council.

In a report to the committee, de Villiers said most of the firms which were in violation of the sign bylaw have taken action to comply since they received letters warning of legal proceedings.

But he said the Dairy Queen owners have instructed their solicitors "to inform the city that it refuses to conform."

"Its solicitors maintain that the city has no authority to force signs that were lawful before the enactment of the sign bylaw to conform with the provisions of the sign bylaw," de Villiers said.

IWA to Tackle Discrimination

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

An East Indian is unable to get a job at a Vancouver sawmill. A young woman's application for a job on "the green chain" is rejected.

The International Woodworkers of America, B.C.'s largest union, knows that such examples of discrimination on the basis of race and sex do occur and is making an effort to come to grips with the problem.

The 40,000-member union has launched a one-year research program to determine the extent of the problem involving their members and come up with some solutions.

The federal government has come through with a $30,000 grant which will allow the hiring of a so-called minority groups relations officer.

"Racial discrimination is a part of life but we want to have it under control," Tom Fox, IWA's director of public relations, said Wednesday.

"We know there are mills that have policies against hiring East Indians, but we can't prove it."

The union hopes the research person can ferret out examples of discrimination within the organization and, knowing the way the union operates, come up with solutions to eradicate them or prevent them from spreading.

Fox said so far there have been only a few instances of racial discrimination.

"There were a few flare-ups at a couple of mills in the Vancouver area and in the Interior," he said. "But they were spotty situations."

Instances of union members' civil or human rights being violated don't exist on a large scale, he added, but because the IWA represents members of a couple of large minority ethnic groups, the potential is there for a serious problem.

As far as discrimination on the basis of sex, Fox quotes a foreman at a Vancouver-area mill as telling a woman: "We don't want you to get muscles like a man."

Kathleen Ruff, B.C.'s human rights director, said she thought the union's initiative an excellent idea.

Such action will serve not only to stir up interest in human rights matters but also help to improve the image of trade unions in B.C.

Too often, she said, the issue of human rights stays at the theoretical level with everybody giving kneejerk acknowledgment that discrimination is not good.

The important thing is to develop interest and concern at the grassroots level where the problems exist, she added.

"I think the unions have a really fantastic role to play in this area," Ruff said.

Also, she said, the union movement developed as an effort to help the exploited but now they are often perceived as the allies of the strongest in the work force.

"It is really great that they should show some concern in theory but also carry through with some action to protect . . . those people on the weaker side."

She confirmed that there have been some cases in the forest industry involving discrimination on the basis of race or sex and some have been the subject of action.

She said the human rights branch has become involved in specific problems but that these are the "tip of the iceberg."

ASK THE TIMES

Q. You ran a picture of the boy who went across the Strait of Juan de Fuca in his "bathtub boat" but you didn't say how far it is. Can you give me this information?

A. The distance is 15.5 nautical miles or 17.8 statute miles from Dallas Road beach to Ediz Hook at Port Angeles.

HOMEMADE POPSICLES

Nutrition Buyline

QUESTION: With the hot weather, my children are constantly asking for something cold and refreshing to eat. I have read the label on many of the commercial popsicles available, and see that they contain mainly sugar and artificial flavors and colors. They are also quite costly. Do you have any suggestions?

ANSWER: Homemade popsicles are your answer. They are easy to make, contribute vitamins and minerals, and can be low in sugar. Try freezing a variety of juices, or mix equal parts of apple, orange, and cranberry juice and freeze in molds, or in paper cups with wooden sticks. Or insert sticks into chunks of melon, pineapple, strawberries, watermelon, or banana halves to make fruit popsicles. Combine 2 cups plain yogurt and a dash of honey with 1 cup of blended fruits, or with a 6¼-ounce tin of concentrated fruit juice, and freeze to make yogurt popsicles. The children love them, and they make nutrient-plus snacks.

QUESTION: My family loves watermelon, what nutritional value does it offer?

ANSWER: A slice of watermelon, 8¼" diameter and 1" thick, provides enough vitamin C to meet the daily recommended level. It also provides some iron and about half of the recommended daily level of vitamin A, all for only 115 calories.

QUESTION: Is it true that you can increase the iron in your diet by using cast-iron cookware?

ANSWER: Yes, foods cooked in cast-iron pots or frying pans can absorb small amounts of iron, thus adding extra iron to the diet. The widespread use of aluminum, stainless steel, and non-stick pans has almost eliminated this supply.

The Way to Great Jellied Salads

Hot summer months seem to be the time to serve inviting jellied salads. Jellied salads rate special merit as they can be made in advance and require a relatively small amount of time and effort.

Food consultants with the Food Advisory Division of Agriculture Canada offer these tips on preparing successful jellied salads.

As well as true salad molds, you can use cake pans, bowls and custard cups. Mixtures can be unmolded and cut in squares or slices. Be sure to partially thicken gelatin mixtures before adding fruits, vetetables, meat, whipped cream or beaten egg whites. When making a layered salad, each layer must be firm before adding the next.

If you will be serving jellied salad at room temperature in hot wather, add more gelatin to make it slightly firmer. A large mold should also be made somewhat firmer to ensure thorough setting.

Allow at least three hours chilling time for mixtures to become firm. Large molds may need to chill overnight before being turned out.

To unmold, dip the mold in warm water (not hot) to the depth of the gelatin mixture. Loosen around the edge with a sharp knife or a spatula. Put a serving dish on top of the mold, hold tightly and quickly turn it upside down. Shake it slightly to loosen. If the salad doesn't come out of the mold, place a warm cloth over the mold for a few minutes.

Surround a large jellied salad with salad greens once it is on the serving dish. You can turn out individual molds directly onto greens as there isn't as much danger of them breaking. Garnish salads with cucumbers, radishes and carrot curls.

The food consultants have developed two tasty jellied salads — "Rainbow Salad" and a metric "Tomato Aspic". Try them and see how easy it is to make fantastic molded salads.

RAINBOW SALAD

1 6-ounce package lemon jelly powder
2 cups boiling water green pepper into ½-cup por-
1 cup cold water
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup vinegar
½ cup finely chopped green pepper
1 cup shredded carrot
1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
2 cups shredded cabbage

Dissolve jelly powder in boiling water. Add cold water, salt and vinegar. Divide the mixture into ½-cup, 1-cup and 2-cup portions. Chill each portion until partially set (about 45 minutes, 1 hour and 1½ hours respectively). Fold green pepper into ½-cup portion. Turn into 6-cup mold and chill until almost set. Fold carrot into 1-cup portion. Turn onto green pepper layer and chill until almost set. Fold mayonnaise or salad dressing and cabbage into 2-cup portion. Turn onto carrot layer and chill until firm (about three hours). Eight servings.

TOMATO ASPIC

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
900 ml tomato juice
5 ml salt
10 ml sugar
5 ml onion juice
2 ml Worcestershire sauce
25 ml vinegar

Soak gelatin in 125 ml tomato juice. Combine remaining juice and ingredients; bring to a boil. Add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Pour into mold and chill until firm. Eight servings.

NEW POTATOES

Potato lovers are anticipating the 1977 crop of new potatoes now arriving on the market. These immature potatoes can be graded as Canada No. 1 potatoes until mid-September of this year.

There are other differences between new potatoes and mature potatoes besides their age say food consultants with the Food Advisory Division of Agriculture Canada. New potatoes are more perishable and bruise more easily. They do not store well and so should be bought in small quantities and used up quickly.

On the plus side, new potatoes contain more vitamin C and are smoother in texture and more delicate in flavor than mature potatoes.

The delicate flavor of new potatoes makes them a perfect companion to the fresh vegetables available at this time of year. The Food Consultants have teamed up new potatoes with green beans and they make an irresistible combination.

GREEN BEANS AND NEW POTATOES

½ cup finely chopped onion
2 Tablespoons fat
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup beef bouillon
1 pound green beans, cut in 1-inch pieces
1 pound new potatoes, peeled and cubed
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon thyme

Saute onion in fat until transparent. Blend in flour, then gradually add bouillon. Stir and cook until smooth and think. Add beans and arrange potatoes on top. Sprinkle with salt and thyme. Bring to boil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer until vegetables are tender (15 to 20 minutes). Six servings.

Tea Biscuits, Salad Great Party Ideas

Mary Moore

Two ideas that I had that were popular at a dinner party in June were Dilled Tea Biscuits Supreme and an avocado, grapefruit and tomato salad. I served these with the Shrimp and Cod Bisque and Coquilles St. Jacques that I described to you a couple of weeks ago.

TEA BISCUITS SUPREME

2 c. stirred but unsifted all-purpose flour
4 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. cream of tartar
½ tsp. salt
2 tsp. sugar
½ c. butter or margarine or shortening or chicken fat
¾ c. milk

Variations: 2 tsp. dill weed OR ½ c. Parmesan OR ¼ c. poppy seeds.

Sift together into mixing bowl the flour, baking powder, cream of tartar, salt and sugar. If either of the three variations are used add them now. Cut in butter (OR fat of your choice) with pastry blender until size of peas. Add milk all at once and quickly stir in. Turn out onto flour-sprinkled board, pat smoothly to ¾" thickness and cut out with 2-inch floured cutter. Bake on ungreased baking sheet at 450 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes.

AVACADO, GRAPEFRUIT AND TOMATO SALADS

1 large or 2 medium ripe avocados
1 19-ounce can grapefruit sections, drained
2 large ripe tomatoes
genuine mayonnaise
5 perfect cupped iceberg lettuce leaves

Peel and cut the avacado into 15 crescent-shaped wedges. Drain the grapefruit. Wash and cut the tomatoes into 15 wedges.

Arrange these wedges alternately and overlapping on the lettuce leaves snugly enough that when they are transferred to guests' plates they keep their shape.

Arrange all five salad-filled lettuce cups on large serving plate or platter and top each at centre with about 1½ tbsp. genuine thick mayonnaise. This is a beautiful and different salad plate for a guest dinner table. Serves five.

Cucumber Salad

5 cups thinly sliced cucumber (peeled, if desired)
1 tsp. salt
1 cup sour cream
¼ cup mayonnaise
1 tbsp. tarragon vinegar
¼ cup thinly sliced green onion
1 clove garlic, crushed
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 tsp. anchovy paste
dash tabasco
radishes, thinly sliced

Prepare cucumbers; place in bowl. Sprinkle with salt. Allow to stand for 30 minutes. Meanwhile, prepare dressing. In bowl, combine sour cream, mayonnaise, vinegar, green onion, garlic, Worcestershire sauce, anchovy paste, and tabasco. Stir to blend well. Drain the cucumber slices thoroughly; drizzle the sour cream mixture over top of cucumbers.

Stir gently to coat cucumbers evenly. Cover and refrigerate until well chilled. To serve, arrange bed of lettuce in salad bowl. Spoon cucumbers and dressing into bowl. Garnish with extra chopped parsley and sliced radishes.

HIGH PROTEIN DIETS AND FATTY LIVERS

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By Dr. Jean Mayer and Dr. Johanna Dwyer

Q. Can you tell me whether a high protein diet will protect an alcoholic from getting a fatty liver?

A. Until recently, it was thought that an adequate diet would afford protection against liver disease in alcoholics. Now we know that this simply is not so.

Population studies in France and Germany plus experimental data indicate that liver disease is more closely linked to the amount of alcohol consumed rather than a dietary deficiency. Apparently, the liver prefers to use the calories from alcohol instead of those from fat for energy. And the fat that is not burned begins to build up in the liver.

Because generous amounts of protein had been found useful in treating alcoholic liver disease, it was thought that protein might offer some special protection against the development of a fatty liver. But this idea has not stood up under investigation.

A few years ago five volunteers were fed a nutritionally adequate diet containing twice the recommended dietary allowance of protein. Because previous animal studies showed that reduction of the fat content of the diet resulted in a decreased accumulation of fat in the liver, the amount of fat was kept quite low. Liver tests done during the control period were normal, even though all subjects had previous histories of alcoholism and fatty liver.

When alcohol was substituted for carbohydrate-rich foods in the diet, however, the picture changed. At the end of the study-period, tests showed structural changes in the liver as well as elevated levels of fatty substances. One month after the alcohol was withdrawn, liver studies repeated on two of the volunteers revealed that the fat content of the liver had returned to normal.

While we acknowledge that for many people it is far more easily said than done, all the evidence we have at the moment shows that the way to protect against alcoholic fatty liver is to eliminate alcohol.

Q. Could you please tell us about the need for chromium in human nutrition?

A. About 20 years ago it was shown that a substance called "glucose tolerance factor" (GTF) was necessary to remove glucose from the blood stream. Shortly thereafter, a particular form of chromium, called trivalent chromium, was identified as the "active ingredient" in GTF.

In subsequent studies, chromium supplementation was found to improve abnormal glucose tolerance in a number of elderly individuals. It has also been shown to have a positive effect on children with a particular type of protein-caloric malnutrition. At the present time, it is also thought that GTF acts to increase the effectiveness of insulin in the cells.

Chromium occurs in certain foods and can be utilized directly by animals and man. But the ability of humans to synthesize GTF in the body apparently varies, with the result that different individuals seem to depend on preformed GTF to different degrees.

It is interesting that chromium levels in human tissue tend to decline with increasing age. The older you get, the less you need. This may be due to an accumulated nutritional deficit as a result of a prolonged inadequate dietary intake, or to as yet unidentified causes.

One explanation for this is that modern food-processing methods result in large losses of chromium (up to 83 per cent is lost in refining flour). It is also thought that high-carbohydrate diets may increase the risk of deficiency by enhancing urinary chromium excretion.

The best dietary sources of chromium include beef, liver, cheese, whole wheat breads, cereals and brewer's yeast. Once again, the evidence points to less-refined foods, such as whole grain breads and cereals, as one way of insuring an adequate intake of trace minerals we are still learning about.

Not Interested

ABBY: My husband has been interested in nudism for some time, and has tried to get me to go to a nudist camp with him. I have nothing against nudist camps, but I'm just not the type who could strip down naked in front of strangers.

We've had many arguments about this, and have even come close to getting a divorce over it. I don't see how normal people can go to a place like that without getting a few "evil" thoughts. Am I wrong to think this way, or am I evil-minded?

Do you think a man who really loved his wife would want her to go naked in front of other men? — MODEST.

DEAR MODEST: Our attitudes about nudity are based on our early training, acquired inhibitions and the accepted social customs of society. Some people go in for unconventional behavior, but that doesn't necessarily make them "evil-minded."

I believe everything has its place — including the fig leaf.

DEAR ABBY: I didn't sleep a wink last night. Yesterday while driving a well-travelled street, I felt a sudden thump, and I knew I hit something. I stopped abruptly, nearly causing an accident, and discovered that I had struck a beautiful golden cocker spaniel puppy.

He had no tags, but I didn't want to waste precious time trying to find his owner, so I put him in my car and rushed him to the vet.

Unfortunately, the puppy had suffered a broken neck and a severed spine and he died shortly after reaching the vet's.

He was such a beautiful dog, it nearly broke my heart. But I was blameless. I wasn't going fast. The dog should not have been loose.

Abby, please ask dog owners to keep their dogs securely tied up. Someone is grieving over the loss of a precious pet, a beautiful animal has lost his life, and I am feelign heartsick over something that was not my fault. — MOTORIST.

DEAR MOTORIST: Well stated.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever someone writes and asks what they should do about a friend who has bad breath or body odor, you always say, "It would be a kindness to TELL the person."

Well, I know a woman whose breath was so bad she lost three husbands.

I told her once that she needed a good strong mouthwash, and she never spoke to me again.

P.S. I sure didn't miss her. — TABOO SUBJECT.

DEAR ABBY: My sister has developed an allergy to doing dishes. The minute she starts doing the dishes, she sneezes. It's not just one sneeze, but a long string of them.

Mama says she can't help it, so I have to do the dishes alone. What should I do? I think my sister is just trying to get out of doing the dishes. — DISHWASHER.

DEAR DISH: Your sister could be allergic to the soap powder or liquid detergent you use for dishwashing. A doctor could determine this. If that's the case, it's time for a change (What a spot for a commercial!)

CONFIDENTIAL TO SEPTEMBER BRIDE: If you are concerned only with what you will get out of marriage, your marriage will fail. You may never be divorced, but your marriage will fail nevertheless.

Happy Motoring ... Ever Since 1932

ST. ALBANS, England (CP) — Peter Lilley's car does 35 miles to the gallon on the highway and it cost him only $110.

He bought his 1929 MG Tourer second hand from a friend in 1932 and has been driving it happily ever since.

"She's still as smooth as a turbine," said Lilley, an insurance broker. "Her cruising speed is between 50 and 57 miles an hour. I've had lots of offers but I don't want to sell."

The Tourer, which was manufactured from 1927 to 1929, has an 1,800 cc. side-valve Morris Oxford engine, four-wheel drum brakes, a cork-lined clutch running in oil and a dynamotor starter worked by a floor button.

There is no problem with spare parts. He has enough stashed away in his home to last another 10 years.

Once a farmer gave him parts from a 1927 GM that had been rotting in his field for 20 years. Another time he found a 1925 Morris Oxford engine in the remains of a car that had been converted into a tractor and then abandoned.

"That engine is in my car now," Lilley said. "It was modified to MG specifications."

At one time, Lilley dismantled the car down to the chassis and rebuilt it. The job took him three years.

He said he drives the car about 2,000 miles a year, hitting 75 occasionally on an open stretch of road.

"She handles very nicely and has no particular vices. She holds her own in modern traffic and I'm very proud of her."

Ever wonder why a fresh head of lettuce in the refrigerator gets those tiny brown spots? It could be that you're storing the lettuce near fresh fruit. The ripening fruit can give off gases that spot the lettuce. Putting the lettuce in an air-tight bag should prevent the unappetizing brown spots.

Save the dried end of a chunk of cheese that wasn't wrapped tightly. It can be grated now or later for a topping when you need only a little cheese. A glass jar or plastic bag will keep it from drying out even more, and you can keep adding more bits and pieces. The're great for a cheese pie topped with bits of leftover bacon.

Did you know that red hibiscus flowers (native to China and found throughout the Orient) are used to make a food coloring most popular in India?

Did you know amaryllis must be kept tightly pot-bound and repotted only every fourth year? Otherwise, roots will grow. When they use all their strength to grow roots, they refuse to flower the second year. But if you continue the usual cycle, they will reward you with a consistent flowering cycle thereafter.

Did you know that hydrangea is a natural litmus paper? Pink flowers turn blue in acid soil and blue flowers turn pink with alkalinity. If you want yours to stay true to their original color, add a teaspoon of lime to the water for pink flowers and half a teaspoon of alum to the water for blue flowers.

Did you know that the split-leaf philodendron deliciosa produces a fruit with the combined flavors of bannana and pineapple? All that in a climbing vine with the capacity to grow gorgeous leaves, up to three feet across. Where? In a tropical jungle, naturally.

Chicken and Rice ... One Casserole

By PIERRE FRANEY

In traditional menu planning, a main course, more often than not, is served with a starch such as rice or potatoes, plus a green vegetable. Quite obviously, when planning a meal to be cooked in limited time, if you can combine all these elements in one casserole — and in less time than it takes to prepare each separately — you are ahead of the game.

Those who frown on or shun recipes with long lists of ingredients should also take pleasure in this one. The total number here is less than 12.

The recommended way to use this recipe is as follows:

Prepare and measure all the necessary ingredients. That is to say, chop the onions, garlic and mushrooms and have them ready. Measure out the rice, wine and chicken broth. Then heat the butter in a skillet, add the chicken pieces, which have been sprinkled with salt and pepper, and continue cooking until done.

CHICKEN AND RICE CASSEROLE

- 2 whole chicken breasts, split in half, about two pounds total weight (4 pieces)
- Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste.
- 2 tablespoons butter
- ½ cup finely chopped onion
- 1 teaspoon chopped garlic
- One-third pound fresh mushrooms, left whole if very small, otherwise sliced or quartered, depending on size
- 1 bay leaf
- ½ cup dry white wine
- ½ cup raw rice
- 1 cup chicken broth

1. Do not skin or bone the chicken breasts. Sprinkle the chicken pieces with salt and pepper.

2. Heat the butter in a skillet and add the chicken pieces, skin side down. Brown about five minutes and turn.

3. Scatter the onion and garlic between the chicken pieces and add the mushrooms and bay leaf. Cook about five minutes.

4. Add the wine and cook until it is almost all evaporated. Add the rice and broth, taking care that the rice does not rest on top of the chicken pieces. Cover closely and cook about 20 minutes or until rice is tender.

Yield: Four servings.

PEACH CHUTNEY

- 4 lbs. peaches, peeled
- 1 cup seedless raisins
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 2-3 cup chopped preserved ginger
- 1-2 tablespoons chili powder
- 1 tablespoon mustard seed
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 4 tablespoons mixed pickling spice
- 4 cups cider vinegar
- 2 lbs. brown sugar

Slice peaches, combine with remaining ingredients (mixed pickling spice tied in cheesecloth bag) in large bowl. Cover and let stand overnight.

Turn mixture into heavy kettle. Bring to boil. Simmer, uncovered, until chutney is of desired consistency. Stir frequently to prevent scorching. Remove spice bag. Ladle chutney into sterilized jars. Seal.

elizabeth forbes

It was Dorita Grant's birthday and husband Mickey gave her a brand new $20 bill with strict instructions it was not to be used to buy shoes for younger members of the family, nor for household accounts. It was for something very special. Something for her — and her alone.

That was 10 or 12 years ago.

Reminiscing about the gift today, Dorita remembers she couldn't decide what that "something special" would be.

"So the money burned a hole in my pocket for days."

Then, quite by accident, she went to a Crewel embroidery exhibition in the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, arranged by Peggy Bartholomew, an acknowledged expert in this art form.

That did it! Then and there Dorita Grant developed an interest in Crewel embroidery.

She talked to Mrs. Bartholomew. Asked her to assemble an embroidery kit for her and to give her some instruction in the basic stitches.

The kit included a pattern in floral design on which Dorita spent hours of work.

"It was my first piece and I did want it to be right," she told me.

When she showed it to Mrs. Bartholomew she was told "in no uncertain terms where I had gone wrong and at the same time encouraged to continue my work."

Actually, from that day, Mrs. Grant never looked back.

With a distinct talent for stitchery and a deep love for the work, she has progressed in a little over a decade into teaching the art at Camosun College, at the Oak Bay Seniors Centre and at Henderson Pavilion, where she includes applique and related stitchery.

It was just a year after she picked up her Crewel embroidery kit that Mrs. Bartholomew telephoned one day to say Camosun College had asked her to start a night class there.

She had turned the offer down but had given Dorita Grant's name as a "possibility" to take her place.

Dorita was not sure she was ready to teach and it was husband Mickey who again gave the deciding push.

As he saw it the worst they could do would be to fire her, therefore she should give it a try.

Today her Camosun College night class is so popular she has to limit it to 20 students each term. "I can teach 20 quite easily . . . but no more."

Her students are in all ages. Occasionally there will be one or two men in a class and "they are usually very good at stitchery."

Teen-agers, too, sign on once in a while and Dorita likes that. "I love to see a mix of young and old . . . they work well together," she says.

She did teach stitchery to children for a time at summer classes, first in the basement of the Oak Bay Municipal Hall and latterly in Windsor Park Pavilion.

"I finally had to bow out of that phase of my work," she says. "You see, while I loved teaching other people's children I had a family of my own (four sons and a daughter) and I wanted to be with them on weekends."

In the years she has been teaching stitchery, Dorita Grant has also been increasing her own knowledge and expertise.

She used printed patterns in the beginning. "Lovely things, drawn and colored by real artists," she says, "but the time came when I wanted to branch out."

That's when she joined the Embroiders Guild of Victoria, where encouragement is given to produce original designs and patterns.

Through this contact Dorita developed her own style with such success she now has one of her designs titled A Stitch in Time (her impression of old buildings in Oak Bay) hanging in the Oak Bay Municipal Hall and another named Behind the Tweed Curtain (an Oak Bay Tea Party design) in the Toronto-Dominion Bank on Estevan Avenue.

There is also a frontal ("a work of love") in St. Philip's Church that combines applique and stitchery.

While she tells you she will always place Crewel embroidery at the top of stitchery art, Dorita now experiments with and teaches many different stitches.

She also uses many mediums — wools, beads, gold threads and even pure silk thread "the kind you cannot find anywhere now and that only comes in the form of a gift from someone who has had those spools of silk for many years."

A front room in the Grant's Dunlevy Street home (once the master bedroom) is now Dorita's workshop. There you find her materials aand pressing irons, her working frames and her original designs, some finished and ready to work, others still in the formative stage.

"I draw the original designs first, fit them into a pattern, then decide on the colors. I'm going to use and paint or crayon those colors in before I start the stitchery."

Dorita has also gathered a fine collection of old-time embroidery, over the years.

"It started in the days when I helped at church and Brownie bazaars (she has also been a Brownie leader), and when the day was over I'd find lovely pieces of hand embroidery amongst the leftovers.

"I couldn't bear to see them tossed out so I'd take the pieces home and gradually I've built up a very good collection."

She also has some fine pieces of Oriental embroideries, framed and displayed, in the Dunlevy home.

"I drool every time I see an extra fine piece, and I want it," she confesses.

All in all, the years since husband Mickey gave her that $20 bill for her birthday have been "enriching and rewarding," Dorita Grant says.

Her family is now grown up (indeed there are five grandchildren coming and going now); and she has more and more time for stitchery art.

"I've loved the work right from the start," she says, "and I will always love it!"

"At the same time I've tried to keep it in the nature of a delightful hobby . . . a fun thing as I see it, not only in doing my own stitchery but in my teaching, too. And that's the way I always want it to be!"

Postscript — Dorita Grant is arranging a first showing of her stitchery art and that of some of her students for September 24 and 25 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Oak Bay Seniors Centre.

It would be worth your while to mark those dates on your calendar — and drop in.

SOUPS . . . LIKE DRINKS CAN BE CHILLED JOY

craig claiborne

We think a lot about the changing eating and drinking habits of people. In a way, it could be said that the public has moved into the ice age within the past quarter-century.

Before the Second World War, cocktails "on the rocks" were all but unknown, if not unthinkable. As a matter of fact, we doubt that the phrase "on the rocks" had even been coined.

Of course, drinks were taken with ice-scotch and soda, Scotch and water and so on, but martinis, old-fashioneds, manhattans and other mixed drinks were almost never nursed over ice.

The same is true of soups. Prior to that same war, soups were almost never chilled. Gazpacho probably existed in Spain, but was practically unknown on this continent. The first cold soup to become popular in this country, of course, was Louis Diat's creation, vichyssoise. Happily, the public now knows well the joy of these chilled first courses, a few of which are set forth here.

CREME FLORENTINE

(Cream of spinach soup)

- One-and-on-half pounds spinach
- 3 cups water
- Salt
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 6 cups chicken broth
- One-half cup heavy cream
- 4 egg yolks
- One-eighth teaspoon grated nutmeg, or to taste
- Cayenne pepper
- 2 tablespoons fresh lime or lemon juice.

1. Pick over the spinach to remove any tough stems. Rinse the spinach well in several changes of cold water to remove any traces of sand.

2. Bring the water to the boil and add salt to taste. Add the spinach, stirring it down to wilt. Cook about three minutes and drain in a colander. Run under cold running water and drain. Squeeze between the hands to extract excess moisture. There should be slightly more than half a cup. Chop the spinach fine or blend it, stirring down as necessary with a spatula. Do not add liquid.

3. Melt the butter and add the flour, stirring with a wire whisk. When blended, add the broth, stirring rapidly with the whisk. Simmer about 30 minutes, stirring frequently.

4. Blend the cream and egg yolks. Remove the soup from the heat and stir in the yolk and cream mixture. Add the spinach and bring the soup almost but not quite to the boil, stirring vigorously. Add the remaining ingredients. Let cool, then refrigerate and serve cold. Can also be served piping hot.

Yield: Six to eight servings.

CREME CRECY

(Cream of carrot soup)

- 1 pound carrots, 8 to 10
- 1 pound potatoes, 3 to 5
- 2 tablespoons butter
- One-half cup coarsely chopped onion
- 6 cups rich chicken broth
- 2 sprigs fresh thyme or teaspoon dried
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 cup heavy cream
- One-eighth teaspoon Tabasco sauce, or to taste
- ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- ½ teaspoon sugar
- Salt and freshly ground pepper
- 1 cup cold milk

1. Trim off the ends of the carrots. Pare the carrots and potatoes with a swivel-bladed vegetable scrapper. Cut the carrots into rounds. Cube the potatoes. Set aside.

2. Heat the butter in a kettle and add the onion. Cook briefly, stirring. Add the carrots, potatoes and chicken broth and bring to the boil. Add the thyme and bay leaf. Bring to the boil and simmer 30 to 40 minutes until the carrots and potatoes are tender.

3. Put the mixture through a food mill and let it chill. Put it in the container of an electric blender and blend. This may have to be done in two stages. Bring the mixture to the boil and add the remaining ingredients. Pour into a bowl and chill thoroughly. Serve very cold. Can also be served piping hot at point soup returns to the boil.

Yield: Six to eight servings.

SAVORY BEETS

- 4 cups sliced cooked beets
- 3 slices side bacon, diced
- 2 tsp. grated onion
- 1 tsp. prepared horseradish
- 2 tsp. honey
- 2 tsp. lemon juice
- ¼ tsp. salt (or to taste)

Prepare beets; set aside. In saucepan, saute bacon and onions until bacon is crisp and onion is tender. Reduce heat. Stir in horse radish, honey, and lemon juice. Season with salt. Stir in beets. Cover and heat through. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

BARLEY AND YOGURT SOUP

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 cup finely chopped onion
- ½ cup medium pearl barley
- 3 cups chicken broth
- 3 cups yogurt
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped mint plus chopped mint for garnish
- Salt.

1. Heat the butter in a saucepan and add the onion. Cook until wilted and add the barley.

2. Add the chicken broth and bring to the boil. Cover and simmer about one hour or until tender.

3. Cool the soup, then refrigerate it. When thoroughly cold, stir in the yogurt and two tablespoons chopped mint. Add salt to taste and chill. Serve sprinkled with chopped mint on top.

Yield: Six servings.

A heart attack is a very frightening experience! If you or somebody in your family has had a coronary, you will have many questions which bother you. Do discuss them with your doctor. In addition, the eight-page pamphlet After a Coronary, will be of help.

For instance, it says that the majority of patients survive their first heart attack and most recover so completely that they can enjoy many years of productive activity. Those who recover from a heart attack can usually take walks, play golf, fish, swim and engage in similar activities without difficulty. Doctors are now of the opinion that for most heart patients exercise is good, provided it does not result in pain, shortness of breath or other symptoms.

After their attack, some persons are advised by their doctor to eat less than formerly to keep their weight down. As a heavy meal makes a heavy demand on the heart, many heart patients find it easier to have several light meals a day instead of the traditional three.

The booklet also assures readers that although people say that if you have had one heart attack, you are bound to have another, this is not necessarily the case. The outlook for coronary patients is becoming increasingly optimistic!

With your request for the pamphlet please enclose a long (No. 10) self-addressed, stamped envelope and sent it to: Quebec Heart Foundation, 1455 Peel St., Suite M31-32, Montreal, Quebec. H3A 1T5.

Please indicate your postal code and allow at least 2 to 3 weeks for delivery.

'Simple' Fracture

LESTER B. COLEMAN, M.D.

I slipped on the ice six months ago and broke my leg. It was called a "simple" fracture. I am 66 and I hope you will tell your readers that a "simple" fracture is not so "simple." I haven't recovered from it yet. — Mr. D.S.

Dear Mr. S:

I'm sure that my readers will benefit from your letter I'm certain, too, that they join me in hoping that your not-so-simple problem will soon be over.

It's a misconception that a simple fracture of the bone is not serious. A simple fracture means that the fractured bone did not penetrate through the skin.

This is different from the "compound" fracture, in which fragments of bone have torn through the muscles and the skin and exposed the injured tissue to infection.

The healing of any kind of fracture is a very complex process. In the young, where the blood circulation is active, both compound and simple fractures heal more readily.

In the elderly, where the blood circulation is poorer, fragments of bone may not heal as rapidly. Sometimes there is a delay in the union of the broken ends of the bone. In some instances, there is no union at all, and this requires one of a variety of operations to cure it.

Anyone who has never had the pain of sciatica will want to know as I do, what causes it. — Mr. J.R.

Dear Mr. R.:

The sciatic nerve is one of the longest nerves in the body. It starts in the lower spine, extends through the buttock, down the back of the thigh, the calf and into the foot.

One of the most difficult problems facing a doctor is to distinguish between sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, slipped disc and the lower back pain syndrome. The symptoms resemble each other so closely that diagnosis is possible only after intensive study.

The sciatic nerve can be injured by walking, bicycling, riding a horse, poor posture, or by carrying a heavy load. Sciatica can also result from chronic alcoholism or lead poisoning. Osteoarthritis of the spine, local infections and fibroids of the uterus are other potential causes for sciatica. Each much be tracked down, for neglected sciatica can become complicated and incapacitating.

INSULATION AID REFUSED BY TWO

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal grants to help insulate homes will go into effect Sept. 1 in all but the provinces of Quebec and Alberta, the federal energy department announced Wednesday.

The government offered the $1.4 billion program to the provinces in June, but only if they met other conservation standards such as lower speed limits and elimination of sales taxes on insulating materials.

But two provinces declined to meet the conditions and residents there will not be eligible for the grants of up to $350 to meet two-thirds of the costs of insulation materials.

A program of grants for such work was introduced in Prince Edward Island late last year and Nova Scotia earlier this year, leading to demands from the other provinces that it be extended country-wide.

EDMONTON (CP) — A police notice that a man described as "extremely dangerous" was being released from prison in another province has prompted several city hospitals to warn their staffs not to wear white uniforms to and from work.

Police forces in Alberta and Saskatchewan were notified earlier this month of the man's release.

An Alberta RCMP officer said the notice they received said the 27-year-old man was a dangerous sexual offender who "has a liking for nurses or women in white."

Last week, an Edmonton city policeman went to the city-operated Royal Alexandra Hospital and warned several staff about the man's release.

Hospital authorities issued an order telling their nursing staff that they were not to wear their white uniforms after finishing shifts and they were to leave the hospital in groups.

Later in the week, several other hospitals issued the same warning to their nursing staffs. One city policeman said the Royal Alexandra Hospital over-reacted.

The RCMP were notified that they were to put the man under observation if he was located. They were uncertain where the man was going to stay and notices were sent to Edmonton, Calgary and two Saskatchewan cities.

Sask. Employees Walk Out

REGINA (CP) — Office staff of the Saskatchewan Government Employees Association walked off the job Wednesday in a contract dispute with the union.

The walkout apparently involved about 20 persons.

One member in Saskatoon and two in Prince Albert joined the walkout.

The president of the association, Earl Storey of Swift Current, said the striking workers have been without a contract since June.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Socially speaking, the ability to deceive is not considered to be an admirable trait; and the deceiver is frowned upon by society. But at the bridge table, the practical ability to deceive is a trait which often determines whether one emerges as a winner or a loser.

Here is an example of deception in action.

	♠ Q J 10 7
	♡ K J 10 9 4
	◇ K J
WEST		EAST
♠ 4		♠ K 9 6
♡ 8 6 3 2		♡ 7 5
◇ 8 5		◇ A 7 6 4 3
♣ A K Q 10 9		♣ J 8 2
	SOUTH
	♡ A Q
	◇ Q 10 9 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♣	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣.

On West's opening lead of the club king, East made a most unusual play: he initiated a high-low signal by dropping the jack. To trick two West led the ace of clubs, East following with the deuce. To trick three West played the club queen.

As everybody around the table "knew," East's high-low signal indicated that he had been dealt the doubleton J-2 of clubs. And so, quite naturally, declarer ruffed the third club lead with dummy's queen — as East followed suit with the club eight.

The trump jack was then led, East playing the six and South the deuce. When the trump ten was led next, East covered with the king, South's ace winning. East's nine of trumps had just become the highest-ranking trump left in the deck. Since South had to lose a diamond trick, he eventually incurred a one-trick set.

It is evident that if declarer had ruffed the third club lead with the board's seven of trumps, he woud have been home safely, since he could then have taken two successful finesses against East's guarded king of trumps.

But the theme of this deal is East's imaginative high-low signal. Had he played "normally" — the deuce of clubs followed by the eight on West's lead of the king and ace of clubs — declarer would have waltzed in with his contract. In this case, West would undoubtedly have shifted to a diamond at trick three and all the defenders would have made from here in would have been East's ace of diamonds.

On this day, however, East's deceptive signal paid a deserved dividend, for it lured declarer up the wrong path.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, August 19

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Go slow — avoid co-signing, making commitments. Time is on your side. Play waiting game. Accent on co-operative efforts, partnership, marriage. Pisces, Virgo play roles. Define terms. Avoid self-deception. Be positive concerning legal rights and permissions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Low-key approach is best—past obligations prevent free-and-easy decisions. Accent on work, service, basic issues and health. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure in scenario. Material sorely needed will become available.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on creativity, "spreading the message," getting rid of burden not your own to carry in first place. Aries, Libra figure in picture. Popularity increases as views are vindicated. Yes, you're a winner — definitely!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): New approach to older individuals could bring desired results. Home, property improvement may be in picture. You end one phase of activity — and you're ready for cold plunge into future. Yes, love plays a paramount role.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Short trip is on agenda. Close neighbor, relative might be involved. Favor is requested, is time-consuming but you should do it. If you go out of your way — you will be repaid many times. Yes, this is an opportunity to build bridge goodwill. Aquarius, Cancer could be in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on resourcefulness. Versatility can win major points. Financial picture is brighter than might be apparent. Know it and take chance on your capabilities. Cycle is such that you win — timing is on target. Some will dub you, "Lucky."

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Move ahead, take initiative; trust judgment, hunches. Be direct, dynamic, confident; Moon in libra coincides with pieces falling into place for you. You will be on a more solid foundation. You get support from elders, superiors.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Stick to number "5". Be ready for change of scenery. Make inquiries — don't accept superficial explanations. Dig beneath surface, go behind the scenes. Visit one confined to home, hospital. You may be subject to discussion at "closed-door" session.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on building for future, investing in enterprise that has potential, making valuable contacts. Romance, friendship and recreation also figure in scenario. Yes, you will be busy — and Taurus, Libra individuals figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be positive concerning terms — check resources of one who makes slick claims. Steer away from any tendency towards self-deception. Build on solid base. Emphasis on how to relate to authority, professional superiors. Someone is going to give you a hand up the ladder.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Solidify long-range plans. Your "visions" can become realities. Key is confidence, spiritual insight, willingness to listen as "inner voice" has its say. Capricorn, Cancer figure in scenario. You get letter of confirmation. Agreement is firm!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on mystery, occult, money in connection with investment, partner, mate. You regain what was lost — you "locate" one willing to support your interests. Put finishing touches on project, promotion. Aries is very much in picture. Money questions are due to be resolved.

IF AUGUST 19th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are creative, independent, stubborn, temperamental. Your domestic situation has been changing — the place of residence may not be the same, especially during September. Leo, Aquarius individuals play important roles in your life. You appreciate art, food, luxury. You are considered "sexy" and you usually know what you want and when you want it. You're no angel, but you can be kind, generous, extravagant in desire to please those close to you.

GARDENING
jack beastall

Trees Are Wonderful, But . . .

Clear skies and temperatures edging into the "hot" range cause us to search the garden for a cool spot.

The coolest spot is always under trees, not only because of the shade beneath their foliage, but due to the increased humidity from the moisture given off by their leaves.

During the summer many home gardeners decide that some kind of tree shade is necessary, a decision often based on a pleasant afternoon spent in the shady garden of a friend or neighbor.

Trees certainly have a place in all gardens, but they must be chosen with due regard to their ultimate dimensions and their rooting habits.

Poplars, weeping willows, and especially coniferous trees which are 60 footers by nature, are best left to public parks and acreages where they can spread their branches and roots, and their beauty is viewed from a distance.

In a small garden, such as the average lot 50 by 60 feet wide, shade and greedy roots can severly limit the assortment of other plants that can be grown, and in some instances prevent success with that patch of grass the gardener has fondly envisioned.

The roots can also cause problems with drains. Roots of the weeping willow, for instance, have travelled 75 feet to a drain tile on the far side of adjoining property, while poplars on a fence line have turned half a lot into bare soil.

When selecting trees for a small garden it is important to choose those which, when fully grown, will be in keeping with the area in which they are planted.

Since we cannot change the size of the property to suit the kind of trees we would like to have, it is wise to choose the kind of trees that will fit into the property.

Selecting the right size trees is also a saving in money. Most trees of planting size can be purchased for 8 to 15 dollars, but their removal when they become too large for the property can cost 100 to 150 dollars each. And after removal the gardener is back to square one.

Many gardeners believe they can control the height of a tree with pruners, and later discover to their dismay that a tree with a natural height of 50 feet cannot be held to 15 feet.

When we reach the point of desiring trees for shade, we look for something that will grow quickly. Any tree that grows quickly has two faults. Quick growth is soft growth which cannot take a cold winter, and such trees are usually killed once in every ten years.

Quick growth is possible because the tree has a far ranging root system that seeks and secures, the quantities of moisture and nutrients that permit the fast growth, this at the expense of other plants, even those in neighboring gardens.

In addition to ultimate size, trees must suit the conditions under which they are expected to grow, conditions of soil, moisture at roots summer and winter, and the micro-climate of the garden.

The greatest difficulty is not in finding a tree that will suit the garden, for the cultivated species available have never been fully exploited by home gardeners, but in finding a gardener who will accept a tree suited to the limitations imposed by the conditions within his garden.

Should trees be on your "want list", select them now from a nursery specializing in garded ornamentals. Give the nurseryman full details of your conditions, and enquire about pests or diseases to which your choice may be susceptible.

Order the trees and plant this fall, and you will have a small patch of shade five years hence.

EARLY FLIGHT 'PERMANENT'

Pacific Western Airlines will restore its 7:30 a.m. flights to Seattle indefinitely starting Dec. 1, PWA vice-president G. J. Cooke said Wednesday.

Cooke said the change from 10:15 a.m. is being made at the request of Victoria travel agents and the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

The company is already committed to switching from the present time of 7:30 a.m. to 10:15 a.m. on Sept. 18 and will do this but from Dec. 1 onwards the flight will always leave Victoria at 7:30 a.m., he said.

Victoria officials asked for the 7:30 a.m. departure time so it would connect in Seattle with major flights to Hawaii and to eastern United States.

In December the service will use a 56-seat prop-jet Convair but this plane will be phased out next year and will be replaced with a 117-seat Boeing 737 jet.

New High In Donors At VPL

The Victoria Press building blood donor clinic Wednesday yielded 154 pints — a record clinic for that location — and brought to 544 the number of pints donated this week.

If the remaining two days of this month's drive are as successful, Victoria will have done much to relieve the shortage in the province.

Clinic co-ordinator Gerry Savage said several clinics in northern B.C. had to be cancelled because of the air traffic controllers strike.

They were expected to bring in 1,500 units of blood, and last-minute clinics arranged to take their place were less successful.

The B.C. blood bank called the Victoria trank thanking it for the above-average clinics which have helped provincial hospitals meet their needs this week.

The drive ends with clinics today and Friday. Today's clinic at the Esquimalt Lions Club, 527 Fraser continues to 8 p.m.

Friday's clinic at Eaton's Home Furnishings Building runs from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30

Got a Hangover? Try These Cures

NEW YORK (CP) — Hangover remedies abound, from aspirin to pick-me-up recipes.

Maury Hopson, a New York beauty free-lancer, offers two approaches to the "morning after" that deliciously late night of non-stop dancing, chatting, buckets of wine and chain-smoked cigarettes.

The first calls for one cup of hot water, two spoonfuls of cider vinegar and one of honey. The second, a bullshot recipe Hopson got from Liz Taylor, he thinks would apply to the "real disasters:" four ounces of cold beef bouillon spiced with freshly ground salt and pepper are mixed with a juice of one lemon, a dash of horseradish and "just enough vodka" over ice.

Skin expert Janet Sartin cures puffy eyes with one-fourth teaspoon of boric acid powder dissolved in a pint of boiling water.

When it is cool, soak cotton balls in the liquid and rest them on the eye-lids for three to five minutes. She added that the remainder of the solution can be kept in the refrigerator.

Gerard Bollei, a hair salon owner, suggests warm camomile tea bags or sliced raw potato used in the same fashion on the lids.

Tired skin can be revitalized with a masque made of the whites of eggs, according to Bollei.

"Just smear it all over the face and let it dry, then rinse it off," he suggested.

And for morning mouth, he recommends chewing a sprig of parsley or sucking on a slice of lemon.

If all this sounds too complicated he said, try rubbing the entire face and body with an ice cube wrapped in cheesecloth or a dish towel.

Whale Hunters, Hunted Meet

VANCOUVER (CP) — The hunters and the hunted met this week in the middle of the Pacific Ocean when four Greenpeace protestors from the converted United States navy submarine chaser Ohana Kai and an American television cameraman were invited aboard the Soviet whaling ship Dalniy Vostok.

Greenpeace spokesman Rod Marining said in Vancouver Wednesday the protestors, including Paul Spong of Vancouver and Japanese interpreter Kazumi Tanaka, went on board the factory ship 1,500 miles north of Hawaii at 7 p.m. PDT for over an hour.

Marining said Greenpeace members taped the entire conversation with the ship's captain, and the cameraman, from ABC Television, took pictures of the inside of the ship.

"We've been playing a cat-and-mouse game with them for five days now, and I think they (Greenpeace and the Soviets) wanted to lay the cards on the table," he said.

Michael Bailey of Greenpeace said earlier the converted Canadian navy minesweeper James Bay, which had a confrontation with another Soviet whaling fleet in the North Pacific last month, will soon head out from San Francisco to intercept the whalers again.

He said the factory ship Vladivostok is again about 800 miles southwest of Los Angeles, where the previous confrontation took place.

"Right now we're trying to track down their exact position."

He said that although the James Bay now has enough fuel and food for another trip out to sea, this expedition, which originated in Vancouver on July 17, is still $80,000 in debt.

Records Bare CIA Tests On Behavior

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Central Intelligence Agency Wednesday released documents showing that many high agency officials knew and approved of the behavior-control experiments known as the MK-ULTRA program in at least one university.

The officials included then-CIA director Allen Dulles and senior aides Richard Bissell Jr., C. P. Cabell, Lyman Kirkpatrick, Lawrence Houston and Richard Helms, according to the documents. Helms later became director.

An additional 1,760 pages of documents pertaining to the MK-ULTRA program were made public under the terms of the U.S. Freedom of Information Act.

The documents show that among things tested — at Georgetown University here — were substances to promote "illogical thinking and impulsiveness to the point where the recipient would be discredited in public," and substances to promote and prevent "the intoxicating effect of alcohol."

Another reference in the documents is to "substances which will produce 'pure' euphoria with no subsequent letdown," a type of permanent high.

The agency was also interested in "a knockout pill which can surreptitiously be administered in drinks, food, cigarettes, as an aerosol," to provide a "maximum of amnesia," and a substance, surreptitiously administered, that would make it "impossible for a man to perform any physical activity whatsoever.'

The documents also referred to tests of a "knockout drug on terminally ill cancer patients.

A CIA spokesman said Wednesday the agency had located all but six of the 80 institutions and companies involved in MK-ULTRA. "The others no longer exist, said the spokesman, who declined to give the names of any of the institutions or firms involved.

In the letters of notification, the CIA noted that in some cases the MK-ULTRA institutions were aware of their participation in the program and had been while the experiments were taking place.

The documents released Wednesday say one purpose of the research was "defence against drugs and chemical techniques used in interrogation and brainwashing.

To further its interest in producing stress through chemcial means, the CIA also proposed studying chemical agents on "advanced cancer patients. These means included a "K" or knockout drug, which one memo-writer described as a "good Mickey Finn.

Another MK-ULTRA project sought to understand "toxic delirium, uremic coma and cerebreal toxicity from poisoning. Toward that end, chemical compounds were administered to cancer patients and to at least four diabetic patients, with plans for more tests to "study the effect on mental function of large doses of the compound.

"Several of the cancer patients on the compound, one document said, "have complained of mental fogging, which is accompanied by complete relief from a pain on high dosage. This mental fogging, of course, is not experienced by diabetics. It could not be learned from the documents whether these patients knew they were being tested.

Other CIA records from MK-ULTRA which were released Wednesday show that in one project agents anonymously "donated $1,000 to an unnamed university for human experiments using the drugs oeratran, serpentine, chlorapromaze and bulbocapnine.

Chinese Unveil Mao Tomb

BELGRADE (AP) — The Chinese got their first look today at the white marble mausoleum where the embalmed body of Chairman Mao Tse-tung will rest on display in a crystal sarcophagus, the official Yogoslav news agency Tanjug reported from Peking.

Tanjug said the wooden cover was removed Monday from the memorial hall on Tien An Men Square in the heart of the Chinese capital. Construction on the memorial began last November and was reported completed in March.

Tanjug said the official opening of the mausoleum is scheduled for the first anniversary of Mao's death.

An official announcement last October said Mao's body will be placed in the hall upon completion, but Tanjug did not report when the body will actually be put there.

The agency said the mausoleum's architecture contains traditional Chinese elements, but is modern in appearance. The building is surrounded by sculptures and gardens and will also contain a small museum.

End of Rent Freeze 'Frightening': Barber

Barber was commenting on the Residential Tenancy Act, introduced in the legislature Wednesday and a statement by Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair that the government would begin phasing out rent controls by year's end.

"This statement by the minister is going to frighten many people, especially the poor and the elderly," Barber said.

"And they may be frightened unnecessarily. The latest trend indicates vacancy rates are coming down and it may be that rent controls should be continued through 1978."

Barber said it is foolish for the minister to announce a policy in August based upon estimates of what the vacancy rate may be in December.

"It would be more prudent to wait until December and see what the vacancy rate really is at that time. Once a policy is announced a government tends to stick with it to avoid losing face even if the realities have changed.

"I am asking this government to base its rent control policies on realities and not upon speculation."

Mair said no firm timetable has been established but rent controls would be phased out in certain areas by the end of the year.

Phasing out of controls would begin in areas where the vacancy rate is expected to be high, he said, and he named Victoria as a likely first area to move to a free market.

Litwin said rents will have to rise if contractors are to receive enough income to finance the cost of constructing new apartments. Federal government subsidies have been needed to encourage most of the recent construction, he said.

He said he could not comment further until after he studies the legislation in detail.

The act will affect about 40 per cent of the population of Greater Victoria who rent. About 60 per cent of the population of Victoria City are renters.

The Residential Tenancy Act will replace the Landlord and Tenant Act, passed during the New Democratic Party administration.

Two sections in the new act will provide protection for tenants.

The rentalsman may still launch a review if a landlord raises rents for the express purpose of evicting tenants. He could also review a case if the rent increase is excessive or unreasonable.

In addition to paving the way for decontrols, Mair's bill gives wider powers to landlords having trouble collecting their rent from tenants.

The act sets out that where rent is not paid when due, a landlord can give 12 days notice to a tenant to vacate. Payment of the rent within that 12-day period, however, voids the notice.

"A tenant who has not paid rent on time must realize that the landlord is operating a business and also has financial obligations," said Mair.

Stand to Rest?

LONDON (Reuter) — A U.S. resident has taken out a British patent on a method to bury people standing up in order to save space, New Scientist magazine says in its current edition.

Patent drawings show interior supports so that the body can be lowered into the grave feet first without slumping to the bottom of the casket.

Dease Line Debt: $1M A Month

VANCOUVER (CP) — The financially troubled British Columbia Railway revealed on Wednesday that interest charges on funds borrowed for the recently-aborted Dease Lake rail extension continue to cost the Crown corporation about $1 million a month.

The railway revealed the interest expenses in releasing figures showing that net losses during the first six months of the year were $25.7 million — a $2 million decrease from the corresponding period in 1976. Officials attributed the major portion of the losses to interest charges on long-term financing.

In a capsule review of B.C. Rail affairs that covered everything from hopper cars to piggyback trailers, the railway attempted to paint a slightly rosier portrait of its financial situation in the first half of 1977 than was the case in 1976. The review pointed to a considerable improvement in operating losses: $3.7 million for the first half of 1977, compared with $11.3 million in the corresponding period last year.

This improvement was overshadowed by the financial fallout from huge costs on the 420-mile extension of tracks from Fort St. James in central B.C. to Dease Lake in northwestern B.C. Work on the line began in December, 1969, and was halted by Premier Bill Bennett with 287 miles completed in April of this year.

The government is awaiting the report of a royal commission investigating the railway before a final decision is made on the fate of the northern extension. Meanwhile, the financial arrangements made for the work completed to date continue to cost the railway — and ultimately B.C. taxpayers — $1 million a month.

"Included in the 1977 net loss are interest costs which were previously charged to the railway's Dease Lake extension, and now are charged to expense since the construction halt, said the review.

IDI INSULT BRINGS DEATH

NAIROBI (AP) — A Ugandan playwright, the national theatre director and a culture ministry official were executed by firing squad in Uganda after being found guilty of insulting President Idi Amin, a refugee army officer said Wednesday.

The three were executed after opening night of a play which implied Uganda is a country without a popular leader.

Tentative Pact For IWA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tentative agreement was reached Wednesday on a unified pension plan for International Woodworkers of America members in the three British Columbia regions, industry spokesmen said.

A unified pension plan for the coast, southern interior and northern interior regions has been a major stumbling block in current contract negotiations.

Keith Bennett, president of Forest Industrial Relations which represents employers, said that the pension agreement is subject to a satisfactory conclusion to negotiations on a master contract.

Jack Munro, union western region vice-president, said the agreement is an important breakthrough, but added he is not yet prepared to recommend acceptance by the membership of a two-year master agreement.

Details of the pension-plan settlement and a date for resumption of full-scale negotiations have not yet been announced.

SALES PLUMMETED with the temperature this morning for three young entrepreneurs in South Fairfield. Earlier, hot weather was a boon for business for Katharine Salmon, 6, her brother Simon, 9, and neighbor Taryn O'Gorman, 9.

Heat Wave 'Lull'

Victorians who stepped out into significantly cooler morning temperatures today shouldn't kid themselves that the heatwave may be on its way out.

That's the word from weather office spokesman Bob Morris, who said it's just a temporary lull and we could be sweltering again by the weekend.

Although today's 8 a.m. temperature was a refreshing 15 degrees — four degrees lower than Wednesday's — Morris said it's just part of a cyclical pattern caused by an inrush of cool air up the Juan de Fuca Strait.

For a while this cools things down a bit but the cool air comes up against the persistent high pressure ridge, "sits there and then gets warmed up again," he explained.

But Morris added: "The basic pattern hasn't really changed. We may get up to above normal again by the weekend."

Meanwhile, Victoria still has a long way to go to match the record dry spell of 63 days in 1926, from June 15 to Aug. 16.

(A report earlier this week indicating the area was only seven days way from the drought record was incorrect, because it quoted Victoria airport figures which go back only 36 years. Gonzales station has city weather records going back to 1898).

Whether it's for showering, topping up pools, sprinkling lawns or just drinking, residents are consuming a lot of water — about 45 million gallons a day, according to water commissioner Ron Upward.

NEW PENNY ON THE WAY

OTTAWA (CP) — A new, smaller one-cent coin will be issued next January, the Royal Canadian Mint announced Wednesday.

The decision to reduce the size of the coin, which will be three centimetres smaller than the present one, was made because production costs, including the minting and the price of the metal, exceeded the nominal value.

CLC Fouled Early End To AIB, Says Trudeau

Times News Services

Prime Minister Trudeau says the refusal of the Canadian Labor Congress to participate in a voluntary restraint program means there will be no early end of wage and price controls.

He was speaking in a CBC radio interview from Whitehorse, Yukon, broadcast today.

"We're not going to de-control into nothing, believe me," Trudeau said. "There has to be something that happens after we lift controls to make sure that inflation doesn't go back into the two-digit figures."

Canadian premiers, meeting at St. Andrews, N.B., expected the labor movement's rejection of federal government conditions for an early end to wage and price controls, but there appeared to be little agreement today on the next step in the controls program as the premiers began economic discussions.

The Atlantic premiers want controls to stay until the end of 1978, while some western premiers, particularly Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan and Ed Schreyer of Manitoba, want the phase-out to begin almost immediately.

Canadian Labor Congress leaders said Wednesday the labor movement cannot accept any of Ottawa's proposals for voluntary wage restraint, a consultative forum to advise the government on the economy and a monitoring agency after the controls program formally ends.

Federal Labor Minister John Munro said the controls may now stay in effect until the end of 1978, the planned expiry date.

Premier Frank Moores said Newfoundland signed up for the full period until 1978 and hopes that controls will not be removed before then.

If controls are removed now, he said, the post-controls period might have a serious effect on Newfoundland's already beleaguered economy.

Schreyer said he wants the controls to end now.

"We dithered going into the program, now we're dithering going out .... we've dithered

. . . COULDN'T BE BOUGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's cross-country vacation with his three sons was a holiday that money couldn't buy for other Canadian families.

Government and railway officials insist that the eight-day, 2,600-mile railway trip, which ended Wednesday in Prince Rupert, B.C., cost the taxpayers next to nothing.

They say that the costs involved in catering to the Trudeaus in a pair of luxurious, government-owned railway cars, including a two-man serving staff, are absorbed in the standing government budget for transporting top Ottawa people around the country.

A government official said Wednesday Trudeau will pay only for food and other personal expenses incurred by him and his children.

The publicly-owned and deficit-ridden Canadian National Railways will not charge Trudeau or the government for moving the private railway cars from Ottawa to Winnipeg, through Saskatchewan and Alberta to Jasper in the Rocky Mountains and on to Prince Rupert on the Pacific Coast.

Trudeau did not even have to buy a ticket. All MPs have passes giving them and their immediate families unlimited free rail transportation.

However, government and railway officials said there was little extra cost involved in hitching the two private cars to the CN Super Continental in Ottawa for the cross-country trip.

The transport department owns a fleet of four private cars for the use of cabinet ministers and their families and various high officials.

Although they have total annual rail passenger service deficits totalling about $300 million, neither CN nor the shareholder-owned Canadian Pacific Railway charges the government for hauling the private cars on regularly scheduled train runs.

GUARD TALKS BREAK

WINNIPEG (CP) — Contract talks between the Manitoba government and negotiators for guards and counsellors on strike at the province's correctional institutions broke off five hours after they resumed Wednesday, increasing fears of a general strike by the 14,000-member Manitoba Government Employees Association (MGEA).

No further talks have been scheduled and the MGEA has issued a call for elected officers from all 92 locals to attend an emergency meeting here Saturday.

Besides the dispute involving the 500 guards and counsellors employed in the province's correctional institutions, the MGEA is disappointed with the government's refusal to sign a master contract and five component agreements, Jackson said.

Flash Floods Douse Fires

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP) — Record rains quelled extreme fire danger in drought-stricken southern California with ironic vengeance Wednesday, as flash floods ruined crops and caused rural residents to flee.

But officials said the flooding, worsened by rain Tuesday night and early Wednesday, would have little over-all effect on the state's two-year drought. Much of the more than 7½ centimetres of rain fell too rapidly to be absorbed into the ground.

And because the storms drenched only the southern part of the state, they did not help the men battling the worst of California's current plague of forest fires—a two-week blaze near Big Sur on the central coast—or other fires farther north.

Flooded streets caused dozens of accidents during morning rush-hour traffic in Los Angeles.

State officials recommended that highway travel throughout tens of thousands of square miles of California desert be limited to emergencies.

The heavy rains also led to the postponement of the second flight of the space shuttle Enterprise, which had been tentatively set for Aug. 30.

A National Weather Service spokesman said Tropical Storm Doreen, which brought about the rain as it ravaged northwestern Mexico, was "all wiped out." But forecasts still called for scattered rain.

Oysters Bask in Heat

Cross your fingers, oyster lovers, and pray for another 10 days of warm, balmy weather.

If the heat wave persists and there isn't too much wind, there'll be a bumper crop of bivalves.

Dave Smith, a biologist with the B.C. Marine Resource Branch, said today oyster spawning has been massive at Cortez Island, Pendrell Sound and Hotham Sound, as well as around Nanaimo.

The oyster crop could be as large as the one in 1958 when oysters were two feet deep on nearly all beaches on the east coast of Vancouver Island, he said.

"It will depend on a continuation of the warm weather. "The oysters are in the larvae stage at present and the warmer the weather and the less wind, the quicker they will set and attach themselves to beaches, Smith said.

While oysters around Vancouver and the Gulf Islands have been heavily picked, Smith said the few remaining oysters could restore the crop to what it was in 1958.

"Oysters, depending on their size, can produce between 30 to 100 million eggs.

"If the survival rate is high, you can imagine what kind of a crop we will have."

The Pacific oyster was introduced to this area from Japan and has depended upon reseeding from seed purchased in Japan.

For several years, reproduction was low but in 1958 there was a population explosion that saw shorelines and coves covered with oysters.

At Goldstream Provincial Park oysters were more than two feet thick.

A spokesman for the Nanaimo Biological Station said the ideal water temperatures for oyster larvae to set is about 25 degrees Celsius.

"If the temperature of the surface of the water is around 25 degrees, it will take the larvae about 10 days to set," he said. "If the temperature is lower by three or five degrees it may take between two or three weeks.

He said the longer the larvae take to set, the greater the loss of eggs.

It Was a Bright Night for the Lions

British Columbia Lions moved into a tie for first place in the Western Football Conference Wednesday night, defeating Winnipeg Blue Bombers 25-17 at Winnipeg.

Leon Bright led the B.C. offence with a pair of touchdowns, one on a 65-yard pass-and-run play from quarterback Jerry Tagge. The other came on a spectacular 100-yard kickoff return.

Mike Strickland got the other Lions' touchdown on a three-yard plunge in the second quarter. Placekicker Lui Passaglia booted a field goal, three converts and a single.

Gord Paterson got Winnipeg's only touchdown, a 13-yard pass in the third quarter from Harry Knight. Bernie Ruoff contributed three field goals, a convert and a single to the Bombers' cause.

The win gave the Lions eight points, the same as Edmonton Eskimos.

The Bombers had good scoring opportunities in the first quarter, raising the hopes of the capacity crowd of 25,210. But they had to fall back each time on the placekicking skills of Ruoff. He booted a 32-yard field goal at 4:54, and followed with a booming kickoff that Rocky Long conceded for a single.

Ruoff's next placement came after Merv Walker intercepted a Tagge pass on the B.C. 30-yard line and ran it for seven yards. After an incomplete pass on a second down play, Ruoff connected on a 25-yard field goal at 9:34.

The Lions got on the scoreboard at 14:15 of the first quarter with a 40-yard field goal by Passaglia.

Late in the quarter, Tagge connected with Al Sharuk on a 42-yard passing play that brough the Lions to the Winnipeg two-yard line.

Strickland carried over left tackle for the touchdown at 13:47.

As the third quarter opened, Tagge threw a long pass to Bright. Defensive halfback Walker lost track of Bright and tried to knock down the pass but missed. Bright was home free for a 65-yard touchdown at 2:57.

The Bombers came back with a 39-yard passing play to Jay Washington and a 31-yard pass that Tom Scott caught with a spectacular dive. Knight then hit Paterson on a 15-yard touchdown pass at 11:51.

It was on the following kickoff that Bright, moving through heavy traffic and then breaking loose down the sidelines to outrun the last two Winnipeg defenders, chalked up his 100-yard touchdown dash.

Statistically, the Bombers dominated the game, collecting 21 first downs against 10 by B.C., and gaining a total 356 yards in net offence. That compared to 199 yards total offence by the Lions.

Knight threw 34 passes and completed 21 for a total 297 yards, while Tagge connected on just nine of 21 tries for 172 yards.

In Toronto, it was a memorable night for veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster. He had four interceptions but also threw a 29-yard deciding touchdown pass that gave Saskatchewan Roughriders a 27-26 victory over Toronto Argonauts.

Lancaster hit Steve Mazurak with a minute and four seconds left to play to clinch the win. The roughriders relied almost exclusively on their aerial attack, gaining just 20 yards on the ground.

"It was me who put us on the hook in the first place," said Lancaster. "You have to get lucky sometime and the touchdown pass wasn't pretty, but it's two points."

The Argos had a 12-point edge in the third quarter but Steve Molnar narrowed the gap with a three-yard touchdown run. A single by Zenon Andrusyshyn gave Toronto a 26-20 edge but Lancaster found Mazurak in the open for the game-winning touchdown.

Moody Jackson caught an 18-yard Lancaster pass for a touchdown in the first quarter. The Roughriders had moved to the Toronto eight on a 98-yard punt return by Paul Williams. A touchdown pass to Steve Molnar on the next play was wiped out by a holding penalty, but Lancaster came back with the scoring strike to Jackson.

Bob Macoritti converted the three Saskatchewan touchdowns and added a pair of field goals.

The Toronto touchdowns came on a seven-yard scramble by quarterback Chuck Ealey and a three-yard run by Neil Lumsden. Andrusyshyn had three field goals, three singles and a pair of converts.

Andrusyshyn's second field goal, which came after Jim Marshall intercepted a Lancaster pass at mid-field, made him the all-time Argo scoring leader with 543 points, one more than the career record of Dick Shatto, former offensive back and now the team's general manager.

Speaking of the Cup, Time for Another Look

Speaking of the Mann Cup, a couple of names cropped up.

The Mann Cup? That's for the national lacrosse championship and a series Victoria Shamrocks hope to become engaged in come the first week in September.

It's been here before. Twice in fact, although for most observers it's pretty hard to remember when. It's been that long ago. Would you believe 20 years?

Ed Kowalyk, a member of the Shamrock board and a former coach and player, was on the team that won the championship here in 1957.

That marked the second occasion. The first time was two years earlier.

In between, it was still an Island show. Nanaimo Timbermen kept the cup on the Island with a victory in 1956; and that was the heyday of the sport here it will be said by those who were around then. And who's to argue?

One fellow who will agree is Jackie Northup. Yes, big Jack had a great series here against the Long Branch Pontiacs and was named winner of the Mike Kelly medal as most valuable to his team. And he's in the hall-of-fame now.

Whitey Severson, that alderman chap, was the coach. He could play a little, too, and also made it into the Hall.

Peewee Bradshaw was the team captain and a popular performer — all five feet six of him (or as it "five"?). Peewee, it will be recalled, was later killed in an automobile accident on the Malahat: and the esteem in which he was held is still marked by the Shamrocks in that one of their club trophies is named after him.

Big Bert Bertoia was also on that club. He had come down from the interior to make his name here. Later, he coached the team. And there was Lew Landess, Bill Bamford, the two Greens, both Art, Don Sherry, Allan Gill . . . and who can forget goalkteper Geordie Johnston? He was one of many fine Irish keepers over the years. And Freddie Wooster.

Tom Druce? I think he was hurt at the time of the final.

Actually, for the Rocks it was tougher getting there than it was winning the cup.

First, they had to get by Nanaimo and that was easier said than done. It took seven games, and if you think the Burrards-Shamrocks games are bitter now, the Timbermen-Rocks battles of 20 years ago had their moments.

Victoria had the final-game edge and the Arena was filled to capacity. Victoria won 8-6 and out of deference to their foes and because their talent was respected, three Nanaimo players joined the Irish for the cup final.

They were Arnie Dugan (named this week to the Hall of Fame), Skip McKay and Gogie Stewart.

The series wasn't much. Long Branch really wasn't prepared and shouldn't have been here. Peterborough won the East but balked at the playoff dates. The Canadian Lacrosse Association wouldn't stand for any nonsense, suspended the Petes and sent the Pontiacs in their place.

Staffer Ernie Fedoruk was telling it like it was, with cliches. "It might be said," he penned, "that the Pontiacs ran out of gas." They never did get their tanks topped. They went quietly in four games. Or maybe the Rocks were that good. Who knows? They were definitely a power.

So Victoria was a national name in lacrosse then, as it was again last year when McDonalds won the Minto Cup to put the town back on the map.

Speaking of juniors, while the Rocks were winning at home in '57 the junior Rocks were seeking the Minto Cup in the East. But they couldn't get by Brampton and lost in six games. Archie Browning was in charge of their fortunes; and he's another ex-Rock and in the Hall with the others.

Otherwise, the town was just about the same. And things were hot. While the Rocks were celebrating their Mann Cup victory the Plumper Bay Sawmill was going up in flames. Smoked picnics were going for 47 cents a pound, chuck roasts at 33, a new hat was worth $4.99 and the car buff could get a shiny Plymouth for around $3,000.

It was the era of the swim craze and a plaque was about to be dedicated in Beacon Hill Park commemorating Marilyn Bell's feat of swimming the Strait of Juan de Fuca. Marilyn? She was making plans to get married in the East.

So that was a month from the past.

Now it's back to reality and the Rocks and Burrards getting serious about who will represent the West in this year's cup final.

After 20 years, it's about time.

BEN HATSKIN
. . . to protect rights

MONTREAL (CP)—Maybe within the next couple of days Peter Pocklington, co-owner of Edmonton Oilers, will change his mind about the Alberta club's participation in the World Hockey Association.

But, at the momen, the Oilers are a team without a league to play in for 1977-78 and will not be one of at least seven teams in the WHA next season.

Pocklington stormed out of the WHA's annual meeting after the league would not meet what they felt were "extreme player demands."

"We have now been eliminated from the WHA picture," Pocklington said. "Edmonton is fighting for its life to get an NHL franchise. We gave the league an ultimatum that we didn't want to be a part of a league of second-class citizens."

Basically, the Oilers' ultimatum was that Edmonton should be given first right of refusal in a dispersal draft if and when some WHA clubs decided not to operate. The WHA owners would not agree to this and now it seems the Oilers will spend the next few days trying to acquire the troubled Colorado Rockies' NHL concession.

The Rockies lost $2.5 million last season after the franchise was shifted to Denver from Kansas City.

Nelson Skalbania, the other Oilers' co-owner, said Tuesday that the Rockies had sold just 2,300 tickets and added that he had talked with Colorado owner Jack Vickers who seemed "very interested" in selling the club.

But any attempts by the Oilers to acquire the Rockies and move them to Edmonton will be fought by the WHA, Ben Hatskin, the WHA's chairman of the board said.

"We plan to protect our territorial rights," said Hatskin. "The Edmonton market has a 15,500-seat arena. They have what is known to be one of the best markets in hockey, football or horse racing."

But what the WHA's territorial rights are in Edmonton are questionable and whether they can keep the market for themselves is another story.

"We will have our legal people study it," said Hatskin.

It is unlikely the NHL, which has had to fight the WHA in the courts several times since the birth of the league, would want to get involved in any further legal hassles.

Therefore the NHL would want to make sure there would be no lawsuits before approving any sale of the Rockies to the Edmonton group, which lost at least $11 million in the WHA last year.

Ray Miron said that, as general manager of the Rockies, he could not believe "that we'll move from Denver."

Miron said that Vickers, who now is on holidays, "has made arrangements for this season and we've been pushing hard for our season tickets."

If the Oilers and Rockies reach an agreement, it is still subject to the approval by the NHL board which holds its semi-annual meetings in Toronto beginning next Wednesday.

The WHA announced that Hatskin will remain chairman of the board with Howard Baldwin, managing general partner of the Whalers, assuming the league presidency.

Bill McFarland, past WHA president, will serve as the league's general counsel. Larry Gordon will be the WHA's executive director.

Hatskin announced that Birmingham will not be able to use Ken Linseman, an 18-year-old forward signed from Kingston Canadians of the Ontario Major Junior Hockey League.

There had been a threat from Alan Eagleson of Hockey Canada that the WHA's North American games against the Europeans would not be played if the Bulls used Linseman.

Grundison Captures Two Swimming Medals

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Ontario athletes flexed their muscles in and on the water Wednesday to win six of eight swimming gold medals and six of nine canoeing golds at the Canada Summer Games.

Barb Olmstead of North Bay spearheaded the canoeing triumph for Ontario winning three events to celebrate her 18th birthday.

In the pool, Sheila Dezeeuw of Stoney Creek set a Games and an 11-12 age-class national record in the 100-metre breaststroke. She sliced a second and a half off the Games record she established earlier in the day, finishing in one minute, 16.35 seconds.

Peter Szmidt of Pointe Claire, Que. spoiled Ontario's bid for a sweep of the swimming golds by setting a Games record of 54.09 in the men's 100-metre freestyle and then anchoring the Quebec men's 800-metre freestyle relay team to a gold medal win. He took the lead in the final 25 metres.

Victoria's Rob Grundison captured a pair of medals for B.C. in the swimming competition, winning a bronze in the 400-metre individual medley and helping the provincial team to a silver in the 800-metre freestyle relay.

Carole Vanier of Montreal won the gold in the women's cycling time trial, battling strong winds to finish in 35:17.05.

Quebec and Ontario divers shared gold medals, Gilles Bilodeau, 16, of Chicoutimi winning the men's 10-metre event on the final dive while Janice Dalrymple, 15, of London won the women's one-metre event.

Muscles landed Ontario's soccer team in a controversy as the Yukon forfeited its final scheduled match blaming injuries suffered to a couple of players in a 19-0 loss to Ontario and an 8-0 loss to Saskatchewan as the reason for not being able to continue.

The powerful Newfoundland soccer team was the Yukon's final opponent and the forfeited gave gave it a 5-0 won-lost record. Newfoundland, Quebec—also undefeated—Ontario, British Columbia advanced to the medal playoffs today.

In canoeing, Olmstead won the women's kayak singles in 2:40.5, shared in Ontario's kayak-fours win in 2:18.5 and paired with Liz Arnold of Ottawa to take the kayak pairs in 2:29.1.

Mike Hurley of Mississauga, Ont., won the men's canoe singles in 2:44.8. Ian Crowley of Mississauga and Andrew Sheppard of Carleton Place took the kayak pairs in 2:07.5.

Gord Brown and Mike Matthews, both of Gananoque, teamed with Crowley and Sheppard in the men's kayak fours to win the gold in 2:07.5.

Nova Scotia took two of the three other canoeing golds. Randy McDonald and David McNaughton, both of Waverley, won the men's canoe pairs in 2:25.8 and Donald Brien of Dartmouth won the kayak singles in 2:39.2.

Quebec's foursome of Steve Botting and Eric Vibert, both of Montreal, and Marc Granger of Lachine and George Jones of Chateauguay won the canoe fours in 2:32.9.

Dezeeuw, who got a standing ovation from the more than 4,000 spectators when her age-class mark was announced, set a torrid pace from the start.

Boys' event winners were Dan Zupanc (13-16 novice singles), Glenn Johnston (13-16 open singles), Richard Folk and Dale Crawford (13-16 doubles), Neil Lacheur and Mike Linehan (11-12 doubles), Ian Smith and Stuart MacCaskell (8-10 doubles), Oscar Mandap (11-12 singles) and Paul Hodges (8-10 singles).

Other winners of girls' events were Corinne Gillies and Carolyn Swayzey (8-12 doubles), Karen McEvay (11-12 singles) and Sue Theriault (8-10 singles).

Benn One-Man Bombing Crew

Randy Benn provided Victoria Athletics with a one-man offensive force Wednesday in the second game of a best-of-five Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League playoff semi-final series at Central Park.

Athletics took a 2-0 lead in the series by downing Colony Inn 3-1.

Benn hit a triple in the top of the first inning, scored on a fielders' choice and then connected for a double in the fifth inning to drive in the other two runs.

Ken Fox struck out eight batters while yielding three bases on balls and six hits to earn the victory.

The series continues Friday at Central Park while Seaboard Construction, a 2-0 leader in the other series, takes on league-champion Sooke Merchants tonight at Sooke Athletic Park at 6:30.

At Heywood Avenue Park, Marv Carver helped Capital Builders to a 3-2 victory over Remco Office Systems and a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five Heywood MCen's League semi-finals.

Carver drove in Greg Smith, who had doubled, with a home run in the third inning to give Builders a 2-1 lead and hurled a seven-hitter for the pitching win.

Al McDonald led off the fourth inning with a single and then scored what proved to be the winning run on a sacrifice by Smith.

The third game in the other series, between Castle Properties and Century Inn, is scheduled for 6:30 tonight.

Cables Rally To Win Opener

BURNABY (CP) — Burnaby Cablevision defeated New Westminster Junior Salmonbellies 16-11 Wednesday in the first game of their best-of-seven Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League final series.

New Westminster scored four times before Burnaby found the mark, and led 3-2 at the end of the first period. But Burnaby came back in the second to take a 9-8 lead into the final frame.

Burnaby's Rod Banister stopped 37 shots and added two assists while Jim Poelzer made 44 saves and contributed four assists to New Westminster's losing effort.

The series resumes Friday in New Westminster.

Gorge Captures Title

It went the limit, thanks mainly to pitcher Roy Moretti of Greaves Movers, but Gorge Hotel finally captured the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League playoff championship Wednesday at Lambrick Park.

Gorge tripped Greaves 12-3 in the deciding game of a best-of-five series and added the playoff title to league laurels for the second straight year.

Derek Drinkwater earned the pitching victory by firing a three-hitter and Gorge came up with 11 hits while blitzing Greaves.

Moretti, who pitched four of the five games for Greaves with a 2-2 record, showed some of the strain and gave up seven hits, including a two-run homer by Mike Squire, and five runs before being relieved by Rick Mark in the fifth inning.

Mark, making only his second appearance of the season, got the last out in the fifth but was blasted for seven runs in the sixth inning on two singles, a double, a triple and thre bases on balls.

Arthurs with trophy for best song at Colorado festival

V.I. Logger's Song Wins,

Record Pressed in Good Ol' Nashville

'The Picker' Top Pick

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

After 21 years in the bush, singer Neil Arthurs is ready to emerge, hopefully, as the next country superstar.

His first record is being pressed in Nahville.

Arthurs was born in Victoria but spent all his life in logging camps.

"It was lonely there so I started singing to entertain myself. Now I think I am about ready to make it a career."

Arthurs, 31, married and the father of three children, has just returned from the Colorado Country Music Festival in Denver where he took first place in the folk-country section with a song he wrote and sang called The Picker.

A Nashville music company, Cedarwood Publishing, liked the song and will release it as a single with another Arthurs composition, The Gear Jammer, on the reverse side.

There's a lot of luck involved in show business but Arthurs has always believed that hard work will pay off.

"I don't mind working. I've done that all my life in the bush. I've been a truck driving man and most recently I've been a heavy-duty mechanic.

"I've worked in just about every town on Vancouver Island."

It was as a heavy-duty mechanic in Cedar, near Nanaimo, that he got the idea for The Picker.

"I was working one day and the boss said: Look at that old man there.

"I looked and saw a man in old clothes, shoes curled up at the front. He had a bag under his arm. I think it was a bottle.

"Well, the boss said: That man used to be a (guitar) picker.

"He was warning me about alcohol. I know it gets many guitar pickers. It's a terrible thing. That's where I got the idea for the song that won the award."

Arthurs was upset about the death this week of Elvis Presley.

"He was the best. Whenever I sang I always did whatever the audience asked for — except Presley songs. I always refused to do those. They were great songs but no one could do them like Elvis. Anyone else would just ruin them."

Another Arthurs idol is Johnny Cash.

"He's a real man. When Cash looks at you it's like he's saying: Come along if you think you're man enough to try. I like tough men. I guess that's because I've spent my whole life in the bush with tough men. I also like older people. I love to sing to senior citizens because they appreciate what you're doing. My favorite audiences would be people in their late forties or older."

Arthurs has always been around older people.

His father worked the logging camps as a cat operator and there were lots of men but few children.

And when he made friends he soon had to leave them behind.

"I went to about four schools a year. We just kept moving from camp to camp. Some times I just had my guitar and my singing for company."

He married a Port Hardy girl 11 years ago and they now have three children ages 10, 9 and 2.

"I could have started a (singing) career six years ago but I wasn't ready. I wanted to have the right song with the right company at the right time. You can start with some small company and take years to get anywhere. I'm starting with a company in Nashville and I feel right about the song."

Gently urging him toward a singing career is his wife, who is content to stay home and mind the children.

Saanich Officials Jolted By East-West Artery Plan

. . . "no dialogue"

The provincial highway department's proposal to construct a new east-west arterial road from Quadra to Munns could throw a wrench into Saanich's development plans.

Saanich has been asked by the ministry to acquire the right-of-way along a route along Vanalman, connecting with Roy Road and extending to Munns Road at the municipality's western boundary.

Construction is estimated to be five to 10 years away, municipal engineer Cliff Warren said Wednesday.

Because of the impact it would have on the municipality the proposal, aired at closed meeting of the public works committee on Tuesday, will be considered at next Tuesday's meeting of the lands, planning and housing committee.

Public works committee chairman Ald. Sandy Noel says the new arterial road "would have an immense bearing on the official community plan, the North Quadra area, as well as the Royal Oak industrial development plan."

If approval is given Tuesday, he recommends postponement of the public hearing on the North Quadra area.

Municipal planner Gil Laurenson said the news "was like a bolt out of the blue . . . a real shocker."

He said he knew of three or four housing developments that would be affected if the new road is built. He doubted that North Quadra would be a desirable residential area after its construction.

Mayor Ed Lum sees the proposal as an indication the government intends opening up the Highlands area.

"Munns Road is the gateway to the western sector," he said.

Before any action is taken, Lum said several questions, such as the cost to Saanich, must be answered.

"I want aldermen to give the matter thorough consideration because of all its ramifications," he said.

Warren says the highways department made the proposal after discussions on the need to improve the traffic flow on Vanalman because of planned industrial development in Royal Oak. He said Vanalman would be a prime truck artery, taking pressure off internal streets.

Warren said the arterial road would also ease the preessure on McKenzie Avenue. McKenzie now has a traffic flow of about 19,000 vehicles a day and is expected to reach a capacity of 22,000 per day within five years.

He is recommending the right-of-way be a minimum of 66 feet and a maximum of 100 feet.

Miracle's Corpuscles Controlled

The long-awaited fall is happening.

Miracle's white corpuscle count fell by 1,000 to about 8,400 Wednesday — a level approaching normal and an indicator that antibiotics are starting to control the infection rampant in the injured killer whale calf.

Another blood sample was taken today to see if the downward trend in white blood cells is continuing.

Behavioral changes in the past few days also indicate she is on the mend, said animal care supervisor Cathy Denny today.

She's been swimming on her side waving a flipper at poolside attendants and swimming upside down.

MLA Claims Unpaid Fines Jail 'Poor'

Poor people are in jails simply because they have no money to pay their fines, Gary Lauk (NDP — Vancouver Centre) told the legislature Wednesday.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom promptly denied the statement during clause-by-caluse debate on amendments to the Summary Convictions Act, which increases the maximum summary conviction fines to $2,000 from $500.

Lauk, a Vancouver criminal lawyer, urged the government to "find a better way . . . to avoid the difference between rich people and poor people before the courts."

"Poor people who cannot afford fines go to jail while the rich have little difficulty in paying their fines," Lauk said.

"We have people sitting in jail for no reason other than they are unable to pay their fines."

He suggested a percentage form of fine based on the convicted person's income.

Conservative leader Scott Wallace said he supports the point "if justice is to be evenly dispersed," while George Mussallem (SC — Dewdney) urged that fines be eliminated in favor of community work.

"Fines are totally wrong," Mussallem said. "We should get work from people. They don't care about money. They should be put to work, then they would know the value" of their crime.

The attorney-general noted that the previous NDP government had passed a law in 1974 which prevents sending offenders to jail if they cannot pay their fines.

"There is no one in prison now as a result of not paying a fine," he said.

He noted that where a fine is imposed and not paid, it becomes a civil judgment and could result in wages being attached or goods seized and sold to pay it off.

Gardom said community work already has been imposed in certain cases as well as restitution projects.

"For far too long we have not paid attention to the victims and too much on the accused," he said.

Severson Set To Fight Gov't

Ald. Fred Severson, chairman of Saanich council's lands, planning and housing committee, said today he'll strongly oppose the provincial highway department's plan for an arterial highway from Quadra to Nunns.

The municipality has spent months developing its community plan, Severson said, and the government's last-minute proposal shows a complete indifference to the municipality's concerns.

"There's been do dialogue This is the first time I've heard of it (the road propsal) and it's the first time our planning department has heard of it," he said.

"Why has there been no open dialogue?"

He says the road will jeopardize Saanich's community plan and Saanich residents will end up paying for the benefit or residents in other areas.

"Who are we serving? (with the proposed road) . . . I can't see anyone but those in the Highlands area."

Severson said it unfair to suggest the municipality acquire 66 feet to 100 feet right-of-ways at this time because he can see no need for the road.

Severson said future councils might approve such a proposal when there is a need for such an arterial road.

"Our community plan is flexible," he said. "It could be amended, say in 10 years' time."

Severson pinpointed the Northridge area as one that would be badly affected if the road project proceeds.

Drive-In Digs In Over Sign

City aldermen were told today the owners of the Dairy Queen Drive-In on Douglas Street refuse to conform with the city's sign bylaw by modifying a sign which projects more than three feet over the property line.

The legal committee endorsed a recommendation from solicitor Jakob de Villiers that the city enact a special bylaw demanding the removal of the offending sign.

Solicitors for the firm, Island Drive-Ins Ltd., will be given an opportunity to be heard before council.

In a report to the committee, de Villiers said most of the firms which were in violation of the sign bylaw have taken action to comply since they received letters warning of legal proceedings.

But he said the Dairy Queen owners have instructed their solicitors "to inform the city that it refuses to conform."

"Its solicitors maintain that the city has no authority to force signs that were lawful before the enactment of the sign bylaw to conform with the provisions of the sign bylaw," de Villiers said.

IWA to Tackle Discrimination

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

An East Indian is unable to get a job at a Vancouver sawmill. A young woman's application for a job on "the green chain" is rejected.

The International Woodworkers of America, B.C.'s largest union, knows that such examples of discrimination on the basis of race and sex do occur and is making an effort to come to grips with the problem.

The 40,000-member union has launched a one-year research program to determine the extent of the problem involving their members and come up with some solutions.

The federal government has come through with a $30,000 grant which will allow the hiring of a so-called minority groups relations officer.

"Racial discrimination is a part of life but we want to have it under control," Tom Fox, IWA's director of public relations, said Wednesday.

"We know there are mills that have policies against hiring East Indians, but we can't prove it."

The union hopes the research person can ferret out examples of discrimination within the organization and, knowing the way the union operates, come up with solutions to eradicate them or prevent them from spreading.

Fox said so far there have been only a few instances of racial discrimination.

"There were a few flare-ups at a couple of mills in the Vancouver area and in the Interior," he said. "But they were spotty situations."

Instances of union members' civil or human rights being violated don't exist on a large scale, he added, but because the IWA represents members of a couple of large minority ethnic groups, the potential is there for a serious problem.

As far as discrimination on the basis of sex, Fox quotes a foreman at a Vancouver-area mill as telling a woman: "We don't want you to get muscles like a man."

Kathleen Ruff, B.C.'s human rights director, said she thought the union's initiative an excellent idea.

Such action will serve not only to stir up interest in human rights matters but also help to improve the image of trade unions in B.C.

Too often, she said, the issue of human rights stays at the theoretical level with everybody giving kneejerk acknowledgment that discrimination is not good.

The important thing is to develop interest and concern at the grassroots level where the problems exist, she added.

"I think the unions have a really fantastic role to play in this area," Ruff said.

Also, she said, the union movement developed as an effort to help the exploited but now they are often perceived as the allies of the strongest in the work force.

"It is really great that they should show some concern in theory but also carry through with some action to protect . . . those people on the weaker side."

She confirmed that there have been some cases in the forest industry involving discrimination on the basis of race or sex and some have been the subject of action.

She said the human rights branch has become involved in specific problems but that these are the "tip of the iceberg."

Picnic Shelter Tabled

The International Order of Hoo-Hoo, a fraternal organization in the lumber industry, wants to provide the shelter as a public shelter which will also promote the use of wood.

The Beacon Hill Park Association, which has complained in the past that too much development has occurred in the park on an ad-hoc basis said in a letter to the city that it considers the shelter "neither necessary nor suitable" and also claimed that the building would be "an intrusion upon a valuable asset."

Parks administrator Cliff Bate, however, told the parks committee he believes there is a need for the shelter because present picnic facilities in Beacon Hill Park are "very primitive," with no covered accommodation or facilities for washing or cooking.

He suggested the shelter be located adjacent to the sports hut, near the playground equipment and picnic tables.

By the time the matter was discussed there were only two aldermen present and they wished to wait for a quorum.

Industrials, Metals Lead Toronto Trade

The TSE 300 index was up 1.17 to 1,028.44 with gains in two of its four most heavily-weighted groups.

Industrial products rose 3.85 to 906.26 and metals and minerals 2.54 to 971.51, while oil and gas issues fell 3.94 to 1,212.56 and financial services .50 to 954.18.

Real estate and construction stocks led the seven gainers among the other 10 groups within the 14-unit composite index. Communications and media issues were the biggest of the four losers.

Volume of trading by 2 p.m. totalled 1.21 million shares, down from 1.61 million at the same time Wednesday.

Despite the overall gain, declines outnumbered advances 152 to 138 with 226 issues unchanged.

A trading halt issued at the opening continues in shares of Bad Boy Appliances and Furniture Ltd. at the company's request pending an announcement. It last traded at $1.55 a share.

Among other industrials, Canadian Tire A shot up 1¾ to $32, Thomson Industries 1 to $25, Central and Eastern Trust A ⅝ to $13, Calgary Power A ⅜ to $33¾ and Husky Oil ⅝ to $26¾.

Great Lakes Paper dropped 1 to $25½, Imperial Oil A ½ to $21⅛, John Labatt A ⅛ to $18, Canadian General Investment ⅛ to $18¼ and Richard Costain ⅛ to $14¾.

United Siscoe Mines rose ½ to $8¾, Camflo Mines ½ to $15 and International Mogul Mines A ¼ to $12¾. McIntyre Mines fell 1¼ to $21⅝ and Consolidated Rambler Mines 20 cents to $1.50.

New York

AT NEW YORK the market advanced moderately in a technical upswing after its sharp losses of late.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which touched new 19-month lows on Tuesday and Wednesday, was up 4.66 at 899.37 at 2 p.m. today.

Gainers outpaced losers by about a 5-to-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

NYSE volume came to 14.71 million shares by midafternoon.

Analysts found nothing particular in the economic news to account for the upswing. They said some buyers evidently were attracted by the depressed prices of many issues.

Hewlett-Packard fell 4¾ to 97¾. The company said the estate of Mrs. Flora L. Hewlett, who was the wife of the company's president, planned a secondary offering of about 1 million shares of the stock.

Diamond Shamrock rose ¾ to $31¼ in active trading. Directors of the diversified chemical and oil and gas company reported plans to raise the quarterly dividend from 27½ to 35 cents a share in the fourth quarter.

Montreal

AT MONTREAL, prices were slightly higher in moderate afternoon trading.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. EDT was 297,400 shares, compared with 233,900 shares traded up to the same time Wednesday.
